GERMANS CRY FOR ARMY RULE

CATCH AS CATCH CAN LAWMAKING PERILS SESSION

Shanahan Points Out Lack of Program.

Comment among Chicagoans yesterday after reading Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's call for the special session of the general assembly for next Wednesday concerned itself chiefly with two points. One of them was the vagueness of the general picture presented. The other was that no organized effort under competent leadership has developed to make possible the execution of a definite legislative program.

SPEAKER SHANAHAN.

The demand of the Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation that before Illinois may receive any additional funds for relief work it must show that it has exhausted all its own resources available for the needy is considered the most important reason for calling the session. In other words, commentors say, the session must either raise more state funds or must establish beyond controversy that no more funds can be raised by the state.

Lack Competent Guide.

But interviews now disclose that the senators and representatives apparently are to gather in Springfield next Wednesday and at that time begin to pick and choose from a heterogeneous collection of proposals without any recommendation before them from any responsible body competent to guide the way.

Without any intention to criticize Gov. Emmerson, particularly since he is still ill, it was pointed out by some of the leaders interviewed that, under the call, the assembly will have authority to pass any act that would enable the state to obtain a greater measure of assistance from the Reconstruction corporation, almost any sort of a bill bearing on state, county or municipal revenues may be introduced.

It was pointed out that there is nothing in the call to bar the presentation of measures for tobacco taxes, chewing gum taxes, poll taxes, increased automobile license fees, chain store taxes, amusement taxes or any of the multiplicity of money raising proposals that have been introduced in past sessions.

Shanahan Points Out Danger.

Such a flood of proposed legislation, it was said, will throw the assembly into confusion that cannot be terminated before Oct. 1 when the relief work now in progress will have to be stopped unless new funds are provided.

"The situation is a dangerous one," said Speaker David E. Shanahan, "unless some intelligent, forcible leadership is developed from the outset. The special session might prove to be a complete failure unless a definite program is backed by strong organization.

"We are going to Springfield Wednesday. The hour of meeting, 4 o'clock, is late, and the attendance on the first day is likely to be slim. Therefore, there is little chance of anything being done that day unless advance preparations are made. And on Thursday some of the members will start to go home, so that there is danger that nothing will be accomplished next week.

"Unless forceful influences are brought to bear the following week will be the usual legislative week with meetings on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. And we must pass up the following week because the G. A. R. has reserved every inch of hotel space for that week. That leaves only one week remaining before Oct. 1, which has been set as a deadline for the relief measures.

Tells of Protests.

"Some of these relief plans are extremely controversial. I have on my desk now a stack of protests against any form of sales tax and against any further tax on the motorists. And those are the two most definite proposals that have been made for the raising of money.

"If we lose the first week's time and have ahead of us only six or seven legislative days in which to settle those controversies and to get a two-thirds vote in each house for some program, the prospect will be alarming."

So far as can be learned there has been no suggestion that the "program

WAR VETERANS CHEER PRINCES; BACK VON PAPEN

Parliamentarism Is Dead, Leader Says.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—Chancellor Franz von Papen and his cabinet, almost all of the surviving German generals of the world war, former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm and the former crown princess, Hohenzollern and other princes, and a son of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden lent an official seal of the old time glamour of war and royalty to the convention of the Steel Helmet Association of War Veterans today.

The former crown prince and the other Hohenzollern princes received a tumultuous ovation. Prince August Wilhelm was not present. He is a follower of Adolf Hitler and the Steel Helmet opposes the Hitler movement. The list of honor guests included the dukes of Coburg, Mecklenburg, Anhalt, and Lippe. The generals were headed by former Field Marshal August von Mackensen.

A note of triumph rang through the speech of the Steel Helmets' leader, Franz Seldte, at the Sport Palace tonight as the convention of 150,000 men in field gray uniforms was officially opened.

Military Conscription Aim.

"Parliamentarism is dead in Germany," he said. "The time of the soldier has come. People of lesser qualities must step to the background. The rule of inferior spirits has been broken. We have come to stay in Berlin.

"The first of our aims has been realized: the will to defend ourselves has been reawakened. Our next aim is the reintroduction of compulsory military training, after which will come the third aim: the will to attain the highest spiritual values for Germany by developing conscious national leadership.

"We do not want the spirit which the soldier acquired in the trenches to be lost to the nation. But we do not want to apply this spirit in a new war since we know war in all its ghastliness. We want to encourage its use in the free and peaceful reconstruction of our nation."

Back Von Papen's Program.

The Steel Helmets announced their approval of Von Papen's program to reconstruct the German state.

"A few reforms will not do it," Seldte continued. "We need a complete change in leadership. We aim toward a changed constitution and a reorganization of the economic system. It cannot be accomplished with the system of Weimar [republicanism] and the Versailles treaty. Both of these systems must be loosened up, and blown up if we are to achieve inner and outer freedom.

"If it is a question of keeping the Weimar constitution or saving the nation, then the constitution is just a piece of paper, but the nation is alive and decides."

Maj. Franz von Stephani, vice president of the Steel Helmets, concluded the meeting by describing a Steel Helmet as a "hammer in God's hands to forge German unity and a sword for German freedom."

Commute Death Sentences.

Earlier in the day the death sentences passed by the anti-terrorist court at Beuthen on Aug. 22 against five Hitlerites for the murder of a communist in a political brawl were commuted to life imprisonment by the Prussian board of commissioners. Von Papen himself presided.

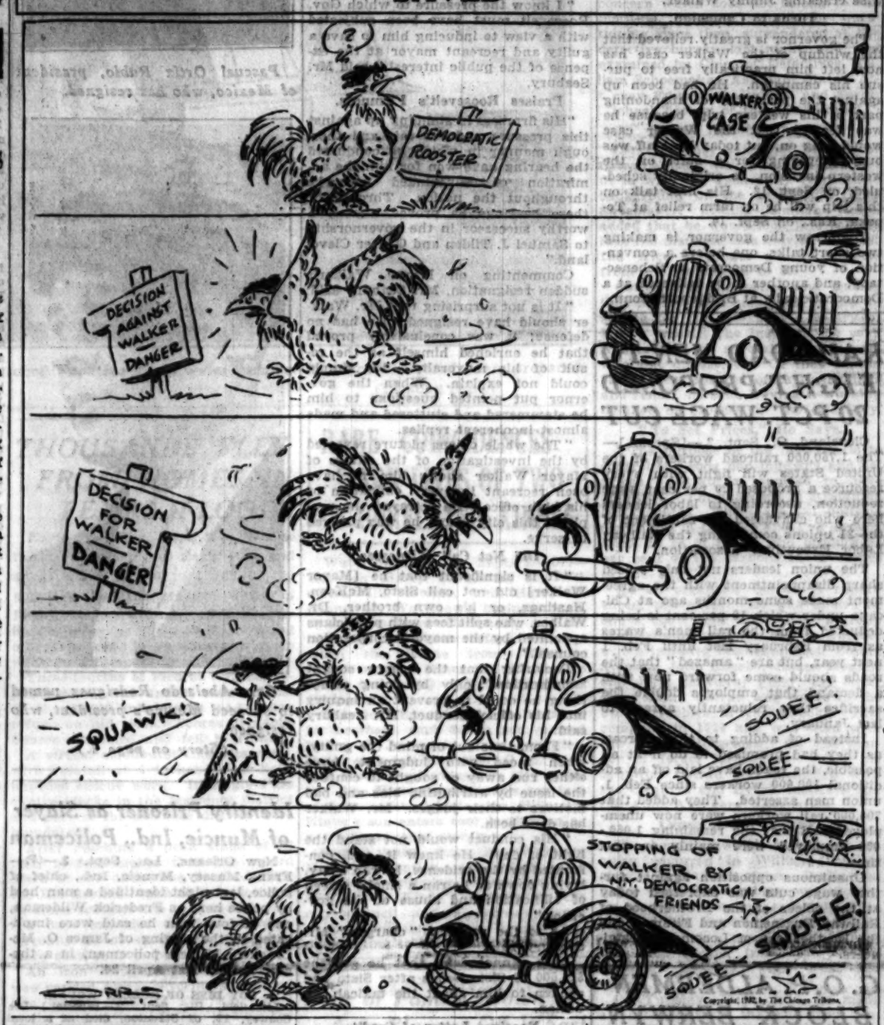
The act of mercy was officially explained by the fact that "at the time of the deed the prisoners had no knowledge of President von Hindenburg's anti-terrorism decree and its severe penalties." The defendants will probably be granted jury trials.

The Prussian cabinet today completed the details of the administrative reforms to be enforced by emergency decree tomorrow. The reforms are designed to simplify the administrative system, but the Berliner Tageblatt comments that they are marked by an increased influence of bureaucracy and a restriction of self-administration.

Reduce Prussian Cabinet.

Catholic Centrist party officials assert that an agreement has been reached with Hitlerites whereby the future Prussian cabinet will be reduced from seven to four members. The premiership and finance ministry will be combined and held by a "neutral" person. The Nazis will receive the home ministry, giving them control of the police.

Walker's Race Hangs in the Balance



STOCKS SURGE AHEAD WHEN WHEAT, COTTON SCORE NEW ADVANCES

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—A fresh wave of bullish enthusiasm, encouraged by renewed strength in wheat and cotton, today carried prices on the stock exchange from a point to 5 points above previous closings. Bonds also worked higher, led by the railroad division. Trading was conducted on a heavy scale in the last hour, with approximately 2½ million shares changing hands for the entire session.

An overnight advance of about $1.50 a bale in cotton futures, which was extended to $2.60 in late dealings, attracted renewed interest to that commodity. Wheat was also in demand at a gain of ⅞ to 1 cent.

Stocks pushed forward persistently throughout the day and closed at their best levels, which in a great many instances were the highs for the upswing. Case Threshing enjoyed a sharp rise toward the close, reflecting the movement in wheat. International Harvester followed.

Steel was a feature throughout the session, moving up about 3 points to a new peak for the move.

Raid a Moran Brewery on Farm; Seize 4

A brewery at Loon Lake, near Antioch, said to be the property of George [Bugs] Moran, one time Chicago gang leader, was raided yesterday by prohibition agents. More than 10,000 gallons of beer, a truck and two passenger automobiles were seized, and four arrests were made. The brewery, one mile from the Bluff lake home of Moran, furnished beer for the Fox Lake resort section and Lake county, agents said.

Frank, Fred, and Peter Wolf, brothers, and William Yopp, son of Mrs. Laura Yopp, on whose farm the brewery is situated, were taken into custody by agents. They were held in $1,000 bonds by United States Commissioner Walker and their cases continued until Sept. 30 to allow investigators to seek evidence to connect Moran with the beer plant.

Uses Plane in Search.

The brewery raid ended a three weeks' search in which an airplane was used, agents said. Three weeks ago a group of agents went to Lake county with the avowed intention of finding the brewery of Moran. Numerous raids were made, but no brewery was found. A week ago, Administrator M. L. Harney surveyed the territory by airplane. He was followed by 20 agents who made a thorough search of the territory.

The dry agents found the brewing equipment in a barn. Fred and Peter Wolf were icing a tank of beer, aided by William Yopp. Frank Wolf arrived while the prisoners were being questioned and was arrested. Mrs. Yopp, who is 60 years old, was questioned and released.

Puts Blame on Mother.

The Wolf brothers denied connection with the brewery. They said they operated an ice business in Antioch and delivered ice to the barn. Young Yopp denied knowledge of the beer business, but said his mother "knew all about it."

Moran, according to underworld gossip, commands the vice, slot machine, and booze rackets in Lake county. A year ago it was rumored that he was paid $500 a week by the Capone syndicate to stay out of Chicago and make no trouble.

13 OUT FOR CONGRESS IN MISSOURI PLEDGE MODIFICATION VOTES

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Missouri's 13 Democratic nominees for representative in congress have announced they will vote for modification of the Volstead act and for submission of prohibition repeal.

Five of those signing an agreement to stand on the national platform plank had the indorsement of the Anti-Saloon league in the recent primary. They are Representatives Jacob L. Milligan, C. C. Dickinson, M. A. Romjue, Ralph F. Lozier and Clarence Cannon.

The eight present members of congress who were renominated also promised to vote for such legislation at the December session. This year all the Missouri congressmen will be elected from the state at large.

The agreement of the candidates reads in part:

"We believe that in public interest this question should be settled as soon as possible, so the undivided attention of the congress and the people may be directed toward the solution of economic problems which vitally affect our national welfare."

Violent Quake Hits Town in Midst of Storm; 3 Die

Rubio Quits; Rodriguez to Head Mexico

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 2.—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio has resigned, it was announced tonight by Gen. Juan José Rios, minister of the interior. The resignation will be presented to the chamber of deputies tomorrow. It was said that Rubio will go to the United States to obtain medical treatment, probably at Rochester, Minn.

Gen. Abelardo Rodriguez, minister of war, has been prominently mentioned as the choice of congress to succeed Rubio as president.

The announcement of the resignation was:

"The president of the republic held a cabinet meeting at Chapultepec castle at 5 p. m. today at which were present the cabinet ministers and the departmental chiefs, the attorney general and the federal prosecuting attorney.

"The president at this meeting advised those present the text of his resignation, which will be presented to congress. Congress will receive the presidential resignation tomorrow from the ministry."

Earlier in the day the entire cabinet resigned when the ministry learned that President Rubio intended asking congress for an indefinite leave of absence. Political differences as well as illness preceded the president's decision to ask for an indefinite leave.

Calles Remains Aloof.

Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, strong man of Mexico, remained aloof, refusing to sanction any disturbance within the ranks of the revolutionary party.

The political reason advanced for President Rubio's resignation was his desire to allow the national revolutionary party freedom in carrying out its policies. President Rubio has had many differences with Gen. Calles, former president and war minister.

Upon the acceptance of Rubio's resignation the chamber of deputies and the senate, meeting together, are expected to elect Rodriguez president to serve out the unexpired trm until Nov. 30, 1934.

Rodriguez, who is 43, preferred to wait until the next presidential election, in December, 1934, and stand for election for a six year term, but was drafted when Finance Minister Alberto J. Pani withdrew his candidacy.

Gen. Miguel M. Acosta, minister of communications, probably will succeed Rodriguez as war minister.

EX-MAYOR MAY RUN ON NOV. 8; UP TO THE COURT

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—A new mayor—one who works in his shirt sleeves and rides the subway—sat in city hall today as Jimmy Walker sulked in a Park avenue apartment awaiting the political reaction to his resignation under fire and planning a vindication campaign for reelection.

Joseph V. McKee, who by virtue of his former position as president of the board of aldermen automatically became mayor, was content to call himself "acting mayor" this afternoon as a cloud of legal complications gathered in the heat haze.

The angry resignation of Mr. Walker has thrown this city into a political snarl in which not only the mayoralty but the governorship, and even the presidency, may be involved in a short but bitter campaign this fall.

Obstacles to Be Hurdled.

To Mr. Walker his resignation last night was only a preparation for a holiday, for he confidently expects to be back at his desk after the general elections Nov. 8. There are, however, legal and political obstacles to be hurdled. Only the state Supreme court can decide whether Mr. Walker may enter the November election, and Tammany itself is not solidly agreed that former Mayor Walker is worth the sacrificing of a Democratic presidential candidate.

The corridors and offices of city hall buzzed with excitement as events moved swiftly toward a climax. The new chief executive had hardly taken over his municipal task and pledged a slashing drive for city economy before the office of the mayor was certified as "vacant" and the board of elections ordered to meet on Tuesday to decide whether it shall be filled by a special election on Nov. 8. City Clerk Michael J. Cruise, to whom Mayor Walker tendered his resignation, certified to the board that the office was "vacant."

No Certainty Walker Will Win.

"As a general policy," said President S. Howard Cohen of the election board, "the board does not question the force or validity of certificates from the secretary of state or city clerk certifying to vacancies."

Thus swiftly and smoothly did it become almost a certainty that New York City will elect a new mayor on Nov. 8. But it is no certainty that it will be Mr. Walker.

Just at the hour that Jimmy Walker might have been sitting in the Albany executive chamber listening to charges of corruption before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt he was in his Mayfair apartment pulling every string to make Tammany bolt Mr. Roosevelt and return him to the office he was about to be removed from.

McCooey Is Wavering.

All the aces in the Tammany deck, however, are not held by Mr. Walker. John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, remarked this afternoon—ominously enough—that "it isn't fully decided yet whether Mayor Walker will run for reelection this coming election.

"As we understand it," continued Mr. McCooey, "Mr. Walker will have to be selected by the county committees in the various counties making up the city. This move on the part of the mayor was so sudden that we have to give the matter considerable thought before proceeding."

In an effort to patch up the Democratic feud that makes it doubtful that Gov. Roosevelt can carry New York state in the presidential election, John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, and Mr. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, are known to have conferred with Gov. Roosevelt on Wednesday. They received no assurance that he would dismiss the Walker charges and turned their attention to the New York City executive on Thursday. They are said to have pledged their support to Mr. Walker and indorsed his resignation maneuver despite Mr. McCooey's wavering today.

Move to Replace Farley.

Meanwhile Gov. Roosevelt was attacked from another vantage point here when the movement to displace James A. Farley, the national chairman as New York state chairman gained headway in Tammany circles. Mr. Farley had no comment to make. Curry and the Manhattan Tammany organization are expected to be solidly behind Jimmy, but up in the Bronx—it is another matter. The Bronx Democrats are strong for their fellow resident, Mr. McKee. There may be loose bearings in the Tammany machine's drive to outmaneuver the reform movement in New York City.

Meanwhile from Albany came the information that Gov. Roosevelt had closed the Walker trial in silence, declining to reply to the resigning mayor's tirade, in which he charged he was "being lynched."

Here in New York City Samuel Seabury, who has plied charge upon charge on Walker's head, declared the mayor's quitting under fire was nothing more than "a plea of guilty."

Curtin a Bit Puzzled.

John J. Curtin, the former mayor's doughty little lawyer, remained out of his office in the Woolworth tower most of the day. Mr. Curtin, his associates said, was a bit puzzled about it all, having been prepared to continue the fight in Albany this afternoon.

Mr. McKee did not bother with taking the oath of office this morning when he arrived at city hall. The charter provides that he automatically assumes the office. The job is no novelty to him, as he has served as acting mayor many times during the vacation wanderings throughout the world of former Mayor Walker.

Mr. McKee started in as if he meant business by telling callers his first act would be to cut the 1933 city budget to the limit. At noon he presided over a special meeting of the board of estimate and it was shortly afterward that he began to refer to himself as a "temporary mayor."

"It is with sorrow and regret that I take up my duties as acting mayor," said Mr. McKee, "and I need and invite the cooperation of all our citizens to the end that we have an efficient, economical and honest administration of our city's affairs."

Call on Mayor McKee.

Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly, who recently testified for Mr. Walker at Albany, called on Mr. McKee, as did Controller Charles W. Berry. It is not likely that the change in mayors will create any great change in city affairs immediately.

The technical question of whether Mr. Walker legally may run for reelection in November is certain to be put up to the courts.

Tammany men felt certain that if the board of elections does not seek a judicial determination some opponent of Mr. Walker will do so, although Curry and Mr. Walker are known to have been told by John T. Dooling, chairman of the Tammany law commission, that a special election can be held.

The home rule amendment of the state constitution provides in article 12, sectiond 6, that "all elections of city officers. . . except to fill vacancies, shall be held . . . in an odd-numbered year."

That qualifying phrase, "except to fill vacancies," is believed to legalize a special election in November.

Abrahar. S. Gilbert, an authority on the election law, has been quoted as saying that, Mr. McKee having automatically succeeded Mr. Walker, no vacancy exists and Mr. McKee is privileged to serve out the remainder of Mr. Walker's term.

Lawyers Point to Two Rulings.

Democratic lawyers who have studied the situation, however, point to two decisions of the Court of Appeals to prove that Mr. McKee can serve only to the end of the year and that a special election must be held in November to choose a mayor for 1933.

One decision was made in the case of the successor of an Albany mayor who claimed the right to serve the unexpired term of his predecessor, who had died. The court held he could serve only to the end of the year. A similar decision was made when Frank Dowling in 1916 succeeded to the presidency of the board of aldermen.

In these cases, it was pointed out, the automatic succession to office was construed as an "appointment" under article 10, section 5, of the constitution, which provides that no person appointed to fill a vacancy shall hold office longer than the commencement of the political year next succeeding the first annual election after the vacancy occurs.

Might Help Roosevelt.

The state and national political aspects of the Walker tangle were the topic of conversation at city hall this afternoon. It was pointed out that paradoxically Mr. Walker, if permitted to force a city election simultaneously with the presidential vote, actually may help Gov. Roosevelt. Without a city election many Tammany anti-Roosevelt voters would not register. A city election means heavy registration and heavy voting. The Democrats in New York City tend to vote the ticket straight, for not all of them know how to split a ticket on the voting machines.

Political advisers here speaking off the record hold that Mr. Walker could ride easily into office if he succeeds in getting his name on the November ticket. If, however, Walker is compelled to wait until a year from November for the regular mayoralty election, he would have little chance of ever getting back into office. Voters are forgetful, it was explained, and by that time Mr. McKee would have built up his own machine.

The figure of Al Smith also fits into the picture, together with that of Herbert H. Lehmann, present lieutenant governor. Gov. Roosevelt actively is supporting the candidacy of Lehmann for governor. Tammany Hall is holding back, and Smith is likewise silent, although friends have said that they believed he eventually would back Lehmann. It is now deemed possible, however, that the Tammany and Walker in open war with Roosevelt, that they may extend their opposition to Lehmann. In such event the Tammany ticket might suffer serious reprisal from the huge Jewish element.

In any event the ultimate attitude of Al Smith looms as an important factor in the local as well as national political situation. Few believe that Smith would go so far as to openly support Walker for reelection, yet the former governor repeatedly has avoided the lending of a direct hand to Roosevelt's personal campaign for the presidency. All told, the local political situation is badly complexed and only time will unscramble the mixup.

Meantime the Republicans are jubilant over the enforced resignation of Mayor Walker and the consequent split in the Democratic camp. They are only claiming that there is no longer any doubt that New York state's 47 electoral votes will be found in the Hoover column, and they are saying further that Roosevelt cannot possibly win without the Empire state.

G. O. P. Leaders Confer.

W. Kingsland Macy, state Republican chairman, and United States Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, who is in charge of the Hoover campaign in the east, conferred during the day, but declined to discuss the Walker case.

While Republican leaders would not talk for publication on possible candidates against Walker—in case the Tammany forces get his name on the November ballots—party workers appeared to favor a fusion movement as the logical thing in a situation like the present.

Walker Ordered to Rest.

Rumors that former Mayor Walker is in such ill health that he cannot make a campaign were denied today by Dr. William Schroeder Jr., his physician. Dr. Schroeder said he would advise the ex-mayor to go away "for several weeks' rest." He denied, however, that Mr. Walker was suffering from heart disease or anemia.

"His blood pressure is not so good—not as good as I would like for it to be," said the physician.

Mr. Walker was the first mayor of New York to resign under charges. Several mayors of the city have resigned, but none has stepped down while under fire. None has resigned in recent years.

By his resignation before completing his defense of the Hofstadter committee charges former Mayor Walker joins a long list of other "victims" of the Seabury investigations.

Wonderful Tin Box.

Thomas W. Farley, sheriff of New York county, was removed by Gov. Roosevelt on evidence produced by Mr. Seabury that Farley had failed to account for a quarter of a million dollars in a "wonderful tin box."

Magistrate Jesse Silberman was removed by the Appellate division upon Seabury evidence. Magistrate Jean Norris went out the same way just before she started on a European jaunt.

Thirteen vice squad detectives were dismissed from the police force on evidence produced by Mr. Seabury.

Roosevelt Ends Walker Trial; Turns Attention to Campaign

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—In exactly one hundred and two words, crispy and pithily put in less than a minute's time, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today pulled down the curtain on the trial of James J. Walker, who is now the ex-mayor of New York.

Had it not been for a handful of newspaper correspondents gathered to witness the windup of the sensational hearing, the governor would have addressed only the official stenographer and a host of empty chairs, the seats which, during the tumultuous days of the hearing had been occupied by Mayor Walker, his lawyers, and their staff, and by Samuel Seabury, the Walker Nemesis, and his staff.

Smile Is Missing.

The props for the show were still in place but, except for the governor and his two legal advisers, M. Maldwin Fertig and Martin Conboy, not a principal in the drama showed up and the terse 100 word finale was enacted by the governor, in solo, to a nearly empty house.

The governor walked into the hearing room, unsmiling, sank into his high backed chair, and without a glance about him read from papers on his desk as follows:

"I desire to read into the record the following telegram received by me this morning:

"'Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt—In view of the resignation of the Honorable James J. Walker, mayor of the city of New York, we will not be present in the executive chambers at 1:30 o'clock today for the scheduled hearing.' Letter follows.

"'CURTIN & GLYNN.'

"The Honorable James J. Walker has resigned his office as mayor of the city of New York. His action in so doing has terminated the proceedings pending before me as governor of this state, and I therefore declare the hearings closed."

Ends Sensational "Trial."

Immediately after the session there was a flux of conjectures as to why the governor had not replied to the charges of Mr. Walker, who, in resigning, had accused Mr. Roosevelt of being grossly unfair in his conduct of the hearings. Neither had Gov. Roosevelt made any reply to an opinion written by Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley, who upheld Walker's charges that the governor was proceeding unlawfully and unfairly.

Several reasons for Roosevelt's silence were advanced, but those closest to him declared that his major purpose in clipping off the whole matter so abruptly was to avoid getting into an alley cat discussion with the wise cracking Jimmy Walker.

Turns to Campaign.

The governor is greatly relieved that the windup of the Walker case has now left him practically free to pursue his campaign. He had been up against the possibility of abandoning part of his western trip, because he was fearful that the Walker case would drag on, but today his staff was busy preparing for a start on the western invasion, as originally scheduled, on Sept. 12. His first talk on this trip will be on farm relief at Topeka, Kas., on Sept. 14.

Tomorrow the governor is making two short talks, one before a convention of young Democrats at Schenectady, and another to be delivered at a Democratic rally at Bridgeport, Conn.

WALKER HEARING AT ALBANY WILL COST CITY OF N. Y. $100,000

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—A financial after effect of the Walker removal proceedings, in the form of a bill estimated at from $60,000 to $100,000, still is to be felt by New York City.

The $60,000 estimate was contained in dispatches from Albany yesterday. These said that as soon as the costs of Mr. Walker's prolonged trial are determined, a statement will be sent to Controller Berry for payment under a section of the public officers' law. This section was interpreted at Albany as rendering the city liable for all "reasonable expenses" incurred in removal proceedings.

The $100,000 estimate came from local officials. Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly declined to say whether he believes the city could contest the payment.

RAILROAD MEN TO FIGHT PROPOSED 20 PCT. WAGE CUT

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The 1,750,000 railroad workers of the United States will fight with every resource a proposed 20 per cent wage reduction, according to labor leaders here who canvassed the sentiment of the 21 unions comprising the Railway Labor Executives' association.

The union leaders not only voiced sharp disappointment with the agreement made some months ago at Chicago under which 10 per cent is being deducted from the rail men's wages as from February last until Feb. 1 next year, but are "amazed" that the roads should come forward now with a demand that employes double the sacrifice they reluctantly agreed to last January.

Instead of adding to their forces, as they had promised to do if at all possible, the roads have laid off an additional 100,000 workers since Feb. 1, union men asserted. They added that 700,000 rail workers were now unemployed and that the remaining 1,050,000 employed were mainly on part time.

Unanimous opposition against further wage cuts was expressed today at the offices of the Brotherhood of Railway Enginemen and Firemen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

G. O. P. ALDERMEN BLOCK BERWYN COUNCIL SESSION

It may be a long time before the council of the city of Berwyn has a meeting. Seven aldermen, Republicans, announced at a caucus last night that they were not going to attend any sessions until Mayor Frank Novotny and seven Democratic aldermen give up the idea that they are going to move $60,000 of city funds from one bank to another.

It requires eight councilmen to form a quorum and the secessionists asserted that if the mayor attempts to subpoena them, as he has threatened to do, they will all leave the city.

The $60,000 is now in a bank, according to the Republicans, which furnishes a bond to protect their deposits, while the bank favored by the mayor will furnish the bond only at extra expense to the city. They added that although the mayor has maintained their stand is holding up the municipal pay roll, the money cannot be used for pay rolls anyway, because it was raised in special assessments and must be used for the specified purpose.

WALKER GUILTY, HE RUNS AWAY, SEABURY SAYS

Insists Mayor Can't Deny Block Enriched Him.

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Samuel Seabury, the man whose investigation of ex-Mayor James J. Walker's régime culminated in the mayor's resignation, issued a statement late today in which he declared that "the elimination of Mr. Walker as mayor of this city is a distinct victory for higher standards of public life."

Mr. Seabury highly praised Gov. Roosevelt for his conduct of the removal trial of Mr. Walker.

"I know the pressure to which Gov. Roosevelt must have been subjected with a view to inducing him to save a guilty and recreant mayor at the expense of the public interest," said Mr. Seabury.

Praises Roosevelt's Firmness.

"His firmness in standing up against this pressure and the fair and thorough manner in which he conducted the hearing have won for him the admiration of fair-minded people throughout the nation. Throughout these hearings he proved himself a worthy successor in the governorship to Samuel J. Tilden and Grover Cleveland."

Commenting on Mayor Walker's sudden resignation, Mr. Seabury said:

"It is not surprising that Mr. Walker should have resigned. He had no defense; it was conclusively proved that he enriched himself as the result of his mayoralty. He simply could not explain. When the governor put pointed questions to him he stammered and stuttered and made almost incoherent replies.

"The whole odious picture revealed by the investigation of the affairs of Mayor Walker shows him to have been recreant in every obligation of his high office. He betrayed the people of this city whom he was pledged to serve.

Did Not Call Witnesses.

"It is significant that he [Mayor Walker] did not call Sisto, McKeon, Hastings, or his own brother, Dr. Walker, who split fees with physicians appointed by the mayor's corporation counsel."

Declaring that the mayor sought "vindication" only by doing everything he could to prevent an inquiry into his official conduct, Mr. Seabury said:

"From time out of mind the guilty, when faced with judgment, have either run away or sought to confuse the issue by attributing bias and bad motives to their judges. Mr. Walker has done both.

"His conduct would not stand the light of day. He knew it, and, confronted by the evidence, he ran away, laying down as he ran a smoke screen of vilification and abuse of the governor."

As to the so-called "charges," Mr. Seabury said:

"He cannot deny that he got the $26,500 of Sisto bonds after Sisto had spoken to him about the taxicab situation.

Receives Letter of Credit.

"He cannot deny that the day before he signed the Equitable franchise he received a $10,000 letter of credit, paid for in cash by J. Allan Smith, the New York representative of the Equitable Coach syndicate and the custodian of its promotion fund.

"Neither can he deny that he sponsored and forced through the franchise to the Equitable Coach company, which had no financial resources and whose principal asset was Senator John A. Hastings, its political contact man, whose 'boy friend' was the mayor.

"He cannot deny that while he was abroad he drew a draft for $3,000 on a bank at which he had no account and that this draft was paid to the bank by the same J. Allan Smith who paid for the letter of credit.

"He cannot deny that Block enriched him to the extent of nearly a quarter of a million dollars and that during the same period Block became the half owner of a corporation which sought and procured the approval of the engineer of the board of transportation of a tile suitable for use in subway construction."

CHARGE GARNER AIDED ENTRY OF MEXICAN LABOR

G. O. P. Quotes Plea of Candidate in House.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Speaker John N. [Cactus Jack] Garner, Democratic nominee for Vice President, was charged by the Republican national committee yesterday with having been friendly to the importation of Mexican peon labor to compete with American labor.

JOHN N. GARNER.

A mimeographed sheet sent out to Republican speakers in the various states from Palmer house headquarters, containing "build-up" material for their speeches, further declared that Mr. Garner at one time appeared to look with complacence upon the idea of Texas sheriffs serving as "Simon Legrees" in getting work out of the Mexicans.

"Garner's Labor Record."

The sheet distributed by the Republican publicity office carried the caption, "A Slant at Garner's Labor Record," and it read:

"It is interesting to check back on some of the immigration and labor activities of 'Pork Barrel' Garner. At a hearing before the committee on immigration and naturalization in the house of representatives, beginning Jan. 28, 1926, Garner, pleading for the free entry of Mexican peon labor into the United States, said to the committee:

"'As I said a while ago, those are not what you call peon Mexicans. The whole family comes over [to the United States] and works, and all the children will get out there and pick the onions and set out the onions, and they will put up a little shack—they do not even put up a house. They throw a little brush around the place and that is their camping place. And when they get through with it, if they have as much as $25, which is 50 pesos in Mexico, they go back to Mexico.'

Work for Lower Wages.

"The trouble has always been, and Garner knows it, or ought to know it, that these peons do not go back to Mexico. They get into this country and work for one-third, or less, the wages of American labor. We find them in congested groups in towns like Gary, Ind., and in railroad centers like Des Moines and Omaha.

"In fact, the whole United States is dotted with colonies of these people unloaded onto this country with the consent and by the help of such men as Garner.

"This fact was called to Garner's attention at that time and he replied: 'I do not know about that, Mr. Chairman. Of course, we have no trouble like that in our territory. . . . It is the sheriff that goes down and picks them out and tells them to do something and they do it.'

Favors Child Labor.

"Garner, according to his own statement before this committee, wanted to import Mexican fathers, mothers and little children and put them all to work, including the little children, at starvation wages which he told the committee would be from $25 to $40 for the whole family.

"He proposed further, that taxpayers put a sheriff on the job as a modern Simon Legree to see that these poor devils did a good day's work for little or no pay."

Secretary Ray L. Wilbur of the interior department dropped in at headquarters on his way to Washington from a tour of the Pacific coast and the national park system. He refrained from public comment on the California primaries, where Senator Samuel Shortridge, an administration senator, was defeated by Tallant Tubbs of San Francisco, a dripping wet, but he put California in the Hoover column in talking with the national committeemen.

A Michigan group told headquarters they look for a stiff fight, but expect to carry the state for Hoover. Howard C. Lawrence of Lansing, state chairman; Mrs. Jacob Steketee of Grand Rapids, national committeewoman, and James E. Davidson of Bay City, chairman of the Michigan executive committee, conferred with the leaders at the Palmer house.

The old elm tree on the east side of what was Cass street, now Wabash avenue, between Huron and Superior streets, in whose shade the children of many early Chicago millionaires used to play, was uprooted yesterday.

Its roots were loosened and then it was pulled down by means of a tractor and ropes fastened to the top branches, because it interfered with the laying of a curbstone in the widening of Wabash avenue now under way. Today its broad spreading branches and thick trunk will be cut up and carted off as refuse.

In Way of New Curb Line.

The big elm grew directly in the line of the new curb as indicated by specifications, according to the superintendent of the project, J. J. Eiff. He had thought it possible to build the curb around it to save the tree but submitted the matter to the city engineer's office, where it was ruled the tree must go, he said. A half hour after it was down a few boys reared on treeless city streets hailed the old tree's death by gleefully climbing on its fallen branches.

Probably 50 years old, according to persons in the neighborhood, the tree was one of the last of the neighborhood's landmarks to give way to changing times.

Half a block to the north of it stands the old red brick home, on the northeast corner of Superior and Wabash, which in the '80s housed the Edward Blairs. Later it was the home of Chester M. Dawes, railroad attorney. Now a sign, "Rooms," is visible in one of its windows.

Rumsey Elms Long Departed.

The elms in front of the old Julian Rumsey three story brick home, fronting south on Huron street at the corner of Cass, long since were cut down. The elm which now lies extending out across the street shaded the Rumseys' back yard. The Rumsey home, which was later occupied by the Winterbothams, is now a tea room. Rumsey, who at one time served as mayor of Chicago, built it in 1874.

Across the street, on the northwest corner of Cass and Huron, is the old stone mansion where the James C. Peasleys once lived, now used to house a commercial laboratory. The daughter is now Mrs. Frederic A. Delano of Washington, D. C.

The shade of the aged tree used to fall on the yard of the Quigley Preparatory seminary, the building now used for the chancery of the archdiocese of Chicago. A block to the south, on Cass, stood the home of the Henry H. Porters, than one of the show places of Chicago, on the west side of the street. This house has gone now, as has a little brick house next to it on the corner of Cass and Huron, which inspired the description of the heroine's home in "The Pit," by Frank Norris, it is said.

Old Residents Recalled.

Around the corner from the friendly elm, and next door to the old Rumsey home, on Huron, lived Cyrus McCormick II, in the massive red brick house still owned by the family. George Rumsey, a brother of Julian, built the house next to that, on the northwest corner of Huron and Rush streets, which was later bought by Cyrus McCormick.

Mrs. William Blair then came to live in it, to be near her niece, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, who lived at 711 Rush street. After Mrs. Blair the house was occupied by John Alden Carpenter, who still lives there, and the late Mrs. Carpenter. Next door to Mrs. Adams lived Henry W. King; the father of Mrs. Cyrus Bentley. This house, on the northeast corner of Rush and Huron, is now used as a fraternity house.

In this same block lived the Joseph G. Colemans at 712 Rush street and the Watson Blairs, in the heavy red brick and stone house at the southwest corner of Rush and Superior streets. Miss Caroline Kirkland made her home in this block as a young woman. In the block to the south of this lives Harold F. McCormick, in the old McCormick mansion, almost the only home in the neighborhood which has withstood time and change.

MINER STRIKERS VOTE TO SECEDE; MAP NEW UNION

Four Peabody Coal Mines Ordered Closed.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Cutting away from their powerful parent body, delegates claiming to represent a majority of striking Illinois coal miners decided at Gillespie today to divorce themselves from the United Mine Workers of America and form a new union.

Hard upon the heels of this climax to the bitter mine dispute came the decision here to close the four Peabody mines—"for an indefinite period," in the words of W. C. Argus, the company's general superintendent, in the Midland tract.

As a hundred diggers left the shafts of two of the mines which have been staggering along for almost two weeks with skeleton crews, and passed between lanes of watchful pickets, Argus instructed his superintendents to blow "no work tomorrow" signals on the whistles at all four shafts.

Miners Issue Statement.

Brought together at Gillespie yesterday in joint protest against acceptance of the $5 wage scale, which their state officials negotiated for them, the strikers made their decision through the issuance of this one sentence statement:

"We propose that a definite break with officials of the U. M. W. of A. be immediately carried out, and we propose at once to set up an apparatus for formation of a new union."

The vote on the action was unanimous. Illinois locals sent 250 delegates to the meeting and Indiana twenty-two. Each group claimed to represent 75 per cent of the miners in the two states.

"Rank and File" Acts.

The men who broke with the international union were not officials of the 240 locals of Illinois, but the "rank and file" of workers—the diggers, machine men, and hoisters, those who actually produce the coal. They propose an immediate conference with the Illinois coal mine operators to arbitrate a new wage "satisfactory to both interests."

That they were taking a radical step was disavowed by the delegates to the meeting. They intend clinging close to the purposes of the U. M. W. of A., they said, and split only "in order to save the union."

Officers are Assailed.

Officials of the United Mine Workers were found guilty by the meeting of usurping power, breaking the morale of the membership, taking complete control of conventions and conferences, and virtually naming officers of local unions. Most feeling was expressed against John H. Walker, president of district twelve [the state of Illinois] U. M. W. of A.

Walker and John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W. of A., favored acceptance of the $5 scale and it was submitted twice to the union membership of the state. The first referendum lost by a substantial majority. The second was then taken but the ballots were stolen, the officials said, before they had been counted. The miners hooted this assertion and claimed that the referendum showed the proposition to have lost just as decisively the second time as it had in the first vote.

A policy committee was appointed to draft policies for the new union this afternoon and it is expected to report back tomorrow.

Conference Fails.

Influential citizens of Taylorville had hoped to bring about arbitration conferences between the Peabody company and the strikers today, feeling that the continued loss to the community of a $15,000 daily pay roll was causing irreparable harm. Consequently Dr. J. W. Spresser, president of the Association of Commerce, invited representatives of the miners, the company, union officials, and leading citizens to a round table conference, seeking to have the issues brought clearly to light.

All save the miners responded, so the conference was short lived. "You can't have a wedding without a bride," remarked one citizen ruefully as he left the meeting place.

On behalf of the miners it was explained that their leaders were in Gillespie and that those left at home had not had sufficient notice to meet and decide whether to attend.

SLAYING WIDOW LEAVES CITY TO VISIT RELATIVES

Following her acquittal on a murder charge by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court, Mrs. Dorothy Pollak slipped away early yesterday morning for a visit with relatives out of Chicago. Since July 27, when she shot to death her middle aged husband, Joseph Pollak, in their home at 1936 Garfield boulevard, the young widow had been held in the county jail. Her trial, conducted without a jury, ended on Thursday with her acquittal.

When she was released from the jail, Mrs. Pollak went to the home of her mother, Mrs. Victoria Myaza, 2200 West 21st place, announcing that she would make her home there, and that she would go at once to visit the grave of "poor Joe." But she abandoned the visit to the cemetery in favor of a trip to Fox Lake, Wis.

Her attorney, W. W. O'Brien, said yesterday that she probably would return to Chicago within a few days to file her claim for the property of her late husband, amounting at his death to approximately $5,000 in cash and securities.

LAWYERS TRADE EPITHETS IN WAR OF LAUNDRYMEN

Debate Breaks Up Without Progress.

A name calling contest between Attorneys Edward R. Litsinger and Aaron Sapiro, counsel for rival groups of laundry owners, brought to a riotous end a conference yesterday in the state's attorney's office, called for the purpose of investigating a difference in wage contracts granted the two associations by Local 712 of the Laundry and Dyehouse Drivers' union.

E. R. LITSINGER.

Attorney Litsinger, with Attorney Leo B. Lowenthal, attended the conference as counsel for the recently organized Laundry and Dry Cleaners' Association of Cook county, the so-called independent laundry owners. Attorney Sapiro, former czar of the laundry and dry cleaning business in New York, is now counsel for the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, the "regular group."

Attorney Litsinger opened the exchange of personalities by charging that Attorney Sapiro is getting a salary of $50,000 a year from his association. Attorney Sapiro retorted with an invitation to Attorney Litsinger to tell something about the famous $50,000 faro swindle in which Attorney Litsinger and Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, then collector of internal revenue, were victimized in Springfield a little more than a year ago.

Lawyers Swap Epithets.

Both lawyers became more angry as the discussion progressed and epithets began to float over the transom of the office of Assistant State's Attorneys Charles E. Lounsbury and Edward Duffucy, where the conference was held. The meeting broke up in disorder.

Before the uproar started the two prosecutors were told one version of why the union had granted the "regular" laundry owners association a new wage scale of $30.50 a week for drivers, while refusing a similar scale to the independents, who are still compelled to pay $40.50 a week to union drivers.

The union has a wage contract at $40.50 a week with all laundry owners, it was stated, running until 1934. The Chicago Laundry Owners association asked a wage cut in view of depressed business conditions, and the $10 a week cut was granted after the employers had made concessions as to working hours, it was stated. Chief of these was abolishment of the 20 per cent discount to cash and carry customers, calculated to make more business for the drivers, and a two hour reduction in the length of the working day.

Independents to Cut Pay.

The independents, it was charged, demanded the same wage cut as was granted to the "regular" group, but refused to make any concessions to the union in return, it was said. They have told their drivers that they may expect to get the lower rate of pay, while working under the old conditions, beginning Monday, Mr. Lounsbury was told.

The union, in reply, has voted a strike against the independent laundries. Mr. Lounsbury reached union officials by telephone and they agreed to hold up the strike call pending another meeting Tuesday in the state's attorney's office.

This week she took her six children to Durand, Wis., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baur. While she was there her brother, Antone, 28, also was drowned.

35 Boats Parade

More than 20,000 spectators stood on the shores of the west lagoon in Jackson park last night to witness the annual "Venetian night" of the south park system. A fleet of thirty-five boats illuminated with Japanese lanterns and candles encircled the wooded island and passed in review before the park commissioners.

Among the figures on the floats were a 12-foot swan, a huge elephant, a replica of the Chicago skyline and oriental pagodas. Music for the carnival came from the radios on the new electric gondolas and banjoes and accordions on the floats.

The floats represented 12 months' work by 1,500 amateur craftsmen in the eighteen small park fieldhouses of the system. R. V. Pierce directed the program, which is an outgrowth of the park lantern parade that started in 1924. The floats were transferred to the water last year.

G. E. Q. Johnson Talks to Dakota Bar on Crime

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Federal Judge George E. Q. Johnson of Chicago, who, as district attorney prosecuted Al Capone, said in an address here tonight that organized crime and racketeering can be wiped out by striking at the source of gangsters' incomes. Judge Johnson, speaking before the annual convention of the North Dakota Bar association, said that the answer to the gangster problem was to take the "easy money" out of racketeering, adding that a gangster shorn of wealth is a beaten criminal.

THOUSANDS FLEE FROM HOMES IN TEXAS FLOODS

Eagle Pass, Tex., Sept. 2.—(AP)—One thousand residents of Eagle Pass and an estimated 12,000 to 16,000 of the population of the Mexican town of Piedras Negras were driven from their homes today as the Rio Grande and other streams in southwest Texas went on a rampage.

Three-fourths of Piedras Negras, opposite here, was under water. Most of the 23,000 inhabitants had taken refuge on hill sides. Scores of adobe houses crumbled and fell in ruins.

A virtual cloudburst this afternoon, with rainfall of 3 inches in an hour impeded rescue work. In Eagle Pass twelve blocks in the residence district and part of the business district were inundated.

After reaching a peak stage of 52 feet, 10 feet higher than the record mark in the disastrous flood of 1922, the Rio Grande began to subside here. In some sections the rain in the past few days exceeded ten inches, while virtually all of southwest Texas had more than four inches.

An iron bridge over Devils river was carried away, severing a railroad line leading west of Del Rio. Part of the international bridge linking Del Rio with the Mexican city of Villa Acuna also was torn out.

RARE COINCIDENCES MARK LIVES OF TWO UNRELATED KINNES

Watertown, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Between Harry C. Kinne, 52, Wilmette, Ill., lawyer, and Harry C. Kinne, 50, Watertown business man, there is no blood relationship and the two men had never before met, but when the Kinne from Wilmette called on the Kinne of Watertown today, this rarity of coincidence was disclosed.

They look enough alike to be taken for brothers, each has a son, named Harry C. Jr.; each has a daughter, Ruth; each has a brother, C. E.; each is a member of village or city council. The Watertown Kinne's son is a sophomore at Colgate, the Wilmette Kinne's son enters that institution as a freshman this month.

Some years ago the Wilmette Kinne's attention was called to a newspaper clipping chronicling the Watertown Kinne's election to the city council and a correspondence acquaintanceship was struck up, culminating in their meeting today.

POLICE PROBE POP INSTITUTE AFTER BOMBING

Its Agent, Known as Gang Member, Is Quizzed.

Police started an investigation last night into the activities of the Carbonated Beverage Institute of Chicago, 228 North La Salle street, which was formed three months ago with reputable business men behind it, and which has for its field agent Dave Ostran, 44 years old, alleged hoodlum organizer, who was once acquitted of a labor murder.

The inquiry is the result of the bombing, early Wednesday morning, of a food shop at 5040 West Madison street, which tried to handle carbonated soda pop manufactured by a concern which does not belong to the institute. Ostran, sought for questioning since then, surrendered at the detective bureau last night, and was examined by Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, Assistant State's Attorney Edward C. Duffucy, and Sergt. Michael Toohey of the bomb squad.

Recall Agent's Career.

Sergt. Toohey said that because of Ostran's past, he seemingly did not fit in with the apparently respectable background of the institute. Chief Shoemaker, holding similar views, added that he would look into reports that the institute was moving to boost the price of ginger ale in cabarets from a $1 minimum to $2.

Ostran told the police and Duffucy that he has been employed by the institute for ten weeks at a salary of $100 a week. The institute, he said, was created by several business men who put up $25,000. Of that capital $5,000 went for the office furnishings and rental, he said, leaving a working balance of $20,000 in the treasury.

"To Set Prices," He Says.

"The purpose of the institute is to control the soda pop industry and set prices," Ostran is reported to have admitted. "I'm supposed to straighten out disputes. There are 131 bottling companies in Chicago and I've already lined up 58 of them, who produce 90 per cent of the carbonated beverages in the city."

As an organizer Ostran is experienced, police say. He was known as one of the "Four Horsemen," a group of hoodlums actually five in number which included besides himself Danny Stanton, John Cherbo, James Mogley, and John [Mitters] Foley, the latter since slain. Ostran was active in the union troubles of the Checker Taxi company in 1924 and was tried with the "Four Horsemen" for the murder of Israel Rappaport. After his acquittal Ostran was identified with the Cleaners and Dyers' Institute and the Auto Wreckers' association.

Cause of the Inquiry.

The bombing which caused the inquiry occurred in William Rudin's market in Madison street. Rudin told police that the bombing was caused by his desires to buy soda pop from the Red Top Beverage company, 1521 South St. Louis avenue. Previously he had been buying from the Liberty Bottling company, 4401 West 22d street.

On Tuesday, Rudin said, he made a purchase from the Red Top concern. Not long afterward, he charged, a driver appeared with four hoodlums, and made him return the purchase. The Liberty company belongs to the institute; the Red Top is not a member.

TWENTY INJURED IN RIOT AT PEACE MEETING IN PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 2.—Peace broke out here tonight, resulting in injuries to twenty persons and 50 arrests. The incident occurred when nearly 10,000 people jammed into a hall to hear members of the international committee formed at the Amsterdam congress against imperialist war tell the results of their labors.

More than 2,000 policemen and republican guards, mobilized to keep order, clashed with the crowd swarming outside the hall unable to gain admittance. Rioting continued in the street and nearby cafés for several hours before calm was restored.

Maxim Gorki, chief attraction of the meeting, was unable to appear owing to a sudden illness which sent him to a clinic in Berlin, but those who were able to jam into the hall heard a dozen prominent radicals and pacifists, including Prof. H. W. L. Dana of Harvard university, who was recently denied entrance to England.

TRAIN VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

The body of a man about 45 years old, who was killed by an E. J. & E. train near Barrington, was identified yesterday as that of Felix Moreno, a railroad construction laborer.

CATCH AS CATCH CAN LAWMAKING PERILS SESSION

Shanahan Points to Lack of Approved Program.

committee" of nine legislators created during the state fair will meet before next Wednesday—the day the session convenes—and doubt is expressed that that committee can fix up an agreed program in a matter of a few hours.

Ryerson Is in East.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois emergency relief commission, is in the east, but is expected to be in Springfield with some of his associates on Wednesday. Corporation Counsel Sexton and Hayden Bell, who were asked to cooperate with De Witt Billman of the legislative reference bureau in the compilation of bills, will go to the capital on Tuesday.

But it is not expected that from such sources will originate a drive behind an established program. The emergency commission, for example, holds that the methods of providing more money is exclusively and entirely a matter for the legislature, with which it should not interfere.

SCHOOL RELIEF UNLIKELY

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Financial relief of the Chicago schools is one of the three chief reasons given by Gov. Emmerson for assembling the legislature in special session next Wednesday, but doubts were expressed yesterday whether the lawmakers would grant any substantial relief.

It is said that unless the attitude in local educational circles toward the general assembly changes there will be no pay day for the teachers and other school employés before the schools reopen Sept. 12.

Pay Day for City and Canal.

In contrast the employés of the city and sanitary district were provided with pay days yesterday and Thursday. City Controller Szymczak borrowed $1,900,000 from the First National, Continental Illinois, Harris Trust and Northern Trust banks. This was sufficient for the two weeks' pay of the first half of June.

From these same banks Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the sanitary district's finance committee, obtained $250,000 to pay employés for the month ending June 15.

The city and sanitary district still have some credit. They have been able to borrow for pay rolls, while the board of education has not been able to get the loan of a dollar on its 1932 tax anticipation warrants, except from the city's surplus funds.

"N. S. F." Law Bars Sale.

The chief obstacle standing in the way of the sale of the board's warrants is the "N. S. F. check" law, passed by the last session of the legislature and more recently declared valid by the state Supreme court. The new act says that "N. S. F. checks" may be used for the payment of taxes. This, according to Chapman & Cutler, security experts, makes it possible that actual cash received in payment of taxes might be insufficient to pay off all the tax anticipation warrants.

Therefore this law firm has refused to approve of the educational warrants of the school board. Without that O. K. the banks refuse to buy the board's educational warrants and City Controller Szymczak announced yesterday that the city's aggregate of funds cannot invest in them.

Bars Aid from City.

"The city would invest in these educational warrants," said the controller, "but it cannot purchase these warrants unless they can be sold later to liquidate securities and enable the city to use the cash in the various funds for the purposes designated by law."

In a word, the city controller says he cannot and will not permit the city's assets to become "frozen" in these educational warrants. To make these "N. S. F. checks" unobjectionable to Chapman & Cutler, Gov. Emmerson in his call permits the legislature to repeal that section of the statutes which allows these "checks" to be utilized in the payment of taxes.

The obstacle to this solution is the lack of support among the teachers for this proposed change in the law relating to "N. S. F. checks." Some of the leaders among the teachers are opposed to the change, others are noncommittal, and none of them have yet said they favor the change. This was the attitude yesterday among Chicago teachers. From downstate came information that the organized teachers, as represented by Robert C. Moore of the State Teachers' association, are opposed to modification of the law.

Teachers Influential.

Local legislators said the teachers have much more influence in the general assembly than have the banks and investment houses.

They predicted that the proposed change in the "N. S. F. check" law cannot obtain the necessary 102 votes, or two-thirds majority, in the house to make the change effective at once as an emergency measure, if the teachers are opposed to it. Without the 102 votes, a change in the law would not become effective until July 1, 1933, which would not be of any aid in the sale of 1932 tax warrants this fall to pay teachers' salaries.

In fact, two legislators consulted said that they think that it will be impossible to get 102 votes unless the teachers' organizations openly advocate a change in the "N. S. F. check" law.

"Why should I vote for the change," said one of them, "unless the teachers want it? The bankers are of no service to me."

School Board Inactive.

The members of the board of education have not yet indicated any eager desire for modification of the "N. S. F. check" law. Their law department has not been ordered to prepare any bill, although some of the lawyers probably will draft one. Although informed on Aug. 24 that Gov. Emmerson contemplated the calling of a special session, neither the board nor its officers made any request to Gov. Emmerson for a change in the law, until seven hours before the call was issued Thursday evening. Then Vice President James Heming-

Municipal Court Gets Latest Type Patrol Wagon

Room for Sixty

A newly designed "paddy wagon" with a capacity of 60 prisoners, was delivered yesterday to the Municipal court. It will be used for transporting prisoners between the central police and courts building at 11th and State streets and the county jail and Bridewell.

The new patrol wagon is 35 feet long, and cost $7,000. It is mounted on a truck chassis. Harry L. Williams, chief deputy bailiff of the Municipal court at the police building, was responsible for the design of the vehicle. Instead of a door at the rear through which police load prisoners into the old fashioned patrol wagons, the new wagon has a door at the side, just back of the driver's seat. This will enable the wagon crew to watch the door and eliminate escapes which occasionally took place from the old type of wagon when the rear door was insecurely fastened.

The seats inside run in "U" form around the two sides and rear of the wagon, instead of along the sides only. They are just as hard, however, as those in the old patrol wagons.

way sent a telegram asking that the call permit a change in the law, but did not suggest even the general character of the change he would sanction. The Federation of Women High School Teachers sent a telegram urging that "provisions for the relief of the Chicago teachers be included in the call," but did not recommend any change in the "N. S. F. check" law.

James Armstrong, special secretary of the Chicago Principals' club, said yesterday: "I am of the opinion that the legislature should not meddle with the N. S. F. act. I hope the board will issue the N. S. F. checks. That will put them in the hands of individuals, instead of in the hands of bankers. If the board issues the N. S. F. checks the bankers will buy the tax anticipation warrants."

Teachers Are Undecided.

Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers' federation said her organization probably would be guided by the advice of attorneys. She urged that the legislature "address itself to teachers' pay situation in Chicago," but was noncommittal on "N. S. F. checks."

Dorothy Weil, president of the Women High School Teachers, said that she could not imagine how the teachers can be paid unless the "N. S. F. check" law is modified, but she thought it foolish for the teachers to relinquish all of their rights under that law. She suggested that perhaps the bankers would be satisfied if a new law prohibits the school board from issuing more than a total of 75 per cent of its tax levy in "N. S. F. checks" and tax anticipation warrants combined.

TRAIL FORGERY CLEW IN HAWKING OF TAX WARRANTS

City Controller Szymczak's inquiry into various offers to sell to brokers a number of 1930 tax anticipation warrants that are in the city treasury took a new direction yesterday when investigators began to search for a person who is said to have seen the warrants that were offered for sale.

Reports that such warrants had been exhibited gave strength to the theory that forgery has been at the bottom of some of the negotiations. The controller said, however, that he had no idea of just how the forgers expected to operate. It would not have been enough to exchange the spurious warrants for the real ones in the city vaults, he said, because the valid warrants are made payable to the city. If the valid warrants were used in the final transaction, indorsements would have to be forged on them.

The forgery suspicions linked the city investigation with that of county officials. A forgery of $3,000 worth of county warrants was discovered in County Treasurer McDonough's office last June. The city and county forgery investigation, it was said, has no connection with the persons questioned this week by the police on offers to sell city warrants.

County officials said they thought the $3,000 worth of forged county warrants turned into the treasurer's office were "feelers." If the duplication had not been discovered, they said, the forgers would have carried on their work on a big scale.

Gardner Cowles, who was appointed as a member of the Reconstruction Finance corporation after the resignation of Charles G. Dawes, paused yesterday in Chicago on his way to Washington, D. C. Mr. Cowles, who is the publisher of the Des Moines, Ia., Register and Tribune, believes the R. F. C. has aided credit and has created a better financial feeling in the south. Asked if he thought the R. F. C. would aid Chicago school teachers, he said he understood it is not legally possible for the corporation to supply direct aid to municipal employés.

SCHOOLS READY TO OPEN DESPITE MONEY SHORTAGE

Expect 10,957 More Pupils Here.

Schools will open in Chicago and surrounding suburbs within the next two weeks despite drastic curtailment of salaries, teaching forces, and courses. In Chicago alone the doors will be thrown open on Sept 12 to an estimated 512,670 pupils, an increase of 10,957 over last year.

Estimates based on trends in school population and changes within the system and released yesterday by William J. Bogan, superintendent of Chicago's public schools, reveal that the senior high schools probably will enroll 112,272 in all branches, as compared with 100,769 in 1931. The junior high schools are preparing for 46,218 students, as compared with 40,934 of a year ago. This number will include 3,000 ninth grade pupils who otherwise would enter senior high schools.

Birth Drop Hits Classes.

School statisticians believe there will be an enrollment of 341,487 pupils in the elementary schools, or a decrease of 1,918 from the figure of last September. They draw their deductions in this case from a drop in Chicago's birth rate from 24.1 per thousand population in 1913 to 15.3 in 1931.

Decreased enrollment is expected in Normal and Crane colleges and in the continuation schools.

In Evanston 11,500 children will begin their studies in high and elementary schools on Sept. 12. Keeping the schools open depends upon the sale of tax anticipation warrants, according to officials. A similar situation exists with regard to the New Trier High school and the grade schools of Winnetka and Kenilworth, which also are scheduled to open Sept. 12.

Wilmette Seeking Funds.

The six elementary schools of Wilmette will open tentatively on Sept. 19. The opening date will be definitely decided on Sept. 15, at the conclusion of a drive to sell $80,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants. Gordon MacKenzie, superintendent of the Glencoe schools, which will open Sept. 12, said $15,000 on hand will keep the system running for a month and a half.

Glencoe teachers have taken a voluntary 10 per cent pay reduction, and music, home economics, art, manual training, and some aspects of physical training have been eliminated. The six schools of Highland Park will open next Tuesday and will depend upon the sale of tax anticipation warrants for continuance.

Lake Forest Has Money.

The Lake Forest schools, with money in the treasury and in the best financial condition of any north shore system, will open Tuesday. Waukegan High school, with its vocational department dropped, will start on Tuesday and the grade schools of that city on Sept. 19. Deerfield-Shields High school will open on Tuesday.

The latest opening date for any of the suburban schools will be in Oak Park, where the eleven grade schools will start on Sept. 26 as an economy measure. Oak Park High school will open on Sept. 12. Schools in Maywood, Cicero, Berwyn, Melrose Park, and Broadview will open Tuesday, while the La Grange schools will open on Sept. 19 and Proviso High school on Tuesday.

BUILDING ASSOCIATION ROBBED.

Three bandits invaded the office of the Bell Savings, Building and Loan association on the fifth floor of the Morton building 208 West Washington street, yesterday, held up the manager, N. F. Morrison, and four other employés, and took $260. The association composed of telephone company employés.

RELIEF CAMPAIGN TO BE CONDUCTED AT MINIMUM COST

Arrangements for conducting Chicago's 1932 relief fund campaign with a minimum of expense, so that practically all of the funds contributed will be available for actual dispensation by organized charities participating in the drive, were concluded yesterday at a meeting called by Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the fund raising committee.

The purpose of the campaign is to obtain funds for the needs of organized charities outside of those provided for by federal and state unemployment relief. Funds contributed by the public will be necessary to carry on such work as child welfare, free hospitalization, care of the aged, and family relief other than that due to unemployment.

The various charities participating in the fund raising campaign will supply clerical help to the committee from their own permanent organizations. Executives of the campaign will be recruited from leading business men of the city, to be appointed soon by Mr. Gardner, who will give their time.

Where expert help is necessary, such as in the auditing department, local industries have agreed to furnish part time workers from their staffs, without cost. Space for headquarters of the drive has already been donated in the Otis building, 10 South La Salle street.

CERMAK IS FETED IN DUBLIN; ASKS AID FOR THE FAIR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 2.—Mayor Cermak of Chicago tonight said he was enjoying his European trip. Picking up a Dublin paper, with his party pictured on the front page, the mayor remarked: "It was all like this."

Mayor Cermak and his party were met at the Dunlaoghaire pier by Lord Mayor Alfred Byrne. After breakfast Mr. Cermak called on American Minister Frederick A. Sterling. He then visited Sean Lemass, minister of industry, and discussed the possibilities of the Free State being represented at the Chicago Century of Progress next year.

Mr. Cermak will leave Dublin tomorrow night for London and will sail from Southampton for home on Sept. 8. He will not see President de Valera during his stay here, preferring to avoid possible complications with Irish politics.

BOMB EXPLOSION WRECKS BUTTER AND EGG STORE

Damage of $1,000 was done this morning by a bomb explosion apparently directed against Anthony Bukowieckl's butter and egg store at 4446 South Ashland avenue. Windows and part of the front fixtures were ruined. A front window in the Superior Copper Specialties store at 4448 South Ashland avenue, next door, was broken. No one could be found who saw the bombing and no motive for the attack was learned.

A small black powder bomb was exploded yesterday at the entrance to the Smith Blue Lantern sweet shop, 960 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. The explosion shattered the front door and window of the shop and tore a hole in the sidewalk. Mrs. Pearl Smith, owner, told police she believed the bomb was intended for some other store.

REVEAL CHILD ABANDONMENT DOUBLED IN YEAR

Baby Left in Auto Taken to Orphanage.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Child abandonment has more than doubled in the last year. This was revealed yesterday after a new abandoned infant arrived at St. Vincent's orphanage, the fifth since Monday.

The latest arrival was a 3 weeks old baby boy who, until his mother is found, will bear the name of Patrick Madden. This is the name of the Racine avenue policeman who took the child to the orphanage on Thursday after the baby had been found by Joseph Bacheski, 3068 Davlin court, in his automobile. If the mother is not found within six months, Patrick will be placed for adoption.

More Children Abandoned.

"These unsettled times have increased the abandonment of children," said Miss Bernadine Healy, investigator for the orphanage. "In normal times we had an average of one a week. Now it is usually two a week, and sometimes one a day. Faced with starvation, many mothers know their children will be well taken care of in other hands. So they place them on a doorstep. Many mothers stand across the street and wait to see if their child is taken in.

"We find close to 90 per cent of the mothers of the abandoned babies, however. By tracing clothing, visiting the neighborhood where the child was abandoned, and by investigating in hospitals, we eventually find most of the mothers. Many mothers are so conscience stricken that they take their babies back, but others want them placed out for adoption."

Many Babies Adopted.

In the past nine years more than 1,200 children under 3 years old have been legally adopted from St. Vincent's. The home which now has 38 infants above its normal 200 capacity, care for about 300 children in a year. Between 150 and 200 of these are adopted yearly.

"Only one of those 1,200 children ever had to be removed from its adopted home, and that was because of financial reverses in the family," Miss Healy said. "We have never had to take a child adopted from the home to the Juvenile court as a dependent or delinquent.

"Three babies went out of St. Vincent's today into homes where they will be trained and educated. A 7 months' old boy went into the home of a childless couple and will be called Junior. A 5 months' old girl was adopted into a home where there was but one other child, a 16 year old girl. And the third, a 4 months' old girl, will be the baby sister of two boys who were both adopted from the orphanage.

Goes to Wealthy Home.

"I know of a 19 year old girl who was adopted when five days old by wealthy people. She has been to Europe two or three times and is now going to an eastern boarding school. I picked up a newspaper just the other day and saw a picture taken at a society wedding in the east. The maid of honor I recognized as a girl adopted from St. Vincent's.

"So many couples want children in their homes, any many parents who lose a child by death, come to us. There is the couple whose 3 year old son died of pneumonia. He was buried on a Wednesday. On the following Saturday the parents came to St. Vincent's and adopted an 18 months old boy.

"Then there was the doctor who lost a 9 year old girl. His wife came with a friend to visit the orphanage with no thought of adopting a child. But there was one little girl she couldn't get out of her mind. She brought her husband and they took the child with them."

The orphanage cares for children of all races and creeds, and where the religion of the child's parents is known, it is often placed in a home of corresponding faith. St. Vincent's orphanage is at 721 North La Salle street. It was founded fifty years ago and is conducted by the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul.

$690,000 to Idaho and Utah from Reconstruction Board

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Emergency relief loans totaling $690,000 were granted to the states of Idaho and Utah today by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. They brought the total thus far granted from the $90 million dollars relief loan fund authorized in the emergency relief bill to $17,906,746.

Of the total advanced in the two loans today, $300,000 went to Idaho and $390,000 to Utah.

The Idaho loan, according to the corporation, was granted on the application of Gov. C. Ben Ross.

Lumber Regions Idle.

While the Idaho loan is to be used throughout the state for relief of destitution, Gov. Ross told the corporation the greatest need existed in the mining and lumbering regions where virtually all activity has been suspended.

The Utah loan, granted at the request of Gov. George H. Dern, will be used for relief in Salt Lake and Toole counties, the former to receive $300,000 of the advance and Toole county to get $90,000.

The county governments in Salt Lake and Toole counties, Gov. Dern stated, "are confronted with an impossible burden and facing a real crisis."

Ten states have thus far received relief advances from the finance corporation. With the amount loaned to each, they are as follows:

Illinois	$30,000,000	N. Dakota	50,000
Ohio	1,620,662	S. Dakota	150,000
Michigan	1,800,000	Florida	500,000
Louisiana	1,090,684	Utah	390,000
Wisconsin	3,000,000	Idaho	300,000

Pennsylvania, whose application for a ten million dollar relief loan was refused by the corporation several weeks ago on the ground that the state had not done all it could to help itself, was back at the corporation today to make another try. W. B. Rogers, director of the state emergency relief board, and Alice R. Liveright, secretary of welfare for Pennsylvania, seek a total loan of $45,000,000, of which ten millions would be immediately available.

HELD ON RADIO THEFT CHARGE.

Walter Thomaszewski, 24 years old, of 147 West Oak Street, was arrested yesterday after, it is alleged, he broke a window of the Tri-Par radio company, 110 North Wells street, and carried off a radio.

MOSCOW PLACES FOREIGN WRITERS ON FOOD RATIONS

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Foreign correspondents in Moscow were put on food rations today for the first time. In furtherance of the restrictive measures adopted by the government to combat the food shortage, the store in which foreign correspondents buy their supplies was placed on a monthly allowance, effective immediately, on meat, butter, sugar, fish, bread, cereals, soap and cigarets. It was announced that next week the government will decide whether to ration other commodities also.

Only diplomats and correspondents are allowed to trade at this store. The former are not be placed on a ration basis. Correspondents and their families, numbering about fifty, have been permitted heretofore to buy as much as they required of all foodstuffs available.

The new order, placing the correspondents on approximately the same ration basis as other foreigners, is peculiar in that it does not allow the same quantity of food for each member of the family. The head of the family is entitled to about twice as much of each commodity as the other members.

Elkhorn, Wis., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Frank Earnest, 37, Sugar Creek, going home from town turned off the road onto the Milwaukee road tracks and drove a couple of miles before he stopped his car on the tracks and went to sleep. A passenger train hit the automobile without injuring Earnest much and the engineer found himself in an argument with Earnest for not turning out. Earnest complained to Sheriff Mason that the engineer "must have been drinking."

PLANES COLLIDE IN AIR RACE; TWO PILOTS INJURED

Wings Interlock; One Victim May Die.

BY HUGH SEXTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Rounding the home pylon directly in front of the grandstand, at 125 miles an hour, two sportsmen pilots' planes collided today, the wings interlocked and they crashed from an altitude of about 75 feet. Both pilots were injured, one seriously, but are expected to live. The crash was the first serious mishap of the national air races this year.

The injured pilots are William A. Warrick, 28 years old, president of Skyways, Inc., of Cleveland, and Paul S. Bloom of Davenport, Ia. Both were rushed to Berea hospital, where Dr. Willard Bowser said Warrick suffered a moderate concussion of the brain and several lacerations of the head. Dr. Bowser first said that Bloom has suffered a mild concussion of the brain, but his condition later became much worse.

Warrick and Bloom were leading five other entries in the twenty-four mile race. Warrick was flying a yellow Davis monoplane [Leblond motor], owned by Art Chester of Joliet, Ill., and was in first place when he rounded the home pylon to enter the second lap. Bloom, flying a red Monocoupe [Lambert motor], owned by Harold E. Neumann of Moline, Ill., was close behind.

Wings Lock.

Just as Warrick began to straighten out from the steep bank at which he rounded the pylon, Bloom banked above and behind him, slipped down and the wings of the two planes locked. They lurched, then crashed about 200 yards from the stand. Warrick was thrown clear of his open plane, but field attachés had to extricate Bloom. Both were unconscious and there was no fire.

That both were not killed probably is due to the fact that they were flying into the wind when they collided.

With the elimination of Warrick and Bloom, the race was won by Sydney Monroe Nesbitt, Montreal, flying a Monocoupe [Lambert motor]; second, B. F. Stegall, Savannah, Ga., Travelair [Wright J-65 motor], and third S. B. Cleverly, Toronto, Ont., Monocoupe [Lambert motor].

Art Davis, of East Lansing, Mich., won the Aero club of Poland mile high race for the White Eagle trophy by climbing a Waco biplane [Wright J-69 motor] from the airport to 5,280 feet and diving back to the finish line in 3 minutes 11.55 seconds. The plane is owned by Art Killipi, of Chicago. James R. Wedell, of Patterson, La., flying a Wedell Williams racer [Wasp Jr. motor], was second, 3 minutes 14.76 seconds; Alexander De Seversky of New York was third, flying a Laird [Wright J-69 motor], and Col. George Kossowoski of Poland was fourth, flying a Polish P-11 pursuit plane [Bristol Jupiter motor].

Qualifiers for Monday Race.

This morning Ray Moore of Alameda, Cal., qualified a Keith Rider low wing racer for the 100 mile Thompson race of Monday by attaining an average speed of 237.738 miles an hour in four laps of the 3 kilometer course. The qualifying speed is 200 miles an hour. The racer is powered by a supercharged Menasco inverted in-line motor.

Mrs. Marie McMillin of Columbus, O., claimed a new record for women after a parachute jump from 20,800 feet. The former record, 18,000 feet, was set by Billy Brown of Del Monte, Cal. Mrs. McMillin said it was 8 degrees above zero at 20,000 feet. She landed four miles from the airport.

Florence Klingensmith of Minneapolis, flying a Monocoupe [Warner powered] won the Amelia Earhart trophy handicap race and an automobile as first prize. Her handicap was 7 minutes.

Starts Last, But Wins.

She started last, but easily passed the field of five participants, which lost considerable time mistaking smokestacks for pylons and wandering aimlessly off of the five mile closed course. Edith Foltz, Portland, Ore., flying a Bird [Kinner motor] was second, and Helen Ritchey, McKeesport, Pa., flying a Bird [Kinner motor], was third.

WITNESS FEARS TO PROSECUTE; GUNMEN FREED

Charges of robbery and larceny against St. Clair McInerny, 20 years old, and George Dilly, 35 years old, were dismissed yesterday when Randall Prieve, who caused their arrest, failed to appear in court to prosecute. It was reported that he fled the city in fear of his life following threats.

McInerny and Dilly were two of the three confessed shotgun bandits who were recalled to court and sentenced to prison by Judge James J. Kelly after he had given them their freedom on probation. They are to be taken to Joliet with the next shipment of prisoners. Another indictment against them will remain on the docket, it was said at State's Attorney Swanson's office, for use in the event of their early parole.

Ralph Trimble, the third gunman granted probation by Judge Kelly, disappeared and has not been recaptured. The three admitted robbing four finance companies while armed, obtaining more than $2,000.

ON WRONG ROAD TO TEMPERANCE, HARRIMAN SAYS

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Immediate modification and then repeal of the eighteenth amendment was urged here tonight by Henry I. Harriman of Boston, Mass., president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Harriman was attending the intermountain economic conference. He said prohibition now had a new aspect—economic as well as social.

"Have we started on the wrong road?" he asked. "Are there better ways to promote temperance than prohibition?"

Thousands See Planes Crash in Air at Cleveland Races

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 2.—A radio message from a government ice breaker in Hudson strait to the department of marine here reported that the "Flying Hutchinsons," including George, his wife, their two small daughters, and a crew of four, took off this morning from Hopedale, Labrador, en route to Godthaab, Greenland. The hop is about 700 miles across Davis strait, and is a continuation of the Hutchinsons' leisurely trip from New York to London by way of the Arctic air route.

Plane May Be Confiscated.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The plane in which the "flying Hutchinsons" took off from Labrador today may be confiscated when they arrive at Godthaab. This was indicated by M. Oldenow, a member of the Greenland administration board.

Referring to the Danish government's refusal to permit the plane to cross Greenland, Oldenow said:

"It is difficult to predict what action will be taken because of the lack of precedent, but the local authorities necessarily will ask Hutchinson to show his papers and as these cannot possibly be in order the manager of the colony probably will telegraph here for instructions.

"It is possible that the machine will be confiscated, but anyhow I do not understand where Hutchinson hopes to get gasoline as there are no depots in Greenland except those established through the assistance of the administration board."

Advised to Follow Coast.

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The New York representative of George Hutchinson today announced that he had advised the flyer to follow the coastline of Greenland rather than attempt to cross the icecap. It was explained that the Danish government considered a flight across the icecap too hazardous.

Von Gronau Reaches Japan.

MEMURO, Japan, Sept. 3.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, flying with three companions from Kakumabetsu bay on another leg of their leisurely trip around the world, landed here at 10:52 a. m. today [5:52 p. m. Friday, Chicago daylight saving time]. The German airmen took off from Kakumabetsu bay, in the Kurile islands, at 4:55 a. m. [2:55 p. m. Friday, Chicago time]. On arriving here they had flown 800 miles over the most difficult part of the Pacific crossing. Col. Lindbergh had several mishaps traversing the Kuriles in 1931.

DIVORCE TRIAL IS HALTED BY CABLED PLEA

A cablegram from Berlin, Germany, halted a divorce trial in the courtroom of Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday. It was from George Seldowitsch, an engineer, who asked that the judge stay a divorce decree sought by his wife, Frau Alesandra Seldowitsch, 37 years old, who charged her husband with desertion. Herr Seldowitsch charged that he was the injured party and asserted that he had not received legal notice that his wife was filing suit.

The message was taken into the courtroom by Attorney Benjamin H. Ehrlich, who was authorized by Herr Seldowitsch to contest his wife's suit.

"Bring your client here within 10 days or if that is impossible get some documentary evidence here," Judge David told the attorney. "Otherwise I'll sign Frau Seldowitsch's divorce decree as soon as its drawn."

Frau Seldowitsch is the daughter of a former admiral in the imperial Russian navy. She came to the United States two years ago. Her suit charges that her husband deserted her in Berlin on Oct. 5, 1930. She lives with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. V. N. Ipatieff, at the Pearson hotel.

BISHOP DEFENDS HOOVER'S STAND ON PROHIBITION

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The new bishop of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal church denies the right of dry organizations to speak for Protestantism and Methodism on prohibition.

Bishop Adna W. Leonard not only defended the prohibition stand in President Hoover's acceptance speech, but he criticized the men of his own church who have failed to stand by the President.

"Between Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt there would seem to be no ground for hesitation," he said. "I do not favor resubmission, but if Mr. Hoover is elected, the probabilities are that the states which have been indifferent to enforcement by public opinion, will be compelled to cooperate with the federal government in its efforts to enforce the law as never before.

"I hold it unfortunate that men I esteem highly, as Dr. F. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon league and Deets Pickett and Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, have taken the position they have in regard to Mr. Hoover. They do not speak for Protestants as a whole, nor for the Methodist church.

"My position is that Mr. Hoover has been misinterpreted by the wet press and also by those stanch prohibition reformers whose names I have mentioned and who seem to have given the impression that Mr. Hoover has surrendered to the wets."

Illness Ends Venture to Reach Top of Himalayas

TROSTBERG, Germany, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The German-American Himalaya expedition, which set out in July to climb the peak, Nanga Parbat, on the western frontier of Kashmir, India, which rises to an altitude of 26,600 feet, has been forced to give up its objective because of severe illness among the party. Its members will return to Germany. This information was contained in a telegram from Fritz Bechtold, a member of the expedition, to his home here.

CHAPLIN'S BOYS ARE BARRED FROM SCREEN BY COURT

Their Mother May Appeal from Decision.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Charlie Chaplin, who has made millions in the movies, today won his legal battle to keep his two sons—Charles Jr., 7, and Sydney Earl, 6—off of the screen. He successfully moved to restrain his ex-wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, from fulfilling a contract with Fox Films to feature the two boys.

Superior Judge H. Parker Wood, at the conclusion of argument by attorneys, made an order modifying the divorce decree of Chaplin and his former wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, to include a provision in the property settlement prohibiting employment of the children without written consent of both parents or consent and approval of the court.

Argue Another Writ Thursday.

There still is a writ of prohibition to be argued before the Appellate court next Thursday, but this writ, it was stated, will be dismissed. The writ, obtained by Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys, prevented further testimony at the Superior court hearing on an application of Chaplin for a permanent injunction to keep the two boys from working in pictures.

Immediately after Judge Wood announced his decision W. I. Gilbert, attorney for Mrs. Chaplin, asked for and obtained a ten day stay of execution to determine whether the case will be appealed. It was indicated Mrs. Chaplin probably will appeal the decision.

Neither Chaplin nor Mrs. Chaplin was in court when Judge Wood announced his decision.

Chaplin has waged his fight against employment of the children in pictures on ground that money for their care and education was amply provided for by his property settlement with his divorced wife.

Not a Final Decision.

Following the court's ruling today, Edwin T. McMurray, uncle of Mrs. Chaplin and associated with Attorney Gilbert as a member of her legal counsel, declared the court's ruling should not be construed as a final victory for Chaplin in the court battle.

McMurray declared that as the judge's order read that employment of the children could only be by consent of both parents or consent and approval of the court, this left the road open for Mrs. Chaplin and her attorneys to again go before the court and ask for approval of the film contract.

Twenty-four hours after Clark had been injured his nephew, Henry Clark Jr., was caught in a similar accident and is in serious condition.

LET SCIENTISTS RUN WORLD AND END DEPRESSION!

One of Them Says Present Leaders Are Unqualified.

YORK, England, Sept. 2.—(AP)—If the world were ruled by engineers and scientists, Prof. Miles Walker told the British Association for the Advancement of Science today, there would be no depression, poverty would be wiped out, and everybody would be much happier.

The trouble, he said, is that the world is run on the principle of every man for himself. With engineers in control, young people would do all the hard work, the average standard of living would be equivalent to at least $2,000 a year, there would be a universal language and money system, and no more war between the nations because everybody's wants would be supplied.

Proposes Test of Theory.

Prof. Walker suggested that the British government organize an experimental, self-supporting colony under auspices of engineers, scientists, and economists "to ascertain how far it is possible with our present knowledge and the best methods of manufacture and distribution for a group of 100,000 persons to maintain themselves and continually increase their wealth when freed from restraints and social errors of modern civilization." If the experiment proved successful on a small scale it could be gradually extended to cover the entire world, he said.

Answering the question "What is wrong with the world?" Prof. Walker listed three evils—poverty in material possessions, poverty in outlook, and incompetence of rulers.

The main business of the world should not be to buy and sell, but to make the things men want and distribute them in the simplest and cheapest way, he said. Every one should contribute something to the wealth of society, whereas at present only about 15 per cent of the inhabitants of a civilized country do so.

Present Rulers Not Qualified.

Rulers now in the saddle are not qualified for their jobs, Prof. Walker continued. Most countries suffer from lack of "special intelligence and expert knowledge" in the makeup of their rulers and "this is especially so in the U. S. A."

With engineers in control, he said, an agreement would be made with every individual to supply food, clothing, houses, furniture, education and entertainment in exchange for his services. Young people would do all the hard work, but no one would work long hours because everything would be so efficiently organized.

Humanity's poverty of mental outlook Prof. Walker called even more serious than the unequal distribution of wealth. This is partly due to exhaustion of effort in the struggle for existence, he said, but more to the inefficiency of teaching methods. Education should be concerned more with things around us than with things of the past.

The Secret of Success.

One secret of success is being able to imagine it beforehand, Dr. W. Brown told the association today. A person's "will to succeed" often can be greatly strengthened by "imagination control," which enables him vividly to imagine success, he said.

Discovery that rain "wears out" stone buildings by aiding growth of bacteria also was reported by Prof. S. G. Paine. Rain water contains organic matter that aids development of bacteria on stone surfaces, he said, and the bacteria create acid products that attack the stone.

Other newly discovered bacteria probably are really to blame for formation of stone decaying chemicals that formerly were believed due to the atmosphere, Prof. Paine said.

800 PRINTERS STRIKE AGAINST PAY REDUCTION

About 800 union printers employed by 30 "key" job shops had been called out on strike by the executive committee of the Chicago Typographical union last night at the end of the second day under the arbitrary wage reduction instituted by the closed shop book and job printing employers. The employers on Thursday cut the wage rate from $1.29½ to $1.10 an hour.

"Unless the employers revise their stand and live up to their contract another 500 men may be called out on Tuesday," said Lawrence J. Corlas, organizer for the union.

"The employers are solid," said Harry G. Cantrell, secretary of the Franklin association, the employers' group. "Our need for relief is as strong as ever and consequently our position remains unchanged."

There is to be a meeting of employers at the Great Northern hotel on Tuesday. Meanwhile it was learned that the Franklin association had asked that the men go to work temporarily at the reduced rates and negotiations be started. Union officials said they were willing to negotiate, but only on condition that the contract scale be paid during the interim.

HOSTESS OF 1893 FAIR PAYS VISIT TO RUFUS DAWES

Rufus Dawes, president of the Century of Progress exposition, yesterday received a visit from the only living hostess of the World's Fair of 1893. She is Mrs. Francis N. Chase of 1025 East 48th street, who was hostess of the Iowa building. Mrs. Chase is 93 years old.

After touring the grounds and viewing the Hall of Science and Travel and Transport building, Mrs. Chase was taken to the old Iowa building in Jackson park at 57th street. The structure is now used as a shelter.

Mrs. Chase was born in Worcester, Mass., and went to Cedar Falls, Ia., as a young woman. Her husband was secretary of the Iowa commission at the 1893 exposition. Following his death in 1903, she moved to Chicago.

BRAZILIAN REBEL SHIPS SUNK IN AMAZON BATTLE

Tribune Writer Views Fight from Shore.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ITACOATIARA, Amazonas, Brazil, Aug. 24.—[By courier and airmail.]—A naval battle on the Amazon river off this city today ended the rebellion against the federal government of Brazil in the state of Pará.

The revolutionary movement began at Obidos, Pará, on Aug. 19. A handful of politicians, headed by Col. Pompa, special envoy of Gen. Klinger, leader of Sao Paulo's rebel forces, won the support of the 4th artillery battalion garrisoned at the fortress of Obidos in Para.

Both Ships Sunk.

The auxiliary cruisers Baependy and Inga, hastily armed steamers, were commandeered by the federal government at the port of Manaos, in the state of Amazonas, and met the rebel forces here. After a 40 minute battle the river steamer Andira and the cargo boat Jaguaribe, which the rebels had seized at Obidos, were sunk.

The battle began at 1 p. m., when the auxiliary cruisers sped from Manaos toward Obidos, carrying part of the 27th infantry and a large number of volunteers. The vessels cut off the retreat of the two rebel steamers, which had prepared to bombard Itacoatiara, after an unsuccessful demand for surrender.

Only a platoon of the 27th infantry battalion and a handful of volunteers defended Itacoatiara against the rebels, who had captured four 75 Krupp guns and a large number of heavy machine guns from the fortress of Obidos. The prompt arrival of the auxiliary cruisers probably saved the town of Itacoatiara from destruction.

Tribune Man Eye Witness.

The Baependy and Inga opened fire and sank the two rebel steamers. The rebel forces suffered heavy casualties, while only three sailors of the loyal forces were wounded.

THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent witnessed the battle and wrote his dispatch as a large number of small craft were rescuing the crews of the sunken rebel steamers.

Col. Pampa and a few of his officers are believed to have abandoned their men after ransacking the town of Parintins and, according to reports, are now in the vicinity of Faro on the Trombetta river, a tributary to the Amazon. The towns of Parintins and Obidos have been raided by Col. Pompa and his "desperadoes." Business houses, revenue offices and private individuals were forced to surrender large amounts of cash and foodstuffs under the menace of rebel artillery.

Dr. Abel Chermont, who has taken over the civil government of Obidos, as special delegate of Maj. Joaquim Barata, federal interventor in Para, has sent forces after bandits who, under the disguise of revolutionaries, are terrorizing the municipality of Oriximina.

Ecuador Rebels Surrender.

QUITO, Ecuador, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Alberto Guerrero Martinez, president of the senate, was installed as acting president of Ecuador today as the last rebel contingent backing Neptali Bonifaz surrendered.

His entry into the capital ended a rebellion which began last week when part of the army garrison mutinied and proclaimed Bonifaz president. Bonifaz was legally elected last fall and was to have taken office this month, but congress declared him ineligible on the ground he was not a citizen.

There ensued the heaviest fighting in Ecuador's recent history. Approximately 400 men were killed and nearly twice as many wounded as loyalist troops bombarded the capital with artillery and then closed in. There were reports the return fire by the rebels was directed by friars supervising the maneuvers from the church towers.

Boat Worth $30,000

Five persons escaped serious injury yesterday when a gasoline explosion in the engine room wrecked the Stowaway, a 61 foot cabin cruiser valued at $30,000, at the dock in Jackson park outer harbor at the foot of 64th street.

The owner, C. A. Moore, manager of the aluminum division of R. Lavin & Sons, 3426 South Kedzie avenue, and William Creasey, mate of the yacht, suffered minor burns and bruises. Three other persons on the vessel were not injured. They are Henry Hertzinger, harbor master; Walter Hammer, president of the S. & H. Foundry Co., Mishawaka, Ind., and John Walker, captain of a sailing yacht.

No one was in the engine room at the time of the explosion. Creasey, who was on deck directly above it, was thrown against the bridge by the blast. He and the others were rescued by coast guards, directed by Capt. Fred Stebbins, who heard the explosion a quarter mile away.

The coast guard crew towed the yacht to more shallow water and grounded it in the sand. Moore, who lives at 5520 South Shore drive, said the yacht was insured for $10,000.

COUNTY HOSPITAL MEDICAL SCHOOL SEEKS CHARTER

An application has been filed for a charter for the Cook County Graduate School of Medicine, to be affiliated with the Cook county hospital, Dr. Karl A. Meyer, medical superintendent of the county hospital, revealed yesterday.

Dr. Meyer said that he hoped the project could be started before the opening of the Century of Progress exposition next year, and that he anticipated indorsement of the school, in time, by the American Medical association and the American College of Physicians and Surgeons. The school will have for its faculty some of the greatest specialists in the world, he stated.

A board has been formed comprising of Dr. Frederick Tice, Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher, Dr. Raymond W. Nealy, Dr. William F. Moncreiff, Dr. Richard Jaffe, and Dr. Aaron Arkin.

The movement for the organization of the school has been entirely financed by the medical men interested, Dr. Meyer said.

Prefers Jail or War to Paying Alimony; Gets Jail

John Kmiec was arraigned yesterday before Judge Joseph B. David in the Superior court charged with having fallen $100 behind in alimony payments to Mrs. Anna Kmiec, 5540 Mango avenue, who divorced him in April. "She's a nagger," declared John. "To pay such a woman I would rather go to war, or to jail." "We haven't any wars, but I have a nice jail," said Judge David. "Bailiff, write a letter to Marshal Pilsudski in Poland, telling him we have a loyal Pole here who wants to go to war. Meanwhile, take the defendant to the county jail."

COMPTON GIVES NEW EVIDENCE ON COSMIC RAY

Arctic Zone Is Scene of Experiments.

Prof. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago physicist, yesterday telegraphed to colleagues at the university the results of a special observation in his experiments on cosmic rays, which he made Wednesday during the eclipse of the sun. The observation was made 100 miles north of the Arctic circle and about 350 miles from the north magnetic pole. The eclipse there was 95 per cent total.

Dr. Compton indicated the observation added important evidence to the theory that cosmic rays are electrons, rather than extremely short magnetic vibrations, somewhat similar to X-rays.

Because of the effect of the earth's magnetic field cosmic rays, if they consist of electrons, should be more intense near the magnetic poles than in the vicinity of the equator, and his colleagues interpreted Dr. Compton's wire stating "Confirms magnetic effect on rays" to mean that he had observed such an effect.

Dr. Compton will return from his observation point to Fort Churchill, on Hudson's bay, about Sept. 10 or 12 and from there will return to Chicago, from which he has been absent since he left the campus last March to measure cosmic rays at points in Mexico, South America, Hawaii, and Australia.

Photographs Itself.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Cosmic rays, flashing earth with the tremendous energy or more than 500 million volts, have been made to photograph themselves by means of a new invention just announced at Cavendish laboratory, Cambridge.

The new device, developed by P. M. S. Blackett and G. Occhialidi, snaps a picture only when "set off" by a cosmic ray entering it. Formerly cosmic rays could be photographed only by taking thousands of pictures continuously over a long period to catch an occasional ray, it was explained.

What is actually photographed is not the cosmic ray itself but the "track" produced by its passage through gases inside a recording chamber. The new apparatus takes a pair of photographs of each track, so that the direction in which the ray is traveling through space can be determined. The cosmic rays discharge the "ray-camera" about once every two minutes. Out of 100 pairs of photographs of cosmic ray tracks taken with the new apparatus, 59 showed that the particles causing the tracks—if they were electrons—possessed an energy of 500 million volts or more.

Widow Slain by Mother of Eight in Kentucky

Middlesboro, Ky., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Amanda Longworth, 45, widow and mother of five, was shot and killed today as she stood singing beside a well drawing water for her home. Mrs. Frankie Bullock Miller, 38, mother of eight, was arrested and charged with the shooting. Police Chief Charlie S. Minton said Mrs. Miller admitted the shooting, but would make no statement as to the quarrel that caused it.

LEADERS ORDER MORE INTENSIVE FARM PICKETING

Plan to Renew Blockade at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 2.—(AP)—More intensive picketing of highways into Sioux City was ordered late today by Woodbury county leaders of farmers' nonselling "strike" which was confined to the territory around Sioux City in Iowa, Nebraska, and South Dakota, involving five counties.

The center of interest returned to the original scene of action when Woodbury leaders ordered complete picket lines reëstablished. For the first time in days, five truck loads of livestock reached Sioux City when vigilance was relaxed, and strike leaders at once announced that the highway blockade would be renewed.

Leaders said the blockade would be continued until Sept. 9, when governors of eleven middlewestern states have been called into a conference here, and that it would be kept in force indefinitely if some farm relief program is not formulated. The "strike" seeks to increase farm prices by withholding supplies from markets.

Quiet on Other Fronts.

Elsewhere, the "strike" movement slumbered as members obeyed a "truce" order from Milo Reno of Des Moines, president of the National Farmers' Holiday association.

Picketing continued in Plymouth county, directly north of here, where it was first started. Highways were also watched in Union county, S. D., and Dakota county, Neb., both of which adjoin Woodbury county.

More than 100 strikers remained near Cherokee, Ia., intent on solving a mysterious shooting early Wednesday when 14 holiday adherents were wounded by shotgun and rifle fire. They allowed produce to enter Cherokee, however, and turned their efforts to gathering evidence regarding the shooting.

Meeting Is Called.

John Chalmers, Iowa chairman of the National Farmers' Holiday association, announced all Iowa county leaders will meet in Des Moines Sept. 6 to plan to extend the movement and to discuss proposals to be offered at the governors' meeting.

Attorney R. G. Rodman of Cherokee county conferred again today with farmers regarding the shooting episode. He said he would present this data to a grand jury Monday and that he was not yet ready to announce his findings.

Most of the 300 holiday adherents, who yesterday declared they would remain at their posts until they were assured the case would be satisfactorily prosecuted, today were leaving for their homes.

Retail sales here have taken a decided slump since the "strike" was instituted, merchants say. They attribute this to reluctance of out-of-town buyers to pass through the picket lines.

Stockyards men declare the embargo has caused many shippers to send their stock to other markets and the strike is costing stockyards interests thousands of dollars daily. Many men have been laid off at packing plants here. Produce dealers and wholesalers say their businesses have suffered greatly.

SERIOUSLY ILL

ARTHUR G. WELLS.

Arthur G. Wells, vice president of the Santa Fe railroad in charge of operation, is seriously ill in the Presbyterian hospital, it was revealed yesterday. Mr. Wells, who is 70 years old, entered the hospital two weeks ago and underwent a major operation. His home is at 1540 Lake Shore drive.

ASK EVANSTON VOTE CONTROL BY CHICAGO BOARD

A proposal to place Evanston elections under the Chicago board of election commissioners was filed with County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday. The petition bore 10,057 names and was presented by Ald. Albert Smith of Evanston. The proposition will be placed before Evanston voters at the November election.

Smith said many of Chicago's other suburbs have accepted the authority of the election commissioners, and added that questions as to the legality of votes are few when the elections were conducted under the election board.

He pointed out that during the contest between James Simpson Jr. and Ralph Church for the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th congressional district the legality of thousands of Evanston votes was questioned on the grounds that no registration was held before April 12, primary day. Such matters are never questioned when they are controlled by the election commissioners, he said.

PARIS TO CONFER WITH U. S. ON GERMAN DEMAND

Clauses on Arms in Separate Treaty.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Although the United States is not a signatory to the Versailles treaty, France intends to consult the American government in connection with Germany's new demand for equality in arms with the other European powers.

In official quarters today it was explained the reason for consulting America is that the clauses of the Versailles treaty covering German arms are embodied also in the separate peace treaty which the United States negotiated with Germany in 1921.

Article 2 of the treaty between the United States and Germany says that the United States shall "have and enjoy" the advantages stipulated in certain parts of the treaty of Versailles. One of those parts is part 5 which stipulates the limitations on Germany's military forces.

France to Take Its Time.

Meantime the French government will take its time examining the German aide memoire, which demands revision of the Versailles armaments clauses. This consideration will be undertaken in collaboration with the other Versailles signatories.

The belief was expressed here that France will not depart from the traditional policy of turning over to the league of nations or to the disarmament conference, which meets again soon, all matters pertaining to disarmament.

The steering committee of the disarmament conference was planning at the time of adjournment a substitute treaty covering the armaments provisions in the Versailles document. It is expected France will agree to this if the other Versailles signatories consent.

French Council Meets Today.

In league of nations circles here it was said that Germany, being aware of that program, wants to negotiate a separate armaments agreement with France beforehand.

The French council of ministers, meeting tomorrow, will consider all phases of the German demand.

120 Pennsylvania Miners Escape as a Fire Starts

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP)—More than 120 miners—the night shift at the Republic Iron and Steel company's mine at Republic—calmly walked to safety through an airway tonight, while fire damaged the tipple and threatened to cut off their escape. The fire started in a small shed at the top of the tipple and spread to the "bull wheel" with which the cage is operated. This shut off the main shaft and the workmen hurried to the airway about two miles down the pit. Through this hole they emerged one by one.

RUDY VALLEE AND HIS WIFE PART FRIENDS

Separate Cordially with Aid of Referee.

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Rudy Vallee's father-in-law, Police Chief C. Z. Webb of Santa Monica, Cal., placed an arm about his son-in-law's shoulder on the sidewalk in front of Hyman Bushel's law office at 270 Broadway, and said:

"Good luck to you, boy."

Then Chief Webb handed his fragile, pretty daughter, Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee, into her motor car. They vanished uptown, presumably with Reno as a port of call on their journey back to the coast. Vallee and former Magistrate Bushel took another car. The Maine lad, whose weary, sustained vocal phrases made him the idol of a million girlish hearts, was bound for the steel pier at Atlantic City.

Vallee bore a separation agreement, which lightened his purse; his wife carried a copy of the same and a substantial increment out of Vallee's profitable earnings.

Wed in July, 1931.

Thus, in a deserted downtown street shortly after midnight today, formally was ended the nuptial romance which quickened the pulse of America's womanhood as lately as July, 1931.

The Vallees, "good sports," in the language of Mr. Bushel, the referee and moderator of their separation, parted without, so far as Mr. Bushel could recall today, a handshake. They parted, however, as friends, as far as Mr. Bushel could discern, no yearnings toward other mates. Their differences were merely temperamental.

Mr. Bushel refused to disclose the size of Vallee's separation settlement.

Reports of an estrangement have been published repeatedly for several months, but the lawyer insisted that Vallee and Mrs. Vallee had lived together until a week ago yesterday in his Central Park West apartment.

Parents Good Friends.

His parents came on from Santa Monica a month ago and have remained. Within the month the Webbs, the Vallees and the crooner's father and mother week-ended together at Kesack lake, Me.

Mr. Bushel issued a statement which expressed the hope that "Mr. and Mrs. Vallee be relieved from the constant pressure for information concerning the unfortunate turn that their marital affairs have taken."

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS.

Mrs. Marie Koschel, 53 years old, died yesterday in the county hospital of burns incurred Aug. 24 when she poured gasoline on a coal fire in the kitchen of her home at 3549 Belden avenue.

HOOVER ORDERS REINSTATEMENT OF POSTAL CLERK

Dismissed Gary Man Gets His Job Back.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—With a speed and emphasis due to the personal urging of President Hoover, the administration rushed to reverse previous orders today in the case of Postal Clerk Ben H. Kerr, employed at Gary, Ind., who was dismissed on a complaint, one count of which was that he had advocated payment of the veterans' bonus.

By the President's order and despite the fact that Kerr had been charged with serious violations of the postal laws and regulations, the postal clerk was reinstated.

The White House was busy all day with the case. It was taken up at the morning's cabinet meeting. Postmaster General Brown and Chairman Thomas E. Campbell of the civil service commission were given instructions to give it their personal attention.

Deny Bonus Subject Barred.

Despite the inclusion of Kerr's probonus activities in the charges against him, vigorous denials that the bonus had been included in the list of political activities banned by civil service rules were the order of the day.

In a letter to Postmaster General Brown, Mr. Hoover denied that he had ever taken the view that federal employes' conduct should be judged in the light of White House opinions on public matters.

This was in answer to the charge in complaint against Kerr that he had "introduced a bonus resolution at a meeting of the American Legion, Crown Point, Ind., March 6, 1932, contrary to the expressed wishes of the President, who considers such legislation harmful to the country at this time."

Another Denial Made.

Another denial came from Chairman Campbell, who contradicted previous reports quoting him as saying that the bonus had been included among the subjects which civil service employés might not discuss in public.

There was perturbation lest the Kerr case further antagonize the ex-service men's vote, which is already causing the Republican managers considerable worry because of the President's anti-bonus stand.

It was explained that Arch Coleman, first assistant postmaster general, who did the official firing of Kerr, had probably not read the formal order of dismissal. Blame for having included the charge concerning the bonus resolution was laid on an unnamed inspector.

Hoover's Letter Quoted.

In his letter to the postmaster general, President Hoover referred to this charge and said:

"As you are aware, I have never made any such suggestion as to this or any other public question in its relation to the conduct of government employés. The fact that they differ with my views does not necessarily constitute 'political activity' under the law which forbids such action.

"In order that there may be no misunderstanding or misrepresentation in this matter, I consider that Mr. Kerr should be reinstated in the postoffice service at once."

In his reply to the President, Mr. Brown stated that the Kerr case disclosed "several serious infractions of the postal laws and regulations warranting severe disciplinary action."

Directs His Reinstatement.

"However," the letter continued, "since the record raises the right of a postal employé freely to express their views upon public matters, a right as to which there should be no question, I am directing the reinstatement of Clerk Kerr."

Chairman Campbell of the civil service commission informed the President:

"On behalf of my colleagues I wish to state that the commission has not promulgated a new regulation in this matter, and that in fact there has been no submission to the commission of any case which would require decision as to whether activity by government employés at American Legion meetings in favor of bonus legislation would fall within the regulations originally promulgated by President Roosevelt against certain classes of political activity by classified civil service employés of the federal government."

KERR TELLS OF CHARGES.

Ben H. Kerr, Gary postoffice clerk who was ordered reinstated yesterday, said that before his dismissal on May 9 he was presented with written charges against him consisting of three counts.

The charges, he said, were that he had been active in supporting a "certain candidate" for governor of Indiana; that he had introducted a resolution calling for further bonus payments at a district American Legion convention, and that he was a disturbing element in the Gary postoffice.

Kerr, who charges that he was dismissed because he was a Democrat, said that the candidate for governor referred to in the first part of the charge is apparently Paul V. McNutt, the Democratic nominee, but denied that he ever made any speeches for McNutt. As regards the bonus resolution, he stated that he presented it at the convention only as the delegate of his Legion post. The charge of being a disturbing element in the postoffice, he asserted, probably grew out of the fact that he had been the organizer of the postoffice clerk's union there.

Alfred S. Hess, Gary postmaster, refused to comment on the case.

Burglars Loot Evanston Home and Set It on Fire

Firemen, answering an alarm early yesterday in the home of Charles M. Rogers Jr., an insurance broker, at 1808 Ashland avenue, Evanston, discovered that the fire had been preceded by a burglary. The Rogers family is away on a vacation. The fire, which was confined to the reception room of the home, did $600 damage. The burglars apparently started it with matches which they used to light their way about the house. Drawers throughout the house had been pulled out, but police will have wait for the return of the family for an inventory of the loot.

ALLIANCE MAKES JAPAN GUARDIAN OVER MANCHURIA

Tokio Given Right to Keep Army There.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—The foreign office announced today that a basic treaty between Japan and Manchukuo will be signed on or before Sept. 15, and will be effective the same day. The treaty will denote de jure [legal] recognition by Japan of the new régime in Manchuria. The treaty will be presented to the privy council for approval next week and will then be offered to Emperor Hirohito for his sanction.

Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, commander of the Japanese army in Manchukuo and envoy extraordinary to that state, will be especially empowered to sign the treaty for Japan. Foreign Minister Hsieh Chien-shin will sign for Manchukuo.

One Sentence to Treaty.

The most important provision of the pact is "mutual recognition of each other's sovereignty." It confirms Japan's "vested rights" in Manchuria.

Japan, under the treaty, is obligated to maintain internal peace and external protection, entailing the right of stationing troops any place in Manchuria at her own expense. The pact is equivalent to a defensive alliance. The document recognizes Manchukuo's full independence; there is no suggestion of Japan making Manchukuo a protectorate or of assuming control of her foreign relations.

The principal nations of the world are being notified of the full text of the treaty, which will be published on the day it is signed.

306 Chinese Slain in Battle.

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A Rengo [Japanese] News agency dispatch reported today that 306 Chinese soldiers had been killed in a two hour battle with Japanese troops at Anta, a station on the Chinese Eastern railway northwest of Harbin. The bandits had captured the station and a Japanese expedition was sent from Tsitsihar to drive them out. The Japanese lost four killed and five wounded, but reported that the Chinese had been dispersed to the south.

Another Rengo dispatch from Kirin said 3,000 Chinese guerrillas had attacked the Tunhua terminus of the Kirin-Tunhua railway, but had not been successful in entering the town. Mixed Japanese-Manchuquo troops were said to have inflicted more than 200 casualties among the guerrillas, who still were besieging the town late today. Several fires had been started.

INDICT SEVERAL POLITICIANS IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—An envelope containing $50,000 was delivered by the DuQuesne Slag Products company to Roy Walters, private secretary to the late Joseph G. Armstrong, former chairman of the board of county commissioners, the grand jury charged today as it handed down indictments against 23 persons.

The jury reported it was unable to determine whether Armstrong had used the money or it had been employed to make up a political campaign deficit.

Among those indicted are William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the county commissioners; Edward M. Kenna, former county road commissioner; Watson Bowser, Kittaning contractor, and Howard Neely, Fourth ward Republican chairman and protégé of State Senator James J. Coyne.

Three groups of indictments were returned, one dealing with alleged irregularities during Armstrong's regime as boss of the Republican organization and head of the county commissioners, another with alleged wholesale purchases of tax receipts, and a third with alleged failure of deputy tax collectors to make proper accountings.

Chicago Postal Receipts Drop Despite Higher Rate

Chicago postoffice receipts for August, the second month in which the increased postage rates have been in effect, were $231,314 less than receipts for the same month last year, Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder announced yesterday. Chicagoans spent $3,241,164 in the postoffice during August this year as compared with $3,472,478 in August, 1931. The total receipts this year were 16 per cent less than for the fiscal year which ended on June 31, 1932, the postmaster's report showed. The August receipts were $176,021.57 larger than receipts of $3,066,141.21 for July this year.

RECOVER LOOT OF HIJACKERS IN RAID ON TIRE CO.

Detectives headed by Lieut. James Kern yesterday raided the Triangle Tire and Supply company, 1547 South Michigan avenue, and recovered 450 automobile tires alleged to have been stolen by hijackers in Indiana. Irving Goldman, 8346 Drexel avenue, and Mannie Wolf, 8019 Calumet avenue, owners of the tire company, were turned over to the government and will be charged with possession of goods stolen from an interstate shipment, officials said.

Lieut. Kern said the tires were part of a shipment hijacked by four shotgun bandits in Gary on July 15. The shipment was being transported by truck to the Universal Car Loading and Distributing company, 53 West Jackson boulevard. Questioned by Assistant United States Attorney Benjamin Landis, Wolf and Goldman admitted buying 750 of the tires. They said they had sold 300 of them.

ARRAIGN CAPEZIO IN ST. CHARLES FOR $9,160 HOLDUP

Anthony [Tough Tony] Capezio, 29 years old, 2350 West Grand avenue, hoodlum and member of the so-called "circus gang," was arraigned before Justice of the Peace A. J. Strickman of St. Charles yesterday on a charge of bank robbery. His bonds were set at $25,000 and he was released pending action of the Kane county grand jury.

Capezio, who was arrested on Tuesday night in Chicago, has been identified as one of the bandits who robbed the State Bank of St. Charles of $9,160 on June 9, according to State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county.

The robbery warrant was served on him in the South State street court yesterday, where he was arraigned on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Judge John P. Haas continued the hearing until Sept. 21.

EDITOR DENIED WRIT TO HALT SEIZURE OF PAPER

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The petition of Arthur Kasherman, editor of the Public Press, for a temporary injunction to restrain the city of Minneapolis, the mayor, and the police chief from further interfering with the sale and distribution of his newspaper was denied today by Judge Levi M. Hall in District court.

Judge Hall said the matter has been before the courts twice before and that he saw no reason for giving Kasherman a restraining order. His decision said further that to grant the order would authorize Kasherman to use the streets for private gain, which authority only can be granted by the legislature.

The police have taken Kasherman's papers away from him twice in the last two months.

Kasherman said today he would carry the case to a higher court.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ON OUR WAY, BUT WHITHER?

We confess to sharing the curiosity of the Japanese foreign office over the concentration of the United States fleet in the Pacific. It was upon American initiative that the "machinery of peaceful adjustment of differences" was set up for Pacific relations at the Washington conference of 1921. And not only was this machinery set up, but the zeal of American official altruism offered practical guaranty of our reliance upon it by surrendering our fleet primacy and our right to fortify bases essential to offensive operations in the far east. There was consistency in that, if a rather expensive consistency, in any realistic view of American interest. We followed it by the cessation of naval building and steadily lost ground in relative strength while Japan kept building. Our official enthusiasm increased as our naval strength declined and presently it brought forth the treaty abolishing war. Then Mr. Stimson arrived, and if Count Uchida cannot now make out what American policy is all about, he has nothing on a good many Americans.

Under Mr. Stimson the United States government has repeatedly challenged Japanese action, trying her case and summoning her to the bar of world opinion for condemnation. Under Mr. Stimson American policy is set squarely athwart the path of what Japan deems her vital interest. And while Mr. Stimson celebrates eloquently the transformation of international relations and the abolition of war the American fleet is sent into the Pacific.

Since the Washington conference, since, in fact, the diplomacy of Wilson, the United States has steadily multiplied treaty obligations and sacrificed the power to enforce our rights. At Washington in 1921 we gave up the means of carrying on naval operations in the Pacific except for the protection of home waters. At London we still further limited our naval strength, and at Geneva offered another reduction. Meantime Japan's relative force has grown and after months of controversy over Japan's conduct in Manchuria and China, after assuming a solitary rôle as champion of peaceful adjustment, as chief engineer of the new machinery of peace, we put our fleet in the Pacific.

If Count Uchida can find out where we are going we wish him well in his quest. The American people doesn't know. Perhaps Mr. Stimson does. He is said to be a welcome sight on the doorstep of Downing street and the Quai d'Orsai. That, at least, seems to us understandable. Roll the red carpet down the chancellery steps. The American secretary of state arrives.

THE KING'S LICENSE REVIVED.

The London dispatch of Eugene Speck of THE TRIBUNE Press Service, published in Wednesday's issue, gives an interesting account of radio censorship in Great Britain. Perhaps the most astonishing instance, from the American viewpoint, was the denial to Mr. Winston Churchill of the right to tell the British public his views upon the crisis of Anglo-Indian relations. The British Broadcasting corporation, which controls all broadcasting in Great Britain, is directed by a board appointed by the government. The government in office at the time had views of Indian policy which Mr. Churchill considered erroneous and full of peril. To repeated demands from Mr. Churchill, the corporation replied that "in view of the delicacy of the situation in India and having considered the matter with great care, we have come to the conclusion that it would be undesirable to proceed with the suggestion."

Now Mr. Churchill is not an irresponsible. He has held some of the highest offices in the British government and has been an important force in British public life for years. He was denied the broadcasting of his views because they differed from those of the government and might embarrass its effort by creating opposition in England and in India. But if this is justification for shutting the British people off from hearing the opinions of one of their leading politicians the right of freedom of speech, which we are told is so much more liberally interpreted in London than America, is very strangely restricted.

That Mr. Churchill was free to repair to Hyde Park will hardly satisfy objection. Broadcasting is merely an extension of the voice, and the suppression of Mr. Churchill seems to us to raise an issue as important in our day as any previous censorship of the spoken word, perhaps more important. If a government monopolizes broadcasting, as that of Great Britain does, to permit it to select what views shall be presented by radio is to give to partisanship an enormous advantage and to deprive the public of the most important modern vehicle of free speech. That printing and speaking directly to hearers remain free hardly compensates for censorship of the new resource of public discussion.

It is to be hoped this censorship will be tested in the highest British court, for it is certainly another stage in the long struggle for freedom of utterance. The king's license was once required for publication of the printed word. Is the king's license now essential to broadcasting of the spoken word?

But we venture to predict that relief must come from parliament rather than the courts. The house of commons will have to fix general terms upon which citizens will be given access to the broadcast.

Happily our broadcasting is not government controlled, but a commercial or private enterprise, and official censorship is not likely to arise in any serious or lasting form.

THE FARMERS GO BACK TO FARMING.

The fading of the farmers' holiday movement in the Des Moines region has been rapid. The evidence from other sections suggests that what has happened around Des Moines is going to happen in other troubled areas. The vast majority of farmers are fed up with the doctrines of Mr. Milo Reno. This devoted follower of Senator [Mex.] Brookhart seems to be on his way to joining his major prophet in a well deserved retirement.

That is good news. It suggests that the farmers of this generation have the hard common sense about their own business which farmers of previous generations were justly regarded as possessing. It suggests, further, that farmers have come to recognize economic and political quackery when it is offered them as good medicine.

Reno was repudiated because his proposals were foolish. He told the farmers, in effect, that rioting makes prosperity. He asked farmers to accept the notion that keeping their produce off the markets and thereby cutting off their incomes will pay off the mortgage. The farmers of Iowa had the good sense to see that the only way a farmer can hope to succeed is by farming. Agriculture is an exacting business. It requires constant attention to crops and markets, to land and live stock. A farmer who has time in the last week of August to indulge in picketing can't hope to make a living at farming.

The holiday movement draws its inspiration from Al Capone and Sockless Jerry Simpson, but Reno, who let fourteen of his men get shot and thereupon called it a war, was no Capone. He isn't tough. Reno, who runs a couple of insurance companies and is reported to have obtained for them a substantial loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is no Sockless Jerry, no destitute leader of the destitute. Reno and his crew have earned the repudiation they have received. The farmers are going back to farming. The racketeers and economic quacks of the corn belt will be the only ones to suffer.

JIMMY WALKS OUT.

Mayor Walker has resigned the office which he adorned, sartorially, and he announces he will seek "vindication." He says he is taking a change of venue from a biased judge to the "supreme authority"—one guess, gentle reader—the people of New York. Jimmy knows his onions. The supreme authority he is relying upon for "vindication" is composed of New Yorker hicks who can be wisecracked and sobsistered into voting for any one from a man-eating shark to an abstractor of pennies from a blind woman's tin cup. The change of venue we suspect was well taken and we look forward to the day when the New York city hall will be welcoming Jimmy back in all his glory.

Outside of that jurisdiction Walker's resignation will be understood to be what it is, a confession, a confession and avoidance. All the clatter of Walker's talk about unfairness and perversion of executive power and travesty of justice, all the pettifogging resorts to legal quibbles and technicalities of his lawyer cannot hide the fact that Walker has had full and free opportunity to explain the facts which discredit him as the trustee of a great office and has conspicuously failed to do so. The evidence piled up by Mr. Seabury and the Hofstadter committee stands permanently as the record and Walker has walked out on it. He complains that he was not permitted to call witnesses. He was witness enough, with all the facts essential at his glib command. He was all the witness necessary for his vindication, and he has witnessed against himself.

As for the "biased judge," Gov. Roosevelt, he has never in his years of public responsibility shown to better advantage than in the performance of his duty in this inquiry. His firmness and clear headedness have been conspicuous, and he has performed a high service to the cause of good government for which he will be honored by all good citizens throughout the nation.

Editorial of the Day

VIOLENCE HAS NO PLACE IN MILK STRIKE.
[Des Moines Register.]

Dissatisfied with the prices they have been receiving from Sioux City dealers, milk producers in that vicinity have been picketing the highways to prevent the entry of producers who have not joined the "strike." Several instances of near violence have already occurred, and several truckloads of milk have been dumped into the street.

All this sounds ominously like gangdom's tactics in the vicinity of Chicago and other large cities, nor does it leave a much better savor. Even granting that milk producers are not obtaining a reasonable price and that they have a perfect right to "strike," the business of violently preventing milk truckers from entering the city and of sabotaging privately owned produce is something else altogether.

Fortunately, the news from Sioux City indicates that the police and sheriff's forces are preparing to cope with such violence. It is not necessary to go into the matter of depriving children and babies of their principal source of nourishment. The individual producer's milk is his own and he does not need to haul it to town unless he wishes.

But the matter of property destruction by a group of self-appointed dictators is everybody's business. It is the duty of the police powers of Sioux City and Woodbury county not only to prevent violence but to see that every milk trucker who wants to enter the city with wholesome supplies gets there.

IF ENGINEERS AND SCIENTISTS ruled the world, according to a speaker at the British Association for the Advancement of Science, there would be no depression, no poverty, and much more happiness. We'd probably be much nobler men and women, but we'd be bored stiff in three months. We'd much rather have poets rule the world. There wouldn't be so much to eat, but we'd all do nothing but just sit around while the poets read their rhymes.

IT SEEMS TOO BAD that Jimmie Walker is no longer mayor of New York. We haven't the slightest notion of whether he was what Mr. Seabury said or not, but we do know that he had a lovely smile, wore beautiful purple spats, and was so amusing. He gave a touch of color and human interest to New York, and New York needs a touch of color and human interest more than any other place we can think of.

BLUE BABIES.

MRS. C. I. D. wants an article on blue babies. As is generally the case, her interest is prompted by the fact that she lost a baby of this kind when it was ten days old and she cannot learn why.

The mother had never had any heart trouble. That she should be interested is natural, since few of us are interested in those problems that have not come into our own lives. That she should be having trouble getting information of practical value should not surprise us, since we know very little about the condition, and our knowledge of what causes it is quite scant, and what we know is of no practical value.

The name is descriptive. Ordinarily, a new born baby is almost as red as a boiled lobster. Days are required for him to bleach to an acceptable pink. When a new born babe, instead of being red, is definitely dusky and the lips are blue, the parents and friends are able to make the diagnosis—blue baby—without much help from the medical man and nurse. The skin is dusky and the lips are blue because most of the blood that should pass through the lungs and be changed there to a cherry red color by-passes and recirculates as blue venous blood. The by-pass is a hole between the two sides of the heart.

We know that the presence of this unnatural hole or door is what is called a congenital defect. But we do not know what causes it. Why don't the openings between the two sides of the heart close, according to schedule, and plans and specifications? We know that it does not result from heart disease, or any other disease in the mother, or in either parent. What is even more to the point, we do not know when it is going to happen, or what can be done to prevent it. We do not know how to cure it, or what to do for it, except some few unimportant measures of relief. So far as the sick children and the parents are concerned, we might as well know nothing at all, since we have no information that can be put to any practical use.

The above statements may convey the idea that all blue babies pass away promptly. That is incorrect. As a matter of fact, while most babies with this heart defect do not survive long, some reach maturity. In fact, in some instances the defect is discovered accidentally, the heart being able to carry on pretty well in spite of the abnormal opening.

PAIN IN SHOULDER BLADE.

E. C. U. writes: I came through the winter in fine shape—not even a cold. I felt fine until March, which was a sunny month here. Then pain in the left arm and shoulder blade appeared. I thought it would wear off in a short time, but it still continues. I have pain at night, and it is hard to get my left army easy, but the pain is not sufficient to bother my sleep. I am 68. What is the cause and the remedy? I am always well and healthy. The dentist says my teeth are all right, and my bowels move two or three times a day.

REPLY.

Neuritis around the shoulder is often due to pressure on the nerves near the spinal column or around the shoulder joint.

Among the infections which may be the cause are pyorrhea, infected tonsils, infected sinuses. Does your dentist find your gums as well as your teeth all right?

IODINE FOR SUNBURN.

J. J. N. writes: I have found one teaspoonful of tincture of iodine in a pint of water a good remedy for sunburn. When I come in after exposure to excess sunlight and find my skin turning red I make up some of the solution and apply it to the red area. I repeat several times if necessary. The solution is allowed to dry on. The burns do not pain or become inflamed.

REPLY.

Let us hope others will confirm your conclusions. Weak iodine should do no harm and it may do good.

BUILDING UP HEART MUSCLE.

F. H. writes: You spoke recently of building up the heart muscle. How shall I proceed to build up this muscle?

REPLY.

When you build up your general or skeletal muscles and improve your wind you build up your heart muscle. This is done by work, play, and exercise. If the heart muscle is noticeably weak one should train under a trainer who will specify the kind and the amount of muscle work to be done each day and the kind and amount of rest between spells of work or play.

PELLAGRA.

N. A. writes: Is pellagra contagious? I just had one pass away with it in New York.

REPLY.

It is not. When several people in the same house or family have pellagra, as frequently happens, it is because they eat the same diet and have somewhat the same habits.

1. No as to wages which he earns after the bankruptcy.
2. The court costs would be $35. We are not in a position to estimate the attorney's fee.
3. He could secure an "adjudication" such as to be a defense against existing liabilities practically at once.
4. Yes, as to ordinary debts.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 3, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—The threatened railroad strike has been definitely called off and the transportation tie-up averted. Instructions rescinding the strike orders to 400,000 members of the four great railway brotherhoods who had been under instructions to quit work on Monday were wired from here by the presidents of the four organizations to the 640 district heads scattered over the country. Administration leaders were loud in their acclaim of another victory for President Wilson. Republicans asserted the action of congress never would have been necessary had there been a Roosevelt or a Cleveland in the White House. They assert the President and congress have acted under the lash of unionism. Action in calling off the strike followed quickly on the senate's final vote approving the Adamson eight hour bill, which had already passed the house. The Senate passed the measure by a vote of 43 to 28. One Republican—La Follette—voted for it and two Democrats only—Clarke and Hardwick—voted against it.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—President Wilson formally opened his campaign for reëlection with a speech accepting the Democratic nomination in which he characterized the Republican party as a "practical and moral failure," defended his Mexican and European policies, recited the legislative achievements of his administration, and declared for a "big America." He declared the old Republican leaders still select the party's candidates, but he did not mention Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate, by name. The President spoke from the veranda of his summer home to a crowd which filled 3,000 chairs and overflowed to the lawn.

LONDON.—A Zeppelin fleet, officially described by Gen. French as "larger than ever previously raided England," attacked the east counties and reached London shortly after midnight. The attack resulted in a great air battle. One of the huge German dreadnaughts was brought down from a great height aflame, plunging earthward like an immense comet. The Zeppelins dropped many bombs in widely separated parts of the city.

LONDON.—Rumanian troops have scored a decisive victory over the Austrians in the first pitched battle since Rumania entered the war. An official statement from the Austrian war office admits an Austrian defeat near Orsova, the "iron gate" of Hungary, after five days of fierce fighting. The Austrians withdrew to the west bank of the Cerna river, the statement said, the Rumanians following slowly. Despite the arrival of 50,000 German reënforcements, the Austrians continue their steady retreat from eastern and central Transylvania.

PARIS.—The Germans reoccupied a few elements of trenches captured by the French south of Estrees on Aug. 31 in a violent counter attack. The attack on the French line followed by a few hours a similar counter attack on British positions north of the Somme, which resulted in a slight German gain.

LONDON.—The revolution in Greece is spreading rapidly throughout Thessaly and Epirus, a Rome dispatch says. Martial law has been proclaimed at Athens and Piraeus. A Saloniki dispatch says a committee of national defense has been proclaimed as the provisional government of Macedonia. Anglo-French troops are believed to have been landed at Piraeus with the intention of marching five miles to Athens and garrisoning the Greek capital.

PETROGRAD.—The new Russian offensive in Galicia has resulted in further advances in the direction of Lemberg and further south, near the Hungarian frontier, the war office announced. In the direction of Vladimir-Volynski, near Shetuvoy and Koroytniza, fierce fighting continues.

EL PASO, Tex.—Brig. Gen. Bell announced that all available information indicates that Francisco Villa has at least 1,000 men and is headed toward the American lines in Mexico. Gen. Pershing at Columbus sent instructions to the American field headquarters in Mexico to guard against the possibility of surprise attacks by the Villa forces.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Marguerite Springer, widow of Warren Springer, who gained note for the number of benefactions she has announced, was married yesterday to Col. Edward Oliver, the Indiana and Wisconsin "Onion King." It was a surprise wedding and an extremely quiet one. It took place in Unity church in Warren avenue, and the Rev. Fred V. Hawley, and old friend of Col. Oliver, officiated.

FREE SCHOOLS.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 29.—I notice that some of the communications to the Voice of the People in connection with the charging of a tuition fee by the Crane Junior High school make the statement that schools or colleges are or should be free.

Nothing that man controls is free. Schools are paid for from taxes. If a large proportion of the taxpayers refuse or are unable to pay their taxes, as is the case at the present time in Chicago and Cook county, then it is either necessary to eliminate some of the services which are paid for by taxes or find some other source of revenue. Charging a fee for special services would be one way of doing this.

The average citizen is very apt to take for granted the services performed by the municipality and, due to the fact that such services are not paid for at the time they are made use of, we frequently hear the statement that schools, or parks and playgrounds, or libraries, and bathing beaches are free.

If the average citizen had to pay for the services rendered by the municipality and for which taxes are paid, each time that they were used he would find:

1. That he is daily dependent in many ways on these services;
2. That the cost of these services is, in most instances, reasonable and in many cases less than the cost of similar personal services;
3. That such services are not free.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—First—your paper gives most pleasing and gratifying accounts of the events which take place in the world of sports.

Second—One of my principal reasons for reading THE TRIBUNE is that the foreign news events from your correspondents are most educational and apparently authoritative.

Third—Your editorials are always read by me and I find much of merit in them. However, there are times when your publication takes itself too seriously as to its own importance in the world.

Fourth—I protest vigorously against a newspaper, which should have the ideals that the founders of THE TRIBUNE had, publishing such rot and trash as appeared in THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE of Aug. 3, 1932. I refer to the so-called Pollak case.

How any newspaper which desires to set the mark of leadership from the ethical viewpoint as well as the circulation viewpoint can devote about one-half page of pictures and a front page column or more to the funeral details of the victim of such a crime I fail to comprehend. You may say, "We print what the people want." My reply is, "You are supposed to foster public opinion and better the line of thought of your readers. What you may print may be considered news by you, but if it is news, why give it such lurid details to attract attention unless you think by such attraction you are able to assist the state in the prosecution of such crimes which result as this one did?" You say, "We are in business to make money." I say, "Surely you must make money; more power to you, but please don't, I beg of you, make it on such trash as you print occasionally. Which accounts or stories might have a direct bearing on evil actions by those easily led to do similar things from reading your paper." JOHN J. LAMB.

THE LAKE STREET "L" AS A SUPERHIGHWAY.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Before you write another editorial praising that foolishly extravagant elevated highway along the Chicago and North Western railway, which is to jump over the railroad two or three times, you would better study the economics of present west side transportation routes.

First consider the elevated railroad on Lake street. It has been a financial failure continuously since it was built. It was not built because it was needed, but merely to use a political franchise which was passed through the city council to be sold to the Chicago and Northern Pacific railroad.

The Lake street surface line and the Chicago and North Western railway have plenty of cars to carry all the Lake street traffic.

From Clinton street to Rockwell street the cross girders are long enough for a four track railroad which was never built. Addition of the longitudinal girders for the two extra tracks will carry a 50 foot concrete highway slab.

Lake street is almost a straight line from Wacker drive to Laramie avenue. West of Laramie the steel structure may easily be extended along the Chicago and North Western over South boulevard and Hawthorne avenue to Thatcher avenue. From Thatcher avenue across the Des Plaines river to First avenue, Maywood, it will be a solid fill across the forest preserve. From First avenue it will run down hill to meet the St. Charles road just east of Fifth avenue, alongside the Maywood station of the Chicago and North Western railway.

No right of way needs to be purchased along this route as it is entirely in city streets and forest preserve and Maywood village park.

Work can start before trains cease operating on the Lake street elevated. Work ought to start at Maywood end and at Laramie avenue. After the section between Laramie avenue and Maywood is finished the operation of trains on Lake street will cease, and a reënforced concrete slab built in place of the present tracks.

Real estate will be benefited by the change from clattering elevated trains to silent automobiles.

Ramps will be built at Harlem, Central, Kenton and Ashland avenues and two at Wacker drive, one to the south to Washington street and one northeast to Franklin street. At Kenton avenue the Lake street structure will be lowered to Belt railroad grade and the Belt railroad will be raised above the Lake street structure.

Stairways to elevated stations will be used by passengers riding on the Chicago motor coaches, which will operate between Michigan avenue bridge and Maywood.

All motor coaches, interstate stage coaches and private autos will pay a 10 cent toll. Only light trucks will be allowed to use the Lake street superhighway.

This route can be built for a fraction of the cost of the Chicago Plan commission's route along Austin avenue and Kinzie street. It will take two years to get the right of way for the Austin-Kinzie route, saying nothing of the expense. The concrete slab can be built on the Lake street structure for $250,000 per mile, which is $2,500,000, from Wacker drive to 80th avenue. The whole job can be done for $5,000,000, which is only one-quarter of the cost of the Austin-Kinzie project.

EDITH McCORMICK JEWELS FOUND IN DEPOSIT VAULT

Part of the famous collection of jewels of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick has been found in her safety deposit box at the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Eugene Holland of the state treasurer's office revealed yesterday.

In the box were found two necklaces, one containing ten large white diamonds and the other seven large white diamonds. Four brooches containing precious stones also were listed. Each contained thirteen stones, one of emeralds, one of opals, one of rubies, and one of diamonds. Two pairs of diamond earrings completed the jewelry in the box.

Once Valued at $2,000,000.

Mrs. McCormick's jewels were once reputed to be worth $2,000,000. Their value diminished in late years with the lowering of jewel values and she was reported to have disposed of some of them. The value of the jewels found in the safety deposit box has not been estimated officially, but their value probably does not exceed $100,000, it was said.

Also found in the box were Mrs. McCormick's 52,350 shares in the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust. Fifty-two 1,000 share certificates and one 350 share certificate were listed. The value of these certificates depends upon the value of the properties deposited in the trust. A long analysis of these properties will be necessary.

The will, dated July 3, 1931, which was the third item discovered in the box, remained there yesterday. Mrs. McCormick's last will was drawn on Aug. 4, three weeks before her death. Mr. Holland said that Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, merely had to ask that the will be filed in the Probate court and such action must be taken. Mr. Caplan was absent from the court yesterday afternoon.

Examined by Treasurer.

The state treasurer, under the law, is required to make an examination of the safety deposit boxes of deceased persons and to report the contents of such boxes to the attorney general's office, where determination of the tax liability, if any, is made, Mr. Holland said. The responsibility of the state treasurer's office ends with the reporting of the finding of a will to the Probate court, he said, and further action in bringing the terms of the will to light must come from the Probate court.

Will Represent Executor.

Attorney Ben W. Lawless yesterday was appointed the representative of the Chicago Title and Trust company, executor of the estate, in the affairs of the McCormick trust. Lawless was formerly general counsel of Krenn & Dato, the real estate firm which handled all the properties in the trust.

Edward A. Dato of this concern said the appointment was made with his coöperation. He insisted that no control of the trust was involved, and that he and Edwin Krenn, the two remaining trustees, would remain in charge of the trust. Attorney Lawless will watch the executor's end of the administration of the properties of the trust and report to the executor.

"What about the agreement with Mr. Krenn whereby you pay him $2,000 a month for all his claims to the estate, including the five-twelfths he inherited under the will?" Dato was asked.

"At the proper time a full statement regarding that agreement will be made," stated Robert J. Hilliard, Dato's attorney.

BOY IS ARRESTED AFTER HIS CAR KILLS CHILD, 11

Fred Jasper Jr., 18 years old, of 8652 North Linder avenue, was arrested for a traffic violation last night while he was driving to the Belmont hospital to inquire after the condition of a young boy whom he had run down a few minutes earlier and fatally injured.

The victim of Jasper's car was Raymond Defner, 11 years old, of 3515 North Central avenue, who was run down at Cornelia and Linder avenues. During the excitement an unidentified driver picked up the dying boy and started for the hospital, Jasper following in his own car. At Kedzie and Thomas street Jasper went through a stop sign, and was arrested by Motorcycle Policemen Harry Jensby and Frank Lowing. He told them of the accident and was turned over to Cragin police.

Two other deaths increased the 1932 motor toll in Cook county to 777. The other victims:

Mrs. Elizabeth Braithwaite, 65 years old, of 3415 Bosworth avenue. Fatally injured at School street and Ashland avenue by the automobile of Mrs. Carl O. Larson, 846 Buckingham place.

Harding Porter, Negro, 42 years old, of 459 East 31st street. Died in the County hospital. He was injured Thursday at 14th street and the outer drive.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A munitions depot at Chitila blew up during the night, hurling shell fragments which wounded a number of inhabitants in that and nearby villages. One soldier of the watch was known to have been killed and a later check disclosed that the entire guard of sixteen soldiers and one officer was missing. It was feared that they also had perished. The depot was destroyed.

POLICE DRIVE ON MOTORISTS STIRS PROTESTS

Base Arrests on Minor Charges.

BY HAL FOUST.

The second day of the police campaign against motorists brought forth a statement from the Chicago Motor club last night protesting against wholesale arrests for trivial infractions of ordinances. The National Safety council, sponsor of the campaign, also issued a statement setting forth that it advocated selective enforcement and not quantity arrests.

CHARLES M. HAYES.

The safety council also emphasized that prompt court action with assured conviction for the guilty should be an objective of the drive. An investigation of the Traffic court records for August shows 1,874 dismissals out of 2,054 state statute violation cases brought by the police during the month. The record for city ordinance violations was 2,706 dismissals out of a total of 6,748 complaints.

Resume Tire Slashing.

While the police and courts were busy with their September safety campaign, some vandal started an independent enforcement of the dormant all night parking prohibition. Ten automobile owners yesterday morning found the tires slashed on their cars parked in Blackstone avenue, between 60th and 61st streets.

"The police activity in minor traffic cases during the last two days is discouraging," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club. "The uniformed men feel they must make a large number of arrests. They should concentrate on dangerous drivers."

"The court records are not conducive of good morale among the motoring public," Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the club, declared. "With so many escaping conviction, through one means or another, the fellow who pays a fine feels that he's a sap."

Council Explains Drive.

"I don't want to criticize either the police or the courts," said Sidney J. Williams, director of the National Safety council, "but with this traffic campaign being conducted under the sponsorship of the council, I feel it's my duty to make some comments.

"I want to call attention to the fact that the published program for this campaign does not call for wholesale arrests. It states that enforcement should be concentrated on those types of violations that are causing accidents and at places where the accidents are happening. The program also calls for prompt convictions in such cases."

It was estimated last night that the total arrests for two days was approximately 4,000.

Those who are given summonses for such minor violations as improper parking, no tail lights, etc., are directed to the "cafeteria court" in the city hall, where Mrs. J. Park Hackett, in charge of the "court," will accept the fines. A total of $700 was collected in this way yesterday.

Superintendent of Schools Bogan yesterday appealed to motorists to exercise extra caution in school districts, with the opening of classes Sept. 12.

ORDERS ARREST OF LAWYER ON FRAUD CHARGE

Judge Leon Edelman yesterday issued a capias for the arrest of Attorney Wilbur J. McGinness when the latter failed to appear in the Felony court to answer a charge of confidence game. The attorney is accused of taking money from policemen and firemen on the promise of obtaining promotions for them.

Deputy sheriffs were waiting in the courtroom to arrest McGinness on two new charges of confidence game. New indictments were returned against him on Aug. 10 after an investigation by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court disclosed that the original charges had been dismissed for want of prosecution on the motion of Assistant State's Attorney Nat S. Ruvell. Judge Fisher at that time criticized Prosecutor Ruvell for "imposing on the court."

Attorney Eugene L. McGarry, representing McGinness, had told Judge Fisher that his client was at liberty on $15,000 bond on the old charge in the Felony court, prosecutors said. When the case was called yesterday it was found that the bond was only $7,000 and that no surety had been posted. McGinness had signed his own bond before Judge John A. Sbarbaro, according to court records.

CITY CLEARS WAY TO DO ITS SHARE OF TRACK SUBWAY

The city has reached an agreement with property owners at Lake Park avenue and 47th street for payment of condemnation judgments on property in connection with construction of the proposed 47th street subway under the Illinois Central railroad tracks, City Controller Szymczak announced yesterday.

Since the city has invested a large part of the proceeds of a bond issue sold to pay the judgments in tax warrants, Corporation Counsel Sexton arranged with the owners of two pieces of property involved to accept a total of $47,147 in cash and $157,000 in tax warrants in satisfaction of their judgments. The payments will be made within a few days.

That will put construction of the subway up to the south park board, which is obligated under the lake front ordinance to build it. Some time ago the park commissioners informed the city that they could not go ahead with the improvement at this time. The city council, however, at the behest of Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], voted to go ahead with the city's share of the project. The death of one little girl and injury of another recently, as they were walking across the railroad tracks on their way home from the lake front at 47th street, led to new demands that the subway be built at once.

FOREMAN DIES OF INJURIES.

J. G. Kempe, 70 years old, a roundhouse foreman for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of injuries suffered July 2 when he fell downstairs while at work in the yards at 14th street and Damen avenue.

Business Brisk

A certain lemonade stand at Surf street and Pine Grove avenue did a land office business yesterday when children and grownups in the neighborhood learned that the proceeds were to go to THE TRIBUNE free ice fund. Some of those who stood behind the counter were in costume especially for the occasion. Those taking part in managing the benefit included Robert and Peter Bernays, Phoebe Betts, June May, and Charles and Marjorie Ann Gratz.

ROBBERS CRASH CROSSING GATES; MISSED BY TRAIN

Four robbers, fleeing yesterday afternoon after a holdup in the offices of the American Brokerage company, commission merchants at 1133 West Randolph street, drove their automobile through lowered gates of a North Western railroad crossing at Racine avenue and Fulton street and narrowly missed being wrecked by a switch engine.

The car, northbound, passed a few feet in front of the engine, hurtled through the gates on the opposite side of the tracks and sped on. Apparently the occupants were uninjured.

JUDGE ANNULS MARRIAGE OF YOUTHFUL PAIR

Superior Judge Ross C. Hall yesterday annulled the marriage of Jane Wickersham, 17 years old, daughter of Arthur S. Wickersham, 729 Central street, Evanston, and John Reed Fugard, 20 years old, son of John R. Fugard, 806 Clinton place, Evanston, partner in the firm of Thielbar & Fugard, architects. The young couple eloped to Waukegan on Wednesday evening. They returned home to find a meeting of their two families.

The bill for annulment was filed by Mr. Fugard in behalf of his son late yesterday afternoon. Immediately afterward Mrs. Frances Wickersham and her daughter and Mr. Fugard and his son went to Judge Hall's court. Both parents corroborated allegations in the bill that their children were under age and separated immediately after their return to Chicago on Wednesday. Judge Hall indicated that he would sign the decree.

"But come to me when you both are of age," he told the young couple as they left the courtroom. "I'll marry you then. You won't have to elope to Waukegan."

Miss Wickersham will be a senior at Evanston High school next term. Young Fugard is a student at Lehigh college.

SENTENCE WIFE OF A PROFESSOR TO WORKHOUSE

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Eleanor Henderson, wife of Dr. Donald Henderson, professor of economics at Columbia, was sentenced in Harlem court to ten days in the workhouse today by Magistrate Aurelio for her part in an effort to storm the home relief bureau office in East 125th street on Monday.

When her sentence, and that of Samuel Brown, 25 years old, a Negro, were announced, about twenty-five sympathizers in court took up the "Internationale" as they marched out, and two of them were arrested after a near riot. Brown was sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse.

Prof. Henderson was in court and when asked if he had anything to say he criticized the court severely, alleging racial prejudice.

In her own defense Mrs. Henderson said that the group of unemployed with which she had gone to the relief bureau merely had sought to ask aid of the director. She made a plea of leniency for Brown because he had already been in jail four days. Brown told the court that he and Mrs. Henderson had been arrested merely because they happened to be nearest Patrolman George Green, the complaining witness.

JUGO-SLAVIA BARS FOREIGN NEWSPAPERS THAT PRINT THE NEWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Sept. 2.—The liberty of the native press having long ago been trampled down by the harsh dictatorship of King Alexander, new steps have just been taken to keep out foreign newspapers whose local correspondents succeed in getting out the real story of what is happening here.

To this purpose the entire business of importing foreign publications has been declared a state monopoly. It will be taken over by the Avala agency, the official news service of Jugo-Slavia. Private news dealers have been ordered to liquidate their business within three months. The Avala starts functioning immediately.

The government believes that with one government organization controlling the importation of foreign newspapers and periodicals, it will be easier to keep out those which print anything distasteful to the régime.

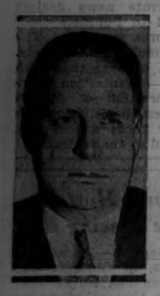
SUE DEMOCRATIC AID TO ACCOUNT FOR $300,000

Jackson Admits He Lost Money in Speculation.

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Robert Jackson, secretary of the Democratic national committee and recently appointed chairman of the committee's speakers' bureau, is defendant in a $300,000 suit brought by the Accumulative Royalties corporation, of which he was secretary and treasurer in 1928-1929.



ROBERT JACKSON.

The suit came to light in the Supreme court today when counsel for Mr. Jackson appeared before Supreme Court Justice Alfred Frankenthaler in special term part 1, and asked that the time required for filing his answer be extended until after the election in November.

Jackson Seeks Delay.

According to the complaint made out in the plaintiff's behalf by counsel, Watson Washburn, former assistant attorney general in charge of the New York bureau of securities, Mr. Jackson appropriated more than $300,000 of the plaintiff's funds for speculative purposes and lost it.

Two years ago the attorney general in New Hampshire refused to entertain criminal charges which were brought against Mr. Jackson in that state as the result of the same $300,000 "shortage" alleged in the civil suit filed here today. At that time Mr. Jackson produced a contract which he said had given him the right to use the money in question as he saw fit. At the same time he is alleged to have admitted that he used the money for speculation and lost it.

The complaint, it was brought out during argument of the motion, states that Mr. Jackson sold more than $1,000,000 in stocks of the Royalties company, raising three-fourths of it in New York City and the balance in New Hampshire. The plaintiff company was organized in 1927, and early in 1930, according to Mr. Washburn, a shortage of $350,000 in the accounts was discovered.

Organizer of Chain Stores.

Mr. Jackson, who lives in Concord, was chairman of the New Hampshire Democratic committee for twelve years, resigning that post to become a member of the national committee. Although a lawyer, he has not practiced for many years, having devoted his time to business and politics. He was the organizer, and for many years head of the Dominion Stores, the largest chain of stores in Canada. He is well known in Concord, Boston, and New York as an art connoisseur and philanthropist.

He was one of the backers of Rene Fonck, the French ace, who attempted to fly from New York to Paris in 1926, only to have his giant Sikorsky plane crash at the takeoff and burn to death his radio operator and mechanician.

MAN STUNG TO DEATH BY BEES.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Coroner William F. York today began an investigation to determine whether Brooks Slater, 64, a carpenter, whose mutilated body had been found in a field, was stung to death by wild bees. The body was found beside a tree in which a huge swarm of bees had a nest. An ax was beside the body. Slater had apparently tried to fell the tree and angered the bees, the coroner said.

CO-AUTHORSHIP OF CAPITAL BOOK COSTS HIS JOB

Baltimore Correspondent Is Dismissed.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Drew Pearson, member of the Baltimore Sun's Washington staff, has been dismissed by his paper, it was learned here today, because of his co-authorship of "More Merry-Go-Round," recently published sequel to "Washington Merry-Go Round." The volumes expose and satirize the foibles and scandals of official and social Washington.

DREW PEARSON.

Robert S. Allen, the other co-author of the two books, was dismissed as Washington correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor at the time the first volume appeared.

Hurley Takes Exception.

Charges made by Allen at that time, that pressure from the administration had been employed in obtaining his discharge, found an echo today when it was learned that Secretary of War Hurley had taken vigorous exception to the chapter in "More Merry-Go-Round" describing him as the "cotillion leader."

Mr. Pearson has covered the state and war departments for his paper.

Complains to Management.

Mr. Hurley, it is reported, summoned Author Pearson to his office last week in order that he might voice his objections to the offensive chapter, which found amusement in the secretary's alleged social aspirations. Mr. Hurley is said also to have called in J. Fred Essary, head of the Sun's Washington bureau, and subsequently to have complained directly to the management of the Sun, stating that the book contained many inaccuracies.

Pearson was summoned to Baltimore yesterday and dismissed, William E. Moore, managing editor of the Sun, explaining, "We felt that as a result of his work on this book he had destroyed his usefulness to this newspaper."

NIAGARA GORGE SERVES AS ALTAR AS INDIANS WED

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—With the rugged walls of the Niagara gorge as the altar and the throaty roar of the river the only music, two young Tuscarora Indians were married today in a ceremony as old as the tribe itself.

Standing on a jutting ledge which overhangs the whirlpool, Vivian Rickard, 18, became the bride of Clifford Printup, 20, as her grandfather, Sachem Chief Rickard, chanted the ancient ceremonial rites.

After the young couple was pronounced wedded the traditional marriage dance begun.

MURDER SUSPECT CLEARS SELF BY BEING IN JAIL

Gangster Found Shot to Death in Car.

George Downs, south side gang leader, sought as a suspect in the murder of Walter [The Terrible Pole] Zwolinski, was discovered in a cell in the Englewood police station yesterday afternoon. Downs was in the cell at the time Zwolinski was taken for a "ride."

After Zwolinski's body was discovered early yesterday with six bullets in his head in his automobile in an alley near 54th street and Artesian avenue, search was begun for Downs on the theory the slaying of Zwolinski had been the result of dissension within the McGeoghegan-Downs-Quinlan beer gang. The theory was abandoned when it was learned that Downs had an iron clad alibi. He had been jailed as the result of an auto collision.

Suspected in O'Donnell Murder.

Zwolinski, with McGeoghegan and Downs, was suspected in the murder of Charles O'Donnell, brother of Edward [Spike] O'Donnell five months ago. He was also suspected in the murder, two months ago, of James McGee, a policeman who turned hoodlum.

Zwolinski was known in gangland circles as "business agent of the switchman's union," because he had frequently shifted allegiance. He began his career as an auto thief and was recruited by Frank McErlane, another south side chieftain.

He later joined the O'Donnell forces. "Spike" O'Donnell referred to Zwolinski as one of his "blue eyed Irish boys." Zwolinski broke with the O'Donnells when he stabbed Steve O'Donnell's pet goat with a pitchfork in a fit of rage. The incident won Zwolinski his picturesque nickname.

The O'Donnell gang crumbled shortly after Zwolinski joined the McGeoghegan-Downs-Quinlan combine. "Spike" fled to California after the death of Charles, the second brother to fall under gangland guns.

Shot at Close Range.

Zwolinski's body was bruised. Police believed he had been shot elsewhere and driven to the place where the body was found. Powder burns indicated that he had been shot at close range.

Zwolinski lived at 2714 West 56th street with his wife, Victoria. The wife refused to talk to Capt. Thomas Kilroy of the New City police. The inquest was set for this morning at 10 o'clock.

Trimble, 4147 West Congress street, charged that Wilk had collected mortgages for them and failed to turn over the money. The Wilk-Clarke company went into receivership last January.

FORBIDS POLICE TO STOP SHOWING OF MOVIE FILM

After viewing a motion picture film "Party Girl" at a projection room of the Capital Film corporation at 825 South Wabash avenue, yesterday, Superior Judge Joseph B. David issued an injunction restraining the police from interfering with the showing of the picture. The board of censors denied a permit for the showing of the film, after which the Capital Film corporation sought an injunction.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Otto F. Weiner appeared to represent the censors. He charged that the picture was immoral, and offered to bring in women censors to testify.

"This picture is no more immoral than are the great masterpieces such as Shakespeare's 'Macbeth' or 'Romeo and Juliet,'" said Judge David. "If 'Anthony and Cleopatra' were to be shown here would it, too, be censored?"

"I think that it would be," Weiner answered. "I think that the censors would demand the deletion of certain portions."

2 KILLED WHEN POLICE FIGHT WITH THIEVES

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Two thugs were killed, another was fatally wounded, two policemen were shot, one, it is feared, fatally, and a citizen was wounded in a revolver battle between thieves and policemen in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn today.

The thieves were surprised attempting to hold up a pawnshop. The alarm was given when one of the thieves attempted to open the safe and set off a signal in a protective agency downtown.

An emergency alarm was sent to all cruising police cars. The first car to arrive carried Patrolmen Peter De Carlo and Antonio De Franco.

They charged into the pawn shop. A lookout at the door fired and De Carlo fell. De Franco shot the lookout and the firing became general as other policemen arrived. When the smoke of battle cleared Patrolman De Carlo was found to be shot in the neck and dying, Patrolman Ralph Malafronte was shot in the leg, a thief named Nussbaum was killed, and another named William Dunn was dying. A thief, George Kelly of Philadelphia, was shot dead while trying to escape.

Annunzio Pisciotta, a bystander, was shot in the leg.

Visiting Cards Have Origin in Peace Offering

Credit Modern Custom to Germany.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

EVANSTON'S beloved Cornelia Gray Lunt, before old enough to be presented to society, insisted that her first visiting cards bear the inscription, "Orrington Lunt's daughter." It was, she explains, her childish idea of paying the proper respect to her father, the founder of Evanston.

The incident came to mind the other day when the question was asked, "Why do we have visiting cards—when and where did the custom originate?" And it is a timely question just now when society is entering upon another formal indoor season after a gay informal summer out of doors.

To answer in a brief sentence—the custom originated with the first paleolithic lady who left a bit of carved stone at her neighbor's cave as a sort of peace offering. Here was the first visiting card. Back of her action was the earlier custom of one tribe warning another of its approach if on a friendly mission.

But along with most of the fashions of that paleolithic age, the stone visiting card gave way in the course of time to many and various styles that unravel the story of the modern card placed upon a tray reposing on the hall table or offered the butler at the threshold.

The exact date that European custom adopted the visiting card and so introduced it into general use remains one for some scholar interested in social research to determine. It is generally stated, however, that it was used first in the western world by the Germans in the 16th century—that it followed that earlier fashion of inscribing the name in the great book at the entrance of a house of the rich or powerful. A century later the court of Louis XIV. of France, a center of fashion and etiquette, seized upon the custom as peculiarly fitted to the manners of the time.

The plain German card under the influence of French elegance underwent many an elaborate touch in finish, execution, and adornment. Engravings of real or fanciful landscapes were added and later an autograph signature beneath the engraved picture. There is still preserved the card of the Marquis de Llano decorated by the artist Raphael Mengs with a wreath of roses and olives. Another bears the picture of a spaniel holding a miniature card in his mouth on which appears the name of Adam Bartsch, the celebrated author of the "Peintre Graveur," a work published in Venice in 21 volumes.

But as the pendulum always swings backward after a period of great ostentation in any social custom, a wave of extreme simplicity in visiting cards set in during the 18th century when they were carried across to England. Even ordinary playing cards were used with the name scribbled in pen or pencil on the back. Proof of this is found in one of Hogarth's plates showing a number of playing cards scattered on the floor. One is scrawled, "Count Basset begs to no how Lade Squander sleapt last nite," and on another, "Lade Squander's company is desired at Miss Hairbrane's Rout."

Toward the close of the 19th century such social carelessness was frowned upon and the simple white card engraved in black that we know today came into favor. And speaking of the '80s and '90s, has any one forgotten the visiting days when dozens of cards were dispensed as ladies rushed about from house to house seldom inquiring if the hostess was at home—for fear of finding her in? The shadowy ghosts of the brougham and victoria and a few cards yellowing in their case are all that is left of the custom now, except in diplomatic circles. Calling and card leaving have limited themselves, sadly enough, almost entirely to the calls of obligation—those made on brides, newcomers, or persons suffering an affliction, or death in the family.

And even on these occasions some of society's older matrons believe that members of the younger set fail to treat the card tray with the respect that it deserves. There is the story of the daughter of a distinguished house who, upon her marriage, received from an old friend of her mother an exceptionally handsome silver card tray. The friend, a social leader in a southern city which prides itself upon its correctness, later passed through the city and called upon the young bride in her modest but perfect apartment.

When tea was served, the young matron passed her guest some candies—on the silver card tray. The older woman soon turned the conversation to drop the suggestion that the tray was not intended for a bonbon dish.

"O," said the bride, "I keep all of my cards in my desk and this is so pretty, I like to show it."

On leaving the friend noted that not only was there no card tray in the hall but no table on which to put one. She returned to the south with dreadful doubts about what the world might be coming to!

Fall Season of Society to Open Monday

Travelers Called Home by Many Duties.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALTHOUGH it is difficult to designate any social season as a period of time between two dates, Labor day signifies to the social world the end of summer and the beginning of that short fall season which is a prelude to the winter's gayety.

The fortnight after Labor day usually sees the return of vacationers from their summer travels. The assembling of fall wardrobes, the business of getting children off to school, early charity board meetings, plans for debutantes, and a dozen other duties necessitate homeward journeys in early September.

The Laurance Armours, who have been at the Keego club on Coleman lake, Wis., since early August, will hurry home in order to be on hand for the opening of the Onwentsia hunt season at Milburn on Monday morning. They will leave the Keego club tomorrow night.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon and her three pretty daughters will return on Wednesday afternoon from a month's holiday at Plum lake in northern Wisconsin. Peggy, the oldest daughter, is to depart soon for Miss Nixon's school in Florence, and the younger girls will return to the Lake Forest Country Day school.

Other Travelers Return Soon.

Mrs. Philip B. Maher is expected to return tomorrow or Monday with her two little boys from Desbarats, although Mr. Maher says she may postpone her return until after Labor day. She will have to be back very shortly, however, because of her duties on one of the women's committees for the Latin Quartier fêtes to be held at the Drake hotel on the 30th.

Other travelers who are expected to return some time this week from various parts of the globe are the Lester Armours, who have been visiting Mr. Armour's mother, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, at Southampton, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine and their daughter, Miss Jane Valentine, who have been at their Green Meadow farm at Ashland, Mass., since the early part of June; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Borland, who have been taking a short holiday abroad with Mrs. John Jay Borland, and Mr. and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg and their children of Lake Forest, who went to Europe last June.

Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, who has been traveling abroad all summer with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Luce of New York, is to sail homeward on Tuesday and probably will stop off in the east for a few days with the Luces, who returned a fortnight ago, before coming to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and their son and daughter, Albert P. and Miss Suzette Dewey, were to have returned this week from Europe, but have decided to remain away another fortnight.

Bartle Bulls Return Tuesday.

The former Rosemary Baur and her husband, Bartle Bull, who have been traveling around the world since their marriage last fall, are expected to arrive in Chicago on Tuesday.

Their return has been postponed several times since they landed at Vancouver and started traveling eastward about 6 weeks ago, but Mrs. Bull's mother, Mrs. Jacob Baur, has received definite word of their arrival on Tuesday.

Mrs. Baur is not going to plan any entertainment for them until after they reach Chicago. Their permanent residence is to be in London.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Baur will preside at the third of a series of teas being given by the Woman's National Republican club. The affair will be at 3:30 o'clock on the sky terrace of the Tavern club.

The championship polo game for supremacy of the north shore will be played on Monday between the Onwentsia and Fort Sheridan teams at 4:30 o'clock on the army field. The series which these two teams have been playing now stands two games each.

Tomorrow afternoon an Oak Brook team will meet the Army at Fort Sheridan at 4:30 o'clock, an hour later than the usual Sunday starting time, because of the Sixth corps area rifle matches being held this week at the fort. A second Army polo team will meet another Oak Brook team at 3:30 o'clock on the Oak Brook stadium.

Van Hagen Wedding Is a Surprise.

The announcement in yesterday's TRIBUNE of the marriage of Mrs. Ardietta Ford Van Hagen to John W. Esmond was a surprise to most of their acquaintances, but some of the former Mrs. Van Hagen's more intimate friends in Barrington and on the north shore had been told of her plans. After a trip to Europe they plan to spend the winter in the south and then settle in St. Paul, where Mrs. Esmond has been residing with her mother, Mrs. Silas M. Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr. will close their Barrington farmhouse, which they have occupied all summer, and return to their Lake Forest residence around Oct. 1. In the meantime they will leave shortly after Labor day for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Rochester Flauger at Land o' Lakes, Wis.

With all the principal White mountain resorts in the path of totality for the solar eclipse, a great number of visitors arrived there early this week and many of them are staying for the Labor day week-end. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, with her son-in-law and daughter, the Ernest C. Pooles, and Mrs. J. G. M. Giesaner were among those who saw the eclipse from the gardens of Mountain View.

Harvest Time for Shoppers Has Arrived

Season for New Things Opens Officially.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

UNLESS you belong to the unpopular few who have been doing a private job of hoarding dollars, you are now gleefully reading the papers, listening to shopping tales as told by early bird shoppers who see all, hear all, and tell, more than all, about the new things around the town to spend your money for.

These are the days the shophound slides out of bed in the morning, slaps the newest hat in her wardrobe on her head, grabs the money bags and proceeds on the most satisfying buying binge of the year.

After days of steaming heat and the sight of a bedraggled summer wardrobe, the gleam in the buying eye becomes a scorching, flaming desire for new fall apparel . . . and the great rush has started officially.

Some of the new things to look for are cape collars fashioned very much like the old time coachman's coat collar. These are now displayed in gleaming white satin, in dull crêpe silk and pique . . . but the newest models are the knitted ones of white woolly angora.

You've no idea how fetching these angora woolies can be until you wear them over a dark colored frock . . . you will find them in short shoulder widths and longer, reaching well down toward the elbow . . . they are knitted in a very open and loose manner somewhat like the famous open holed tight caps the gals wore so frequently this summer.

Other knit affairs are closely knit to look like a bumpy crocheted pattern. These can be selected in two color combinations that are knockouts for your plain tailored wool dresses.

Velvet ascot scarfs are going to tie around most of the best wrapped throats this fall. They come in lovely bright colors that will do magical things for color contrast for your winter suits. Striped knitted wool ascot scarfs are also new, quite gay things that will provide plenty of gorgeous color accent for street and sports costumes.

The business gal who drags homework back and forth will welcome a new kind of a brief case . . . they are finds, especially if you like something a bit more feminine than the much used leather affairs. They were originally designed for school loot, but there is no reason why busy grown-ups shouldn't appreciate them and use them for themselves.

These cases or portfolios are made of heavy felt, in brown, black, blue, and wine. They look huge, capacious and swanky when they match your costume . . . there is a deep pocket for papers, charts, maps; or anything else you need, a couple of loops for pen or pencils and a holder for a small scratch pad, and the low price tag will make you blink.

Something else that is new and this is small and compact and designed to be carried in handbags is the new tiny perfume bottle. Lelong, the famous designer, sponsors this diminutive costume accessory. And you can travel about with an instant supply of your favorite odeur, for Lelong has also designed the so-called "travel kit," a tiny, compact round box holding three very small bottles, each filled with a different scent, whiffs of three perfumes to use for week-end trips and short vacation tours.

More "new little things" will be listed as they are discovered!

A test of the unusual echo beneath the hanging dome of the World's Fair Travel and Transport building was conducted yesterday with an eye toward taming the reverberations for the Modern Age exhibition, which opens in the structure on Oct. 1. As many as thirty echoes have been heard from one sound. The exhibition will be sponsored by the National Association of Radio, Refrigeration, and Electrical distributors.

O'Rossen Suit Paris Favorite for the Street

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—(Special.)—Those Parisiennes who omitted a woolen tailored suit from their wardrobes this season are scurrying to get one, for as this type of model is fashion's favorite child for the street. Suits that are intended to trot around town are simple and strictly tailored this fall. They are often made in striped and plain materials. O'Rossen is responsible for this combination which many of his fashionable clients have adopted.

The O'Rossen suit, shown in our sketch today, is the kind of striped and plain suit that is most popular. The skirt is made of blue and gray striped wool, with a smooth surface, and the stripes form chevrons down the front, being joined diagonally in a center front seam. The hip length jacket is semi-fitted, and buttoned straight down the front with five buttons. It is made of smooth blue woolen and it has a tailored collar and revers of striped wool like that of the skirt.

The blouse, which is double breasted and cut like a vest, is made of pastel blue silk moire. The blouse in pastel color is a smart detail for the dark colored suit worn in the early fall.

Prizes of 4-H Club Fair at Aurora to Be Awarded Today

Final awards of prizes will be made today at the 4-H club fair at Exposition park in Aurora, where more than 1,000 farm boys and girls from Will, Kane, Kendall, De Kalb and Du Page counties are exhibiting their products.

The boys and girls are running the fair themselves, the first time such an experiment has been tried in the middle west. In the past, 4-H clubs of the state have generally held their annual exhibitions in connection with county fairs.

Both boys and girls are exhibiting calves, steers and cows of dairy and beef breeds which they have fed and raised, as well as sheep, hogs and poultry. The girls are also exhibiting preserves, cakes and other kitchen products made by themselves, and at 2:30 o'clock today girls attending the fair will compete in a style parade, wearing dresses which they have made.

Stock Returns from Concerts in California

Urges Summer Music for Chicago.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, paused a few hours in Chicago yesterday on his way to Fish Creek, Wis., from California, where he has been conducting a series of summer concerts. Eight programs in the Hollywood bowl with the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra and one in the Woodland theater of San Mateo with the San Francisco Symphony orchestra have made him more enthusiastic than ever over the possibilities of summer music in Chicago and his enthusiasm was in no degree diminished at hearing reports of the attendance upon the Chicagoland Music Festival and the "Aida" performance in Soldiers' field.

Hollywood bowl is an ideal place for summer music, he says. It has a seating capacity of 25,000, to say nothing of room for thousands more on the hill sides above the seats and parking space for 5,000 automobiles. Moreover, he reports that it is the rule rather than the exception that a capacity audience attends. American audiences in his opinion are turning more and more toward music, particularly well played symphonic music.

In the remaining month of his vacation Mr. Stock will busy himself preparing programs for the Chicago Symphony season which opens in October, and there is a hint, though not a certified fact, that he may bring back some music of his own composition.

Verdi's "Il Trovatore," postponed from last Wednesday night because of rain, will be sung in Soldiers' field this evening, with Anna Leskaya as Leonora, Dreda Aves as Azucena, Pasquale Ferrara as Manrico, Pasquale Amato as the Count di Luna, and Nino Ruisi as Ferrando. Giuseppe Creatore, who made his Chicago debut as an operatic conductor last Sunday night, will direct.

Mounted horsemen will appear in two scenes, that of the gypsies and that of the Count di Luna's army encampment. It will be the first time in the history of this opera that this particular form of realism has been employed.

Here's Sample Order to Film Makeup Chief

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 2.—How would you like to be a movie makeup man?

Here's the order the makeup director got at Universal City: "Make up Boris Karloff with an effect of opaqueness, bordering on transparency," for scenes in "The Invisible Man."

In other scenes of this thriller Karloff will be required to register his presence before the camera by only some signs or movements, without actually appearing, so that the audience can imagine his presence, but won't see him.

Lionel Barrymore has been presented with a mustache cup, one of the Victorian kind with a perforated porcelain lip on the inside, by his director, Richard Boleslavsky. The Rasputin beard was too tough to take off for lunch and Lionel could not negotiate coffee with all the shrubbery on his face.

Gene Tunney and his speeches on Shakespeare may have suggested something for the new rôle that George Raft is playing at Paramount in "Night After Night." George plays a prize fighter who turns literary, in other words he goes cultured with Alison Skipworth for his tutor in efforts to crash society.

Bing Crosby, Nick Stuart and Lew Ayres are fishermen three, gone to sea for the long swordfish that live in the Mexican sea.

Pike Peterses Get 'Down to Earth' Again

Will Rogers Loses Roll in New Film.

"DOWN TO EARTH."
Produced by Fox.
Directed by David Butler.
Presented at the Chicago theater.
THE CAST:

Pike Peters	Will Rogers
Julia Pearson	Dorothy Jordan
Idy Peters	Irene Rich
Ross Peters	Matty Kemp
Jackie Harper	Mary Carlisle
Ed Eggers	Clarence Wilson
Grand Duke Michael	Theodore Lodi
Butler	Brandon Hurst
Mrs. Phillips	Louise Mackintosh
Cameron	Harvey Clark

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"It took an international catastrophe to knock some sense into my head!"

Pike Peters speaking.

You remember Pike—the fellow who ran a garage in Oklahoma? And made a lot of money—in oil, wasn't it? After which he and Idy his wife and their son Ross, well—"They Had to See Paris"? Where they hobnobbed with whoever of importance would hobnob with them? (Not that Pike gave a hoot about the social business, but because Idy had Ideas?) Remember the friendship that sprang up between Pike and the Grand Duke Michael of Russia—or "Mike," as Pike called him after a few heartwarmers?

Yes, yes, you say, we remember! Go on, go on! You reviewed "They Had to See Paris" ONCE . . . !!!

Well, after the Peterses returned to Oklahoma Idy doesn't rest until she has a palace to live in comparable to some of the piles she saw over there, over there. Then she aspires to become the town's social leader, for which title and position she carries on a hot contest with a certain Mrs. Cameron, whom, she feels, she must outdo in every respect.

Money is spent like water. And how Pike hates it all! His heart's back in the comfortable, unfashionable home on a side street, where he and Idy had such cozy, happy times before they came into their fortune. She's not the same Idy any more—but Pike loves his wife, and in a way gets a kick out of her durn foolishness, till—Old Man Depression comes creaking up the walk . . . !

"Hear that?" asks Pike of Idy. But, somehow or other, Idy can't seem to—at first.

When she does she goes about placating the visitor in a peculiar fashion, that sends him into tantrums that spell—what do you imagine?

DON'T imagine that you know all about this story. It has a number of complications that will surprise you.

Will Rogers as Pike—is Will Rogers. He ambles through the action in his quizzical, lop-eared fashion, dispensing laughs and the homely philosophy and wisecracks for which he is justly famous. He is the greatest American humorist because he is the most natural and spontaneous.

Irene Rich does a good job as Idy—though at times you do long to choke the lady! Dorothy Jordan is nice, if a bit saccharine as Ross Peters' fiancée. Marty Kemp plays Rops in gigolo fashion. Couldn't seem to care much about him.

The story, by Homer Croy, who wrote "They Had to See Paris," is a bit bulky and improbable. Direction is satisfactory. So are supporting players. Theodore Lodi, as "Mike," is here accorded special mention. Staging and costumes are elaborate.

A typical Will Rogers teature. Which means—better see it.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

The Death Watch

By Edgar Wallace

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Dunn of Scotland Yard is in pursuit of a band of thieves who some years before had robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London. The robbers spent nine years in jail for the theft, but the loot was never recovered. Peter's buddy, Inspector Sam Allerway, was dismissed in disgrace, accused of taking a bribe from the head thief, and killed himself. Peter, the only baronet in the service, kept right on working after he came into his title and fortune. It was his form of fun and he wanted to vindicate Allerway. The year after the robbers were released Peter, on a vacation, cruising on the Thames, recognizes a servant in a supposedly haunted house as one of the robbers. Peter stays to investigate. The house is owned by Mr Hannay, and is one of two identical villas lying side by side. Hannay's has been improved, while the other is deserted and decayed. Neither Hannay nor his daughter, Pat, believes the ghost stories, but the servants leave one by one. Hannay invites Mr. Hersoff, a scientist living in the neighborhood, to be his guest. Pat, driving near her home, nearly collides with Peter's car. She meets Peter again in her garden, where she has just encountered a huge, grotesque man, who says he is the new gardener. Peter learns that the deserted villa had recently been inhabited. He calls on Pat early in the evening and puts a book on her bookshelf, which he asks her not to touch unless there is urgent need.

INSTALLMENT XII.

A PLACE OF DOOM.

"What's this book?"

Mr. Hannay stretched out his hand. Pat hastily intervened.

"'Advice to a Young Lady of Fashion.' That's an old thing, isn't it? Who is the author?"

"I don't know who the author is," said Pat rapidly, "only I don't want you to touch it. It belongs to a friend of mine."

He looked at her suspiciously.

"It isn't one of those neurotic——"

"Don't be stupid, darling. It belongs to a friend of mine, and that is sufficient."

She asked herself, after he had left, why she had made such a scene, and exactly how important the wishes of the man called Peter were to her.

The professor came down to breakfast with them, but heard of Mr. Hannay's decision for the first time that afternoon. Pat found him walking about the grounds on her return from Maidenhead, where she had driven Mr. Hannay, who banked in that town.

"Are you admiring my car or our garage?" asked Pat.

Herzoff turned quickly and smiled.

"I didn't know you were back. Well, has your father let the house?"

She shook her head.

"No," she said quietly. "I have persuaded him to stay on."

He was taken aback by this.

"Do you know the story of this place?"

She nodded.

"Daddy told me on our way into Maidenhead."

"And you still wish to stay?"

"I still wish to stay," she said.

She felt a sudden antagonism towards this man, an antagonism which was unreasonable and unfounded. Herzoff chuckled.

"You're a very brave girl," he said. "I admire you for it, but I hope you will persuade your father to get out. You may laugh at me for a foolish, middle aged man with illusions, but I am psychrometric, and I have a feeling that this house at the moment is a place of doom for all of you."

"That's exactly the kind of house I like to live in," said Pat, with sudden recklessness.

On her way back to the house passed the gardener. He straightened his back as she came near him, and to her indignation and amazement hailed her.

"Hullo, young lady! Having a chat with the professor? He's a swell fellow! But he's not much better than me."

Then, to her horror, he put out his big paw and caught her under the chin, lifting up her head. She was paralyzed with fury. Then she struck at the big hand and went running towards the house.

Herzoff had been a witness of the scene. He came slowly across the garden. He was paring his nails with a small penknife, apparently intent upon his occupation, and he did not lift his eyes until he came face to face with the gardener.

"Don't do that," he said gently.

"Do what?" growled the big man.

"Don't touch that young lady."

Twice Herzoff's hand came up and down, and the gardener's cheeks went suddenly red and wet. The man uttered a roar and put up his hand to his slashed face.

"Don't do that."

There was a whimper in his face that was absurd in so big a man.

"There was no cause for that."

"Don't interfere with that young lady. Go and wash your face. Mr. Higgins will give you a little sticking plaster."

Pat came breathlessly into the kitchen. Mr. Higgins was putting glasses on a tray, and looked round at her in surprise.

"Higgins," said Pat breathlessly, "who is this new gardener?"

"I don't know much about him, miss, but I'm told he's a very respectable chap——"

"Well, discharge him at once," she said.

"Why, miss, I'm sorry to hear you say that. He's not very presentable, but faces don't mean anything—that's my experience."

"It's dreadful that we've got to have men like that about the house," said Pat, and she made for the door of the dining room.

Higgins shook his head sadly.

"Well, miss, you can't get people to stay in a house that's supernatural. Personally I don't mind, though it gets me worried at times."

Suddenly Pat remembered something.

"Where has he been sleeping—this gardener?"

Higgins hesitated.

"In the cellar, miss, but he won't sleep there now because of the noises."

"Have you the key?"

She put out her hand for it, and Higgins took it from his pocket.

"I wouldn't go down there if I were you, miss."

"I don't want to go down," she said sharply. "I want to lock the door so that nobody else can go down.

She tried the door; it was already fastened, and she slipped the key into her bag.

"That man doesn't sleep in this house tonight—understand that," she said.

"Very good, miss," said Higgins, a little hurt.

She saw Herzoff as she passed through the breakfast room.

"That man will not annoy you again, Miss Pat."

"I don't think he will," said Pat. "I've told Higgins to get rid of him."

His lips pursed.

"I assure you he's been punished enough——" he began.

"And I assure you, Professor Herzoff, that he will leave Chesterford today," said Pat.

There had been another witness to the incident in the garden. Peter Dunn had found a new point of vantage—a branch of a tree that overhung the little private road which was Mr. Hannay's very own. So situated, he could not get down to deal with the loutish gardener, but he had watched with some satisfaction and astonishment Professor Herzoff's summary administration of justice. He saw the girl and Herzoff go into the house, and waited. All that morning he had been hoping to meet her, and had his car conveniently parked so that he might follow and overtake her if she came out. And now, when his own machine was a quarter of a mile away, it looked as if he was to be baffled, for he saw her cross the lawn towards the garage, drawing on her gloves. There was no time for him to get his car.

I've about decided, by the look of my desk, that a fall month, even though it might bring plenty of warm weather, is all that is needed for a "back to the kitchen" movement. The first essential seems to be recipes—old ones that have sneaked off into hiding, leaving only their glamorous memory, and new ones to put zest into fall and winter eating.

Question No. 1 comes from K. M. K., who asks: "Do you know of a sauce called the 'Hunter's sauce'? It is to be used on meat, especially boiled tongue, I think it is a thickened, sour, spiced sauce."

Answer—Perhaps this is the sauce of which you are thinking. It is delicious with any mild flavored meat:

HUNTER'S SAUCE.

1 level tablespoon flour.
¼ cup rich meat stock.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
1 teaspoon vinegar.
1 teaspoon lemon juice.
½ teaspoon minced parsley.
1 bay leaf.
¼ teaspoon thyme.
¼ cup currant jelly.

The spices in this sauce may be varied, some left out or others substituted. Blend the butter and flour and stir in the meat stock and seasonings. Let simmer ten minutes, then stir in the vinegar, lemon juice, and the softened currant jelly. Simmer until hot and serve immediately.

Question [from Miss E. B.]—Have you any recipes for cake or cookies which may be made without eggs and preferably with brown sugar?

Answer—This odd little cake should fit into your diet and I'm sure you will enjoy it:

ALMOND ROLL SLICES.

1 cup sugar.
1 1-3 cup butter.
1 teaspoon lemon extract.
¾ teaspoon salt.
Blanched almonds.

Cream the butter and mix thoroughly into it the lemon extract. Add the flour and work the two intimately together with the fingers or crossed knives. When well blended, add the sugar and salt and nuts and continue working until a firm dough is formed. Roll into a sausage shape and chill. Cut off slices about ¾ inch thick, placing them on a buttered baking dish an inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] 35 minutes.

Question [Miss A. M.]—Will you kindly send me menus for a picnic outing?

Answer—Indeed, yes. And I guarantee that they're good, for I have more than sampled them both with great enjoyment already this season.

PICNIC LUNCH [COLD].

Deviled Egg and Celery Salad
Minced Ham and Pickle Sandwich
Date-Nut Sandwich
Packaged Potato Chips

PICNIC DINNER [HOT].

Hunter's Grill
Roast Corn
Buttered Buns
Fresh Tomatoes
Mixed Fruit
Assorted Cookies
Steeped Coffee
Marshmallows to Roast

Question [from Miss A. W.]—Would you send me a cake recipe with butterscotch frosting? The cake is made with sour cream and brown sugar.

Answer—I think you will like it better if a light brown sugar is used rather than the darker grade:

SOUR CREAM CAKE.

2 eggs, beaten well.
1 cup sour cream.
1 1-3 cups flour.
1-3 cup chopped nuts.
¾ teaspoon soda.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Blend the cream and eggs and mix with the brown sugar. Stir in the dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Add the vanilla and nuts and beat two minutes. Turn into a buttered loaf pan and bake in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] about half an hour.

BUTTERSCOTCH FROSTING.

1-3 cup brown sugar.
1-3 cup butter.
1-3 cup cream.

Mix the ingredients and boil until a soft ball forms in cold water [about twelve minutes]. Cool without stirring, then beat until right consistency to spread.

Elder Gives Sage Pointers on Behavior

Aimless Young Girls in for Criticism.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Although I am a grandmother I am one of your faithful readers. I was especially pleased with what you said recently about people not recognizing happiness when they have it. If we would only open our eyes to see how much we already have to be thankful for there would be far less discontent and heartbreak.

"Some time ago I visited my old home. In conversation with my sister-in-law she made a remark which struck me as about the saddest thing a person could say. She had suffered the loss of both husband and son. And in referring to the old days before this bereavement she said: 'We were happy then, and we didn't know it!'

"Some time, Miss Blake, when you want a fruitful topic for discussion, please take up the subject of girls who do not know what to do with themselves. I mean girls from 16 to 20, who have so little initiative that they cannot occupy themselves while their mothers accept a luncheon invitation. I have seen two instances of this recently and I find it most displeasing.

"Why any normal girl should have to be lugged along whenever mother goes anywhere is a mystery to me. You would think there would be a thousand interesting things to do in one's own home, and that the few hours of mother's absence could be profitably employed on some project of one's own.

"Both these girls are growing up into mere bystanders. They take no active part in the business of living. The mothers, in both instances, seem almost afraid to leave them alone for a few hours, but it seems to me that this is just what they need. They need to be confronted with their own aimless selves and perhaps by that means become inspired with a desire to be somebody.

"Girls who cannot endure their own company, who have no hobby, no interesting occupation, are not likely to find happiness or contentment in marriage. Please drop a few good, strong hints, Miss Blake, and tell the mothers what a nuisance they are making of their daughters. MRS. R. L."

You've dropped the hint well enough yourself, Mrs. R. L. If said mothers and daughters do not take it, that is just their bad luck.

Strife Beneath Calm Surface Novel's Theme

Le Roy MacLeod Writes "Years of Peace."

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Years of Peace," by Le Roy MacLeod. [Century.] Published last Monday.

THE title of Mr. MacLeod's novel is not to be taken without the sense of faint irony with which it labels the tale. To be sure, the years which saunter by are the ten years of official peace which followed Appomattox, and the surface events which fill its pages are the simple, calm, daily doings of a community of farmers in the valley of the Wabash, who have really had little contact with the war and so suffer no particularly harassing effects from it.

LE ROY MacLEOD.

But the peace of the valley is a melody played against a counterpoint of war or threats of war throughout the world, and of a fierce and bitter inner struggle of the two principal characters for something which life has denied them.

Those characters are a husband and wife—a proud southerner who, in a fit of drunken spite because he could not go to war, married the daughter of a worthless neighbor and took her to Indiana to live to escape his own inner harassments, and the wife who herself had married out of vanity rather than love. The first ten years of their married life were peaceful on the surface, but the undercurrents of misunderstanding, of, at times, active hatred, the conflict of duty and inclination rush beneath the serene surface.

"The Years of Peace" has the strength of its monotones. The very lack of brilliance in its pages gives it power. It is the story of dull lives and it is told dully. To a certain degree that method is always impressive. It is obviously successful in "Years of Peace," which achieves the effect which it sets out to make. But it does not achieve greatness in its pages, nor that superb sense of the inner drama of drab lives which is possible for a literary genius to achieve.

"The Years of Peace" has been called an American "The Good Earth," but it is not a lawful wearer of that title for, just by the shade of something almost impossible to define, it lacks the quality of "The Good Earth," which, while it chronicled utterly dull lives was never, for a moment, itself lacking in glowing reality. Perhaps the difference between the two books is the difference between superb photography and superb painting.

"The Years of Peace" has all of the reality of a photograph taken by a master hand, but it lacks something of the creative genius which makes a fine painting a living vital thing no matter what its subject. Mr. MacLeod has done a memorable job of photographing the years of surface peace and subsurface spiritual war which made up the decade from 1865 to 1875 in the Wabash countryside. The result is a book which is definitely a work of art, just as superb photography is definitely a work of art. But it lacks something—something inherently pulsating in itself quite apart from its subject matter. Some of the greatest books of all time have been about less than "The Years of Peace" is about.

I do not mean to minimize the achievement of the author in "Years of Peace," but merely to classify it correctly. It is so easy nowadays to misjudge creative work, easier, I sometimes think, than ever in the past, and for a reason which may seem fallacious, but which I assure you, is a logical one.

More and more people read books these days, more and more books are being written and published, all of which is a happy omen for man's interest in ideas. But with the spate of new books, all being awaited by buyers and renters, there is less and less time for most readers to go back to their models, to read again the great books which have been the parent stems from which more modern work has sprung.

For instance, "The Years of Peace" is, in its material and somewhat in its handling a descendant of the Balzac "Tales of Provincial Life," perhaps not a lineal one but a collateral one. How many of the readers of "The Years of Peace" have ever read any of the Balzac masterpieces?

Occasionally a modern writer is himself the founder of a new line. Ernest Hemingway is such a writer, for instance. But most modern novels are the children of ideas and methods of another day, and we are simply too goggle eyed with the rush of everyday to have time to keep going back to the roots and our standards become the standards of the day not the standards of the ideal. Compared to the standards of the day, "The Years of Peace" is as impressive a book as its admirers proclaim it to be. Compared to the absolute it is merely an excellent piece of workmanship.

"The Years of Peace" is the September choice of the Book League of America.

Flood Battle Good Book for Boys' Reading

Review Other Work for Children's Reading.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

[Director of Children's Work for Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"Angus Lost," by Marjorie Flack [Doubleday-Doran].

THE boy who would like to finish off his vacation reading with a modern adventure story will find Thames Williamson's "The Flood Fighters" a very good one. It is a story of the Mississippi in flood season, and an excellent picture the author gives of the scene as the turbulent, seething waters surge on, carrying devastation and death in their wake. Into the field against them go the mobilized forces of man, seeking to stem the tide of the unleashed torrents and rescue those whom they would overwhelm.

The conflict is a very real one as young Harry Stanton learns when he accompanies his father, Dr. Stanton, Red Cross physician, into the field. The lad finds himself pressed into service almost from the first, and plays his part in the conquest of the river. The story is a dramatic and realistic one, well told, and will not disappoint the young adventure lover of either sex.

In Sonia Mazer's "Masha, a Little Russian Girl," we have another story for girls who like to read of home life in other lands. Masha is a little peasant girl of pre-revolutionary days, and the story is woven about her life with her grandparents in a little village and tells of the great happiness which came to her when the general's wife opened the village school and she was able to attend and learn to read. Market days, wash days, and festivals all contribute to the little girl's good times. It is a picture of modern Russia just preceding the revolution, a charming story of simple, picturesque life, unmarred by propaganda of any kind, and has for its heroine a charming little girl whom one cannot but love. The author is a young Russian artist of New York who has drawn upon family recollections for the setting of the story.

For the younger children there are two animal picture stories which should meet the demands of all little dog lovers. "Angus Lost," by Marjorie Flack, tells of the further adventures of the little dog that we met in "Angus and the Ducks" and is delightful in text and pictures.

"Poogie and Sibella," by Nita Van Housen, is a story of a cat and dog which set out to see things for themselves and find their way to a circus, get into church, and have many interesting adventures. The pictures are by Emma Brock and the book is a delightful one for the eight or nine year old.

Octavus Roy Cohen Presents New Series of Funny Stories

Octavus Roy Cohen in "Carbon Copies" [Appleton] has written another delicious book of short stories on the gayer side of Negro life. Florian Slappey and Epic Peters, already known to the readers of the author, appear again.

All the exploits of these and other characters are described with a whimsical humor and charm that are adapted well to the amusing, chaotic and absurb adventures that Octavus Roy Cohen's Negroes invariably have. They play polo, put on an elaborate production of "Faust" wherein the delightful Florian Slappey gives a perfect rendition of the Toreador song from "Carmen" and they make long and complicated excursions into that favorite country of their, the land of the occult.

NONFICTION.

Let's Start Over Again, by Vash Young (Bobbs-Merrill), indicates how to get over your particular slump.

The Revolt of the Masses, by Jose Ortega y Gasset (Norton), philosophically surveys the appearance of the phenomenon, mass-man.

Gay Court Life, by Lucienne Ercole (Harpers), presents famous characters and events that made France fascinating in the 18th century.

POETRY.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Maria Theresa of Austria, by J. Alexander Mahan (Crowell), was the fascinating woman who held her crown despite shrewd opposition and bore sixteen children. The book gives a picture of the eighteenth century.

Ten Ladies of Joy, by George Ryley Scott (Greenberg), contains short sketches of women who dared to flaunt freedom.

SHORT STORIES.

The Best Short Stories of 1932, edited by Edward J. O'Brien (Dodd-Mead), is the well known editor's latest collection.

ABOUT PLACES.

Island Girls I Loved, by Bassigny Gerrard (Harcourt Brace), is a charming record of a few months spent in an island paradise in mid-Pacific.

Friendly Tale of New London Author Praised

Adrian Alington Writes of Separation.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—A first novel of which the publishers think very highly is one of the books of the moment in London. It is, I imagine, built upon the model of "The Good Companions," but it is shorter and smaller than that work. The title of it is "He Fell Among Friends," and this gives an impression of the kindly attitude of mind towards mankind which the author expresses. The book is one of those simple tales in which a man and his wife, being poor, separate for a time, and [also for a time, since the end of this book is happy] drift apart.

The man is out of work; the wife is an accomplished amateur actress. When a touring theatrical company is visiting the town in which they live, the leading actress is knocked down by an automobile, and the wife takes her place at short notice. She is asked to stay on. She does so.

The husband, not very cheerfully, agrees to this, and is then wracked by rumor and an anonymous letter, so that he fears the worst. He decides to tramp down to Devonshire to see his sister, who is his only friend; and en route falls in with a number of amiable people who befriend him and whom he befriends. This book is readable; it has none of the satiric note which may have spoilt the enjoyment of readers of Adrian Alington's long novel, "The Career of Julian Stanley-Williams"; and those who like the homely and straightforward in story telling are finding it very much to their taste. The author is Wardle Taylor.

Mr. Taylor misses the shrewdness and humor of Miss Noel Streatfeild, whose amusing tale of theatrical life, "The Whicharts," has now been followed by another, equally amusing, tale of the occupants of a vicarage, called "Parson's Nine."

Miss Streatfeild has a real talent for the lively novel about young people, and as she has crowded into a quite short life a great variety of experience, she has an alertness of mind, and a familiarity with human nature at its less serious, which the reader salutes with relish. Her pictures of theatrical life, for example, have a raciness wholly denied to Mr. Taylor. But Mr. Taylor is kind where Miss Streatfeild is delightfully malicious, and his hero and heroine will make friends in many households where Miss Streatfeild will find her liveliness something of a handicap.

A fine collection of letters written by Rudyard Kipling to the late Sir Sidney Low has just been offered for sale in London. The letters are of various dates, but belong mainly to the last century, when Mr. Kipling was still actively producing the books which have made him, as M. André Maurois has just declared, the one living English writer whom the French regard as of Homeric stature. They show him always unaffected, kind, and critical, and are of considerable interest as revelations of a personality which is now purposely withdrawn from publicity.

"Five Towns" of Novels Erect Bennett Tablet

The "Five Towns" which were immortalized in many of Arnold Bennett's novels, recently erected a bronze tablet in the author's honor. The tablet is on Arnold Bennett's house in Hanley ("Hanbridge" in the "Five Towns") in which he was born. George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, and Frank Swinnerton officiated at the unveiling.

Chesterton Presents Another Series of His Charming Essays

G. K. Chesterton, one of the most prolific writers in England, has written another very charming book of essays called "Sidelights" [Dodd Mead]. He says in his introduction, "Loose as it is, there is a link between these light essays. . . . In these two cases I am dealing with two different things in the sense of things bound to be different from myself. . . . One is divided from me in time and the other in space. One is the New World in the sense of the new generation. . . . The other is the new world in an older sense; the western world that we call America, and the new race which some believe to be springing up there. . . ."

G. K. Chesterton proceeds to ramble along in his best manner [he is a master of the essay form] discussing and commenting upon society, politics, morals and marriage. The first section of "Sidelights" is called "New London" and the second "Newer New York."

His understanding of America is, it seems, accurate and acute and he is fearless in his criticism, both adverse and favorable, of American institutions. There are several essays on literature, on the various manifestations of modernism in poetry, fiction and politics, and one on "Bernard Shaw and America." There is no denying the bias of the author and his tendency to preach, but these aspects of his personality only make the book more stimulating whether or not you agree with him.

Little Details of Dress, Hygiene Create That Well Groomed Look

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

That dark patch across the back of the dress! An observer says: "Ough, what greasy skin!"

Curiously that area back there often is surcharged with oil, as is the skin on the nose. And blackheads accrue there. Of course, these don't show through the dress, but one suspects they must be there. And an evening frock or a backless summer one generally proves they are.

You may have to ask the maid or a sister or mother to lend a good hearty scrubbing hand. Anyway, raising a lather back there is part of the remedy. Maybe you can manage the long handled bath brush yourself. But scrub like everything, and by all means get under the shower. Stay there until you have changed the water to cold, cold, cold. You have to regulate the oil glands and there's nothing like getting up circulation to do it.

Hint of underarm perspiration in an ever so lightly stained dress is repellant. There is no reason for it, either. You don't even have to bother with shields if you will use one of the good astringents for this purpose. They are most effective.

Messy, wrinkled backs of skirts! Certain materials crease worse than others. If this is one of your troubles consider your materials well. And, to be sure, wear one of the clever little protective aprons.

Gloves—and how important they are today! But clean, clean they must be, and can be with a couple of pairs on hand and handy washing flakes always ready in the bathroom.

Corset and lingerie straps! Whether they slip down and show or not, they should be in such condition that a slip wouldn't hurt their or your reputation a single bit.

And the exposed inside of an open pocketbook—but here's a whole story on a neat woman and a sloppy one. We'll have to save it for another day!

Mrs. Pyle gave a reception on Wednesday evening for her son-in-law, Albert Spalding, the violinist, and Mrs. Spalding, who joined her at Whitefield to see the eclipse and to remain over Labor day.

Miss Judith Boddie and her mother, Mrs. John Thomas Boddie, who spent the early part of the summer at the Georgian in Evanston, are now visiting at Winston, Va. Miss Boddie's marriage to William Addison Walker is to take place in the fall.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lyman James of New York and Biddleford Pool, Me., to Edwin Pendleton Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Parker Stevens of New York and Greenwich, Conn., will take place at 4 o'clock today at St. Martin's in the Field, Biddeford Pool. A reception will follow at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. James is a member of the Marshall Field family.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Beatty of Evanston are spending a month at Lakeside, Mich. Their young son, Robert Owen, who will enter the Todd school in the fall, is with them. Mrs. Beatty returned recently from a three months' visit in the east.

Knollwood club members have been asked to wear costumes of the early nineties to the club's first county fair this evening. There will be dinner, dancing, and all sorts of carnival attractions.

Museum to Be Open.

The Field Museum of Natural History will be open to the public on Labor day during the usual visiting hours from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., it was announced yesterday by Director Stephen C. Simms.

Let Your Child Grow and Play in Peace, Quiet

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Did you ever have one person "at" you all the time?

Did you have two or three people live with you who always had something to say about pretty nearly everything you did? Perhaps a kindly suggestion about a better way to do each thing, or a question as to why you do it the way you do, or a kindly criticism?

But good natured or otherwise, did you ever have people "at you" all day long and not be able to get away from it—to be free and at peace—to be let alone?

Our children are sometimes in that position. We mothers get into bad habits of watching every little thing the children do, every little mannerism.

We get so that we give them directions about how to do every little thing.

I think much disobedience is due to this kind of management. And much dawdling and "mother deafness." I believe that contentment and independence are lessened.

I know concentration is lessened and self-consciousness fostered, even shyness is created and kept up by being too much "at" a child in some of the ways I've been describing. For self-consciousness, as you know, may manifest itself either by showing-off or shyness.

Ordinarily I avoid don'ts for mothers as I do for children, but my advice today is, "Put a don't before each bad habit I've described." Let the children grow and play in peace.

U. S. RETAINS WALKER CUP; LOSES ONLY ONE MATCH

AMERICANS WIN 4 SINGLES AND HALVE THREE

Crawley Defeats Voigt.

Walker Cup Results

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Results of today's singles matches in Walker cup play between the United States and Great Britain follow:

Maurice McCarthy Jr., U. S., defeated Lister Hartley, Great Britain, 3 and 2.

Jess Sweetser, U. S., and John Stout, Great Britain, halved their 36 hole match.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 2.—The Walker cup golf tournament between the American and British amateurs, which fizzled out this afternoon in the defeats of a rather limp and squashy team of visiting golfers, served mainly as an excuse for another of those reunions of golf officials, golf nuts, champion chasers, coat holders, and football G. A. R.'s. There also were those amiable eccentrics of the newspaper trade who cover golf as a specialty and are always prattling in their confusing jargon about somebody's having been six under even something-or-other on the twenty-seventh hole at St. Andrews in 1925.

The golf tournament did not amount to much on the sporting side, the Americans winning eight matches out of twelve played and halving three others. Socially, however, it was very successful and some highly enjoyable all-night sitting and talking was indulged in. This is what matters in big golf tournaments, the actual golf being only a pretext at best. But seldom does the pretext interfere so little.

Old Boys Play Ties.

It will be all right, I suppose, to allude briefly to the fact that the America won all four of the Scotch foursomes which constituted the first day's activity. Beginning there, the two groups played eight singles matches of 36 holes or less today and, while the more elderly members of the American team stood off their opponents in tie matches, four of the juveniles attended to the winning.

Thus, Francis Ouimet and Jess Sweetser, a pair of palsied old diehards of 39 and 30 years, respectively, failed off in the last stages of their contests and just did hold them even as Gus Moreland, Charlie Seaver, Maurice McCarthy and George Dunlap established the victories. Ouimet, who had recently been down with the flu, had a struggle with Tony Torrance, the English captain, being three down on the first nine, one up at the eighteenth, and three up at the twenty-eighth, an advantage that waned away with his physical energy on the way in. Sweetser was five up on Bill Stout at the 26th hole, but he, too, is less robust than he used to be and the distance apparently fatigued him. So there was another tie.

Scoring on Cafeteria System.

Some say that ties are counted in the aggregate score as half points, which would have made the final total of the tournament 9½ to 2½ for the Americans. Others insist that the ties are tossed out and ignored, in which case the score would be 8 to 1. The choice is your own, but the result is the same by either plan. The Americans won without a demurrer, much less a struggle.

National Hockey League Restores American to Fold

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The long standing hockey feud between the National and American leagues came to an end tonight with the American league resuming its minor league status and becoming subject once more to the National league's player draft.

Announcement of an agreement whereby the American league returns to the organized hockey fold as an affiliate of the National league was made tonight by Frank Calder, president of the National.

1. The American league, a so-called outlaw organization for several years, again recognizes the right of the National league to draft American league players.

2. The American league agrees to abandon operations in any city where the game has been established by clubs which are members of the National, Canadian-American or International leagues.

As a result of the agreement the American league will abandon its operations in Chicago where the Blackhawks represent the National league, and in Buffalo where the Bisons are members of the International league.

It was expected that the claim on Donnie MacFadyen and Fudge MacKenzie of the Chicago Shamrocks and Williams of the Tulsa Oilers would be waived by the American league and that all three would go to the Chicago Blackhawks. At the same time it was believed the Canadian-American league would abandon its claims on Paul Armand and Walter Bushell.

Lincoln Fields, Aurora Start Racing Today

BY FRENCH LANE.

New scenery and new horses will greet Chicago racegoers today. The Lincoln Fields Jockey club will open its annual autumn season of 31 days at its picturesque track down on the Dixie highway.

Just to add spice to the autumn racing, Aurora opens a 13 day meeting at the same time. So, young man, if you must beat the races travel south to Lincoln Fields or straight west to Aurora this afternoon.

The racegoers will solve the problem one way or another. Such puzzlers confront them throughout the year. But this one is a bit more complicated, as they not only are faced with the task of picking the winners but also with selecting the track at which they can pick the most.

Eight Races at Each Track.

Last night it was indicated that about 20,000 persons will visit Lincoln Fields for the opening of the season this afternoon. At Aurora plans were going forward to handle a crowd of 10,000.

Eight races will be run at each track and the fields will be large if the overnight entries mean anything. There isn't a stake attraction at either point, nor a good overnight handicap, although there are plenty of horses entered in every race at both places, more than enough to cause the handicappers to tear their hair when they attempt to make the figures throw a winner out of the box.

This will be the first time that two members of the Illinois Turf association ever attempted to race in opposition to each other. The cause of the conflict never has been explained, except that the officials of the Aurora track say they stand a better chance of rolling up a profit by racing 13 days now than waiting until later on in the season

Nothing has been said about the improvement of the breed, but of course it will be improved.

Aurora Not Worried.

Last night it looked as if nearly all the Chicago fans would go to Lincoln Fields. This did not alarm the Aurora race track people. They expect most of their patronage to come from the nearby cities of Elgin, Geneva, Joliet and Rockford, yet the Lincoln Fields track is only a short distance away from Joliet and many from there had seat reservations for the Lincoln Fields opening.

The best race on the opening pro-

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Olin Dutra, the broad-shouldered Spaniard of Santa Monica, Cal., who has scattered Minnesota golf records all over the windswept Keller Country club course during the last three days, had to share the limelight with another star today in the quarter finals of the National Golfers' association tournament.

Edward Dudley, Wilmington, Del., western open champion last year and holder of the Keller course record at 65 for eighteen holes, is the fellow who stole the gallery's attention from Dutra, at least until tomorrow, when they meet in the opening match of the semi-finals.

Dutra Whips Barron.

Staging a comeback in the stretch late this afternoon, Dudley defeated Al Collins of Kansas City, 1 up, in 38 holes of thrilling play. Two down and with only two holes remaining of their scheduled 36 hole match, Dudley started his successful bid to remain in the fight for the 1932 championship by winning the 35th and then thrilling a gallery of 2,000 by scoring an eagle on the 468 yard par 5 36th hole to square the match.

Going into the first extra hole both missed their second putts by inches and halved the hole in five, one under par. Dudley was in the rough and Collins found a trap on their tee shots at the 38th. Collins shot a fine second and Dudley made a nice recovery from the rough, both being on, near the edge of the green, about 40 feet from the pin.

Ed Sinks Second Putt.

Collins, studying the putt carefully, rolled his ball to within four feet of the cup, but Dudley sent his past Collins' and only a foot from the pin. Collins, facing defeat and nervous, consulted his caddy and, after another careful study of the situation, missed his second putt by a breath taking margin, the pellet lipping the cup. Then Dudley stepped up and dropped his second putt into the cup and one of the greatest matches of the tournament was ended.

Dutra was the first to reach the semi-final when he eliminated Herman Barron of Port Chester, N. Y., 5 and 4.

Dutra turned in another brilliant round this morning, going out in 34 strokes, two under par, and coming back with a par 36, to lead Barron, 4 up, at the lunch hour.

The big Spaniard duplicated his outward journey this afternoon with another 34 to increase his lead to 5 up at the turn. But Barron came back on the 28th hole and cut Dutra's lead to 4 up by a great shot from the rough. Barron's recovery left his ball only four feet from the pin. He dropped it in for a par four.

Dutra lost another hole at the 30th, taking six strokes on the par five hole, but won the next two and the match was over. Dutra sank a 30 foot putt to wind up the match.

Frank Walsh, Bryn Mawr Country club, Chicago, followed Dutra to the semi-finals. The Chicagoan had a

Harmsworth Cup Races to Open Today

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Kaye Don of England and Gar Wood, Detroit, will meet again in the first heat for the Harmsworth trophy in the rough waters of Lake St. Clair tomorrow morning at 6:30 o'clock.

The English sportsman will make another bid for the cup with a bigger and more powerful boat, Miss England III., which he piloted to a new one mile world's speedboat record at 119.81 miles an hour.

Don made his final trial run yesterday, going 90 miles an hour down the Harmsworth course in choppy waters. Wood completed preparations for the race by taking his Miss America X. for a short run in the Detroit channel.

The speed of Woods' new boat is unknown. Several men have helped him in building the boat but have refused to reveal if the boat can travel at the rate of 120 miles an hour, the speed at which several unofficial timers clocked the boat.

Don won last year's opening race, but lost his chance for the trophy when he beat the gun in the second heat. Don reached a new Harmsworth speed record in last year's race, traveling at the rate of 89.913 statute miles an hour. In his short straightaway runs Don drove the boat at 110 miles an hour.

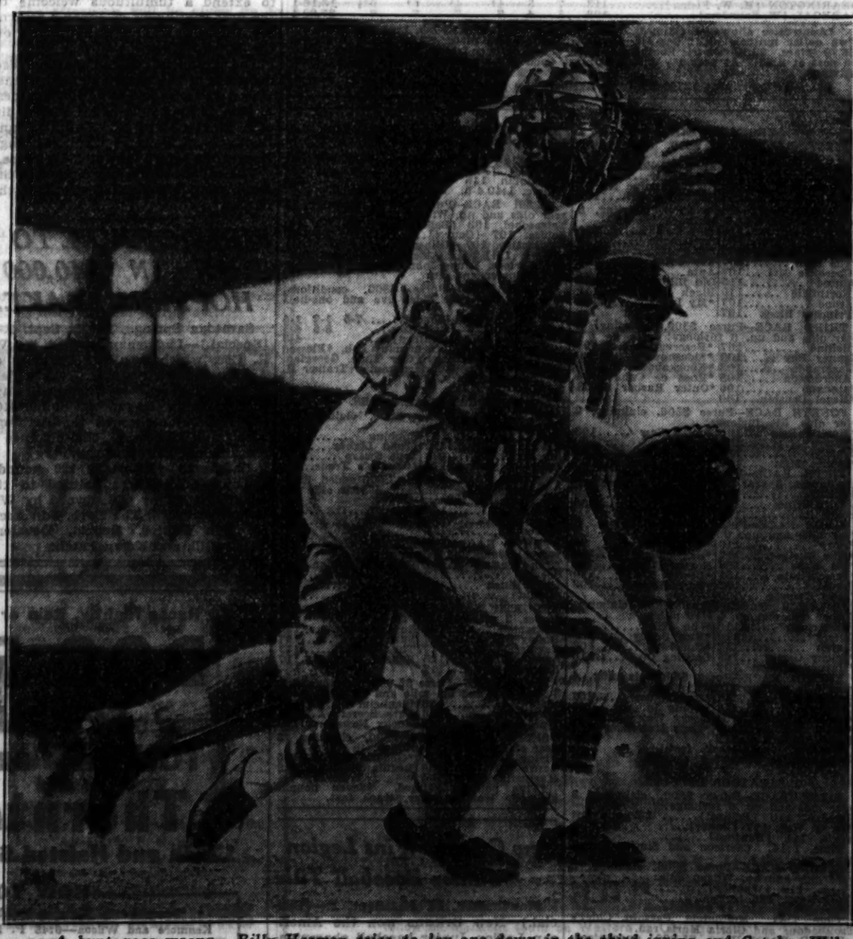
WHEN CUBS NAILED NO. 13 TO THE MAST

Pepper Martin, who ran the Athletics wild last year in the world series, won't take part in the big series this year and this is one of the reasons why he won't. He has just sent a fly to Johnny Moore to end the first inning of yesterday's Cardinal-Cubs game and leave Watkins on base. Catcher Gabby Hartnett is watching the ball sail out to center. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



A bunt goes wrong. Billy Herman tries to lay one down in the third inning and Catcher Wilson of the Cards makes an effort to snatch the ball before it hits the ground. He failed and when the ball fell foul Billy changed his mind about his method of getting on base, sending the next pitch for a triple.

CUYLER, KOENIG LEAD ATTACK WITH HOMERS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs, through a handsome degree of powerful baseball socking, had no need for one of their madhouse finishes yesterday in the enterprise of licking the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 5. The boys were quite businesslike in hanging up this 13th straight victory to tie their high run in 1923 and maintain a 7½ game lead over the Pirates. However, the fact they had to come from behind in the early innings seemed to furnish ample gooseflesh for the 27,000 who attended the ladies' day entertainment.

In the pre-August baseball era, yesterday's contest would have gone down as a breath taker, at that. For Kiki Cuyler, the ruthless batsman, knocked a homer in the first inning, to make it two in successive times at bat and five on five straight playing days, and Mark Koenig, the launcher of rallies, knocked his second homer in successive times at bat to start an uprising in the third inning which moved the Cubs from the short end of a 3 to 1 score to the long end of a 4 to 3 count.

Even Gabby Stars at Bat.

In the pre-August baseball era the triples smacked by Billy Herman and Johnny Moore would have been worth a couple of hundred of any baseball annotator's words and in the old days the fact that Gabby Hartnett made a double and two singles would have rated him a layout of pictures showing him peeling potatoes and engaging himself in other homey chores.

The only real hangover from Wednesday's wildest of insane ball games was the statistics, most of which, of course, are cumulative as long as the Cubs keep winning. And right here is the place for a whole gob of numerical data.

Here Are the Figures.

If the Cubs take Dizzy Dean and Paul Derringer in this afternoon's double header they will have won 15 straight, a high run which has been reached only 12 times in major league history.

Root, who relieved Grimes and held the Cards to four hits in the last six innings, registered his twelfth victory of the season.

When Cuyler drove in English with a single in the seventh it was the thirteenth run he had driven in out of the last 26 scored by the Cubs.

The Cubs now lead the Cards in the season series, 10 to 9, leaving the Pirates the only ones outside the classification of those who have been beaten by the Cubs more often than they have won from the Chicagoans.

The Cubs now have won 16 out of their last 17 games and 23 out of 28 since Charley Grimm became manager.

The Cubs have 27 more games to play, nine at Wrigley field and eighteen abroad. The Pirates have only 24 more games to play.

And So, to the Game.

And now that you have been reminded of all these vital matters, let's again talk about yesterday's very nice entertainment.

Two runs had been enough for the Cards to win in each of their last two games against the Cubs—in that doubleheader Aug. 14—so the world champions felt pretty smug when they socked home a pair of markers in the very first inning. The game started with Herman fumbling C. Wilson's grounder, after which Wilson was forced by Medwick. Medwick scored on Frisch's double to left center and Frankie got to third while Grimes was throwing out Bottomley, whence he scored on Watkins' single to left. Martin flied to Moore.

SWEET CHARIOT'S SMOOTH SPEED BEATS FAVORITE

Wins Consolation Stake; Fingal, at 6 to 5, Third.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Sweet Chariot, the appropriately named black son of Black Servant and Song Bird, captured the second half of the Consolation Claiming stakes, feature race today, and gave the Sagamore stable of Mrs. Charles Minot Amory its third score in the event. In 1926, Mrs. Amory's Abul Kath was first and Infinitely repeated for her in 1928.

The result this afternoon was a surprise since Fingal, acquired before the race by E. R. Bradley, was a hot favorite at 6 to 5, but was lucky to land third behind C. V. Whitney's Cap Sheaf, which was beaten two lengths by the winner. Back of the favorite the order was Okapi and Eisenberg. Okapi was the second choice at 5 to 2.

Runs Dead Track Smoothly.

Silvio Coucci piloted the winner, which paid 9 to 2 and earned $1,875 by his six furlong dash, requiring 1:14 4-5. The colt had 105 pounds up and negotiated a dead track in smooth fashion.

It was Sweet Chariot's second victory of the meeting.

Although Robertson could get only second with Cap Sheaf, he was the easiest kind of a winner with Mr. Whitney's Clotho in the three horse Ballston handicap, which was the secondary feature. Strongly backed at 9 to 20, Clotho led from start to finish of the mile and was being eased at the end as he passed under the wire four lengths before Up. Jim Robin completed the field a length back of Up.

Clotho's Second Straight.

Clotho's effort was his second winning one in succession at this track. He made light of the impost of 118 pounds and sped the mile in 1:40 4-5, good time considering the condition of the track.

gram at Lincoln Fields is the Olympia Fields purse at a mile and an eighth. It engages Pigeon Hole, which has six straight victories to his credit, Col. Edward R. Bradley's B'ar Hunter, C. V. Whitney's Habanero, Chokoloskee from Maryland and Tela and Poetry from Kentucky. It is the most stylish company Pigeon Hole has associated with for a long time, yet it was evident that he will rule as the favorite, for an army of Pigeon Hole backers was to journey to Lincoln Fields to place their wagers on him.

Aurora's best race is the Autumn Inaugural, with Golden Prince, Sunday, Polyp, the Point and Outbound as the contenders. Golden Prince has been trying in vain to win a race around Chicago all season. The expert handicappers think he should win this one.

The popular daily double will be used at both tracks, the tickets to be sold on the second and third races. Lincoln Fields is the first major track in the country to adopt the daily double play and many persons are of the opinion that the pools there will be run into large figures and that a small fortune will be passed out now and then to a few folks who are able to pick a couple of long-shots in the two races.

They'll Be Off at 2:15.

Post time for the first race at Lincoln Fields today will be 2:15 o'clock. The parade to the post will start at the same time at Aurora.

The Lincoln Fields track, long recognized as one of the most beautiful in the country, was spic and span yesterday awaiting the opening day crowd. Col. Matt J. Winn was confident that Lincoln Fields racing will be just as attractive as ever and that the crowds will attend, just as they have in other seasons. The advance sale of tickets bore out his prediction.

Last night horses were being transferred from Hawthorne to Lincoln Fields. Nearly all the great stables that have raced at Hawthorne were heading for the track near Crete. Additional stables were arriving from Kentucky, Canada and other racing points.

Seven $800 Purses Offered.

For the opening program this afternoon Lincoln Fields offers seven races at $800 and one at $1,000. At Aurora there are five $500 races, two at $600 and one at $1,000.

This isn't the first conflict in Chicago racing this year. Last spring the Aurora track operated in opposition to the new half mile track known as Sportsmen's park. Attendance, with many free tickets being given out, was large at both tracks. But the play in the pari-mutuels at both tracks was far below the amount of money wagered at Washington Park, Arlington Park, and Hawthorne this season.

Play Second Round in Polish Tourney Today

The second round of the Polish-American open tennis tournament will be played today at Kosciuszko park, Diversey and Avers avenues. One women's match will be played today, the others following tomorrow morning. Quarter-finals and semi-finals in both divisions will be played tomorrow. Finals are scheduled for Monday morning.

The customers at Hawthorne got their final shock yesterday when the 3 to 10 shot, Hygro, was beaten by three-quarters of a length by Gallant Sir for the sprint championship at 6½ furlongs.

Hygro was in front until the final strides then folded up. He gave unmistakable evidence that six furlongs under high weight is his absolute limit. Fairbypair ran third. The 6½ furlongs was run in 1:19 1-5.

Gallant Sir paid $26.66 for a $2 ticket. He is a stablemate of the old dope upsetter, Plucky Play. Gallant Sir ran eighth in the last Kentucky Derby then was out of training for a long time, but has won the only two races in which he was entered since the Derby. He's a royally bred fellow, a son of Sir Gallahad III.-Sun Spot. It won't be long until he is accomplishing the same sort of chores Plucky Play has been doing for the last three years.

The biggest week day crowd of the season watched the curtain roll down at Hawthorne yesterday afternoon. Favorites were beaten nearly all afternoon, but the players came back for more just as often as a new race was presented. One favorite that made good was Flag Time, a stable mate of Gallant Sir. He had no trouble beating the plater sprinters which faced him.

"It was a fine meeting and showed us some profit," John Schank, president of the Hawthorne association, said last night. The attendance is reported to have averaged about 10,000 and the betting about $360,000 for the 29 days.

100,000 WELCOME JAPANESE HOME FROM OLYMPICS

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 2 [Saturday.]—(AP)—A throng estimated at 100,000 crowded Yokohama piers today to extend a tumultuous welcome to the first contingent of Japan's returning Olympic team which arrived on the Shinyo Maru.

The group of Olympians included members of the track and field teams, who were welcomed as national heroes. A half dozen bands added to the din of a great chorus of "Banzais," and hundreds of banners displayed huge ideographs which meant "Welcome."

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Ted Lyons, who has been looked upon recently as the only hope of the White Sox pitching staff, failed this afternoon, and the Browns won the opener of a four game series, 3 to 1. It was Chicago's fifth straight defeat.

Lyons didn't start pitching in his customary form until the third inning, and St. Louis scored a run in each of the first two, enough to win. It was Ted's 13th setback of the season against nine victories.

The Sox were bashful before the offerings of George Blaeholder. They started getting to him in the sixth inning, but exhibited their customary lack of punch with runners on base. Singles by Lyons and Seeds were wasted in this inning.

Two Scoring Attempts Fail.

After scoring their lone run in the seventh, the Hose tried hard to increase their total in the eighth and ninth, but two runners were stranded each time.

Both Lyons and Blaeholder yielded eight hits, and the only walk of the game was issued by big George.

It was a happy event for 6,000 ladies and children's day guests, who formed the bulk of attendance.

Lyons started out as if he didn't intend to stay very long. Schulte popped a single to left with one out in the first inning. After Campbell fouled to Sullivan, Goslin banked a drive against the right center field wall for two bases, scoring Schulte.

The Browns kept up their attack in the next inning. Oscar Melillo opened with a sizzler past Appling for a single and galloped to third when Scharein sent a line drive past Sullivan. The Chicago Italian scored after Grimes lifted to Funk.

Scharein's Error Helps.

Lyons settled down thereafter, but his mates were finding Blaeholder difficult to fathom. They finally broke through the veteran right hander's fine pitching in the seventh, however.

Appling led off with a single to center. Hodapp hit to Scharein and both were safe when the shortstop booted the ball. Kress singled down the left field foul line, scoring Luke. Both runners moved up on Grube's sacrifice. Lyons tapped to Scharein and Hodapp was run down between third and home. Funk ended it all with a long drive to Garms.

The Sox made another fruitless at tempt to tie the score in the eighth inning. After two were out Sullivan strolled and went to third on Appling's single to right, but Hodapp raised a short fly to Campbell.

Browns Wake Up in Eighth.

Lyons pitched to only three batters in each inning from the third until the eighth when the Browns broke up his splendid performance. After Scharein flied to Funk, Grimes belted a single to center. Lyons fell coming in for Blaeholder's bunt and the pitcher was credited with a hit.

Garms rapped a liner to right and Grimes scored on a close play at the plate. Schulte bunted to Sullivan, whose throw to Appling at second was too late to catch Garms and the bases were filled. Ted fanned Campbell and Sullivan took Goslin's grounder to end the rally.

MOON MULLINS—A DOGGY IDEA

YANKEES SCORE IN 132 STRAIGHT GAMES; TIE MARK

Senators Win, 7-1; Ruth Gets Needed Run.

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Big Fred Marberry's pitching and Sam Rice's hitting gave the Washington Senators their second straight victory over the Yankees today, but once more the Yanks rallied in the ninth inning and escaped a shutout. The final score was 7 to 1, reducing the Yanks' lead to 9½ games.

Marberry limited the league leaders to five hits. With one out in the ninth, he passed Ruth, taking no chances, then saw his shutout spoiled when Lou Gehrig clouted a triple to bring in the only Yankee run.

The New Yorkers now have scored in all of the games they have played this season, tying the all time major league record for consecutive games without being shut out. The Phillies and the Boston Braves set the mark in 1894.

Cubs Defeat Cards, 8-5, for 13th in Row

Old Riot Maker Responds.

In the latter half of the third Manager Grimm gave the riot sign to his old riot fomentor, Koenig, and Mark responded with a homer into the right field bleachers. Hack batted for Grimes and singled to left, then completely chumped the veterans, J. Wilson and Bottomley, for a delayed steal of second. Herman tripled to right, sending Hack home with the tying run and scored himself on a wild pitch that didn't get so very far past J. Wilson, making it necessary for Billy to put on a big slide. It was just as well that Billy came home in this manner, for English fanned, Flowers made a one handed stab to come up with Cuyler's grounder, and then threw out Stevie on a much easier chance.

The Cubs added a couple of runs in the fourth inning. Moore pushed off with a triple to the right field screen, paused while Grimm rolled out to Bottomley and scored on Hartnett's first hit, a single to left. Koenig forced Hartnett and stopped at second on Root's single. Herman singled to left, scoring Mark, then was forced by English.

Collins Busts One.

In the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, the Cards got two infield hits, neither of which caused any anxiety, but in the seventh Flowers drew the only walk of the game, loafed while J. Wilson was fanning and came home ahead of Jimmy Collins when Jimmy planted a pinch home run into the right field stand.

Collins' homer made the score, 6 to 5, in favor of the Cubs, so the boys came back in their end of the inning to make the margin more comfortable. English doubled to right and scored on Cuyler's single. Stephenson forced Ki and Moore forced Stevie. Grimm singled to right, putting Moore on third, whence he scored on Hartnett's third hit, a single to right. Koenig grounded to Bottomley.

ROOT PLANS TRIP TO COUNTRIES AT BOTTOM OF GLOBE

There is no superstition in the makeup of Charley Root of the Cub staff. He's a one time country boy who frequently was cautioned about counting chickens before they are hatched, but that hasn't kept him from spending his world series money, at least a good part of it, before the Cubs have clinched the pennant. Charley already has booked himself, Mrs. Root, his daughter, Della, and son, Junior, for a tour to the bottom of the world, starting from Los Angeles, Oct. 28.

Visits will be made to Honolulu, Suva, Wellington, N. Z., Sydney, Australia, and the Island of Tahiti. The cruise will extend over two months.

TRIPLE WINDUP ON COLISEUM WRESTLING CARD

Promoter Joe Coffey announced yesterday that he has completed the card for his first indoor heavyweight wrestling show of the season at the Coliseum next Friday night. A triple windup has been arranged, with Jim McMillen meeting Rudy Dusek, Hans Kampfer facing Battling Hills, and Gino Garibaldi opposing Abe Coleman.

Hold Contest to Decide Life Saving Championship

The life saving championship of the north shore will be decided Monday afternoon at the Vista del Lago club in No Man's Land. This event was originally scheduled to take place last Sunday, but it was postponed because of inclement weather. Each beach from Evanston to Highland Park is entering a team of two men, at least one of whom must be an employé of the community. There are to be seven events, all of which are standard Red Cross life saving tests.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: There used to be an avenue on the south side called Forest. It extended from 31st to 39th streets and was between Prairie and Calumet. I believe the name has been changed. [Editor's note—The name of Forest was changed to Giles avenue by city ordinance of Jan. 19, 1921, according to John D. Riley, superintendent of maps, public works department.]

I lived on this avenue between 38th and 39th streets. There was a large empty house in this block known as the Soames house, said to be "haunted." I do not know the origin of the myth, but its reputation was enough for us children to avoid it at night, although in the daytime we ventured onto the porch and fearfully peeked in the windows without noting anything unusual. Joseph Kipley, afterward police chief, lived in this block.

There was a cricket lot between Indiana and Prairie, and 37th and 38th. We looked through an opening in the fence at the athletic events.

This section of the city was a fine residential neighborhood in the '80s-'90s and the ward was called the "silk stocking" ward. Mamie B.

One Sunday morning back in the '80s, several of us applied to the stage manager of the old Columbia for "super" berths. He promptly engaged us and we made our debut in the old melodrama "In the Ranks," with Ed J. Buckley as leading man and Selena Fetter as leading lady Some time later, Selena Fetter became the wife of Edwin Milton Royle, actor playwright. Selena Royle, who appeared last season at the Grand Opera house as leading lady with George M. Cohan, is their daughter. Eff Bee.

Cubs' Winning Streak.

In number of consecutive victories, the Cubs' recent winning streak has been exceeded. The New York Giants in 1916 and Chicago White Sox in 1906 hold longer records, with one tie included in each sequence. Yet for exciting finishes, extra inning games and rallies, recovery of games seemingly lost the Cub stand surpasses anything within our memory. If any old-timer can recall anything greater, we'd like to hear of it.

There is one instance, however, which from the viewpoint of figures alone stands unparalleled in modern baseball. That winning stand will be discussed in Sunday's Wake.

Root, Not Grimes, Gets Credit for Whipping Cards

Many persons were confused as to whether Burleigh Grimes or Charley Root was the winning pitcher in yesterday's Cub game until newspapers carrying the account of the victory reached the streets. Radio announcements had proclaimed Grimes the winner, with deep consolations for Root having to go unrewarded for his stellar efforts. Root, however, was the winning pitcher. Grimes, the starting pitcher, did not pitch five innings, as required of a starting pitcher before he can be given credit for a victory, regardless of how much his team is ahead when he retires.

Pat Malone will go after victory No. 14 this afternoon in the first game of the Cub-Cardinal double header. Dizzy Dean will be his adversary. In the second game Guy Bush will be pitted against Paul Derringer.

Five pitchers were employed in yesterday's contest, but none of the three who retired left the game during an inning.

Grimes, who started, didn't have the stuff he showed his last time out when he beat the Giants, 6 to 1. But he still is in the mood for heavy duty in the world series.

The Pirates, who won their sixth straight yesterday, two weeks ago were doped for a nice, cozy spot in the second division. Now, it is said they are figured as a cinch for the runner-up spot, an honor rating they won when the Cubs topped the league in 1929.

Jim Bottomley must have felt rather funny when Stanley Hack executed his delayed theft of second after singling in the third inning. Bottomley took Catcher Jimmy Wilson's throw and, thinking he had Stan nicely trapped off first, intuitively moved the ball to the spot where he thought the young man would run into it when he returned to first. But Stan ran to second and was there almost before Bottomley concluded his graceful gyrations.

When the Cards beat the Cubs in a double header Aug. 14, in the last games the Chicagoans played away from home, the world champions were only six games behind the Cubs. Since that time they have sagged eight games farther down.

After the game tomorrow the Cubs will move to Cincinnati for a Labor day double header with the tailend Reds.

AMPHIONS PLAY 3 GAMES.

The Amphions will play three games over the week-end. They will meet the All-American Clowns tomorrow at La Vergne and Le Moyne streets and the Colored Illinois Giants in a double header Monday.

Hurricanes, Aurora Open Meet Today

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—In an open polo championship in which each of the six teams entered has at least one veteran of international cup play in its lineup, it is not surprising that the single team with two international veterans should be the favorite, particularly when one of the two is the only ten goal star in the world, Championship play opens tomorrow afternoon.

Sands Point is the team with two veterans. They are Tommy Hitchcock, the ten goal player, and Ergo. Sands Point will not play on the opening day. Laddie Sanford's Hurricanes and the Aurora Four, of which Seymour Knox is the organizer, and Capt. Pat Roark, until a few days ago a ten goal star, the leading spirit, meet in the first game.

Sands Point plays first on Sunday afternoon at the Sands Point club against Eastcott, organized by Earle Hopping Sr. Meanwhile, Winston Guest's Templetons and Jock Whitney's Greentrees, which drew byes in the first round, make ready for their bids in the semi-finals Tuesday and Wednesday.

Hitchcock will ride Robert Lehman's Citroen and Toughey, another veteran of international play in the tourney. Tonolo, the great three chukker pony of the 1930 international matches under young Hopping, will be ridden by Cecil Smith of Greentree. Amagita will carry Pete Bostwick and along with White Slave and others of Sanford's stars will make this tourney the top event of the year for mounts as well as players.

Ghost Town of Mining Days Hides Secrets

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Black Hills, S. D., Sept. 2.—Just why the Lochleven trout in two branches of Rapid creek start hitting about 10 o'clock in the morning and continue to wallop lures until 2:30 in the afternoon and then quit, was still a puzzle yesterday when we took a swing over part of the old stage coach route around the ghost mining town of Rochford. We had thought that on a hot August day, with the sun shining strongly the trout would be anything but active, especially on surface lures or baits.

Autumn is beginning to threaten these beautiful valleys and it appears that the trout have the grasshopper business well figured out. When the sun is warm all insect life along the streams is active.

Smart Trout Eat Early.

These streams flow through meadows that are swarming with grasshoppers and trout can pick up plenty of food during the middle of the day. Late in the afternoon there is a change in the weather. It begins to get cool—a snappy, chilly wind starts working through the valleys, especially if the sun goes behind the clouds. Such a situation halts insect life activity. Thus the fish are smart to feed during the middle of the day.

We couldn't get a fish on two branches of Rapid Creek yesterday afternoon after 3 o'clock when it had turned cool. They wouldn't rise to anything. During the middle of the day, however, those big Lochleven trout would smack grasshoppers instantly.

It was about 3:30 in the afternoon when our automobile wound through the timbered hills from our first fishing spot and approached Rochford. This quaint little place flanked by rocky peaks has a main street consisting of a dozen or so old buildings. One of these is a tumble down log shack that appears as if it might have been a bar in the good old days! It stands just below the junction of two branches of Rapid creek.

Mountains Scarred with Shafts.

The face of the mountains all around are scarred with open shafts and piles of rock where prospectors either looked for gold or took out the precious ore. Rochford is alone in the hills, almost forgotten in the mining picture today, but rich enough in memories of the boom days to tell stories that we would like to hear. We drove on through the cañon to try our luck in the stream. But nothing doing. The fish had quit. They had put on their act between 10 in the morning and 3 in the afternoon.

IRISH SOCIETIES TO HOLD SPORTS DAY TOMORROW

The athletic divisions of the United Irish Societies of Chicago and the I. R. A. will hold their annual sports carnival at the Normal Park stadium, 61st street and Racine avenue, tomorrow afternoon.

The afternoon will be given up to athletic events for boys, girls and men starting with 100 yard dash and ending with a tug of war that will settle the championship between the west and south side Gaels.

FORECLOSURES IN AUGUST SHOW SLIGHT INCREASE

Total Amount Claimed Is $47,913,630.

Foreclosures for August, made public yesterday by Kenneth E. Rice, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, showed a slight increase in number, but a drop of more than two million dollars in amount claimed, as compared with July. The comparison with August of 1931, however, is rather unpleasant, for the number of foreclosures last month was approximately 100 greater than the same month of last year.

KENNETH E. RICE.

There were 1,647 foreclosures in August, with the amount claimed $47,913,630, as compared with 1,570 foreclosures in July, with amount claimed $50,155,565. In August, 1931, there were 886 foreclosures, with amount claimed $40,166,363.

The number of masters' sales in August, 1932, was 673, with a total consideration shown of $7,127,095. In July there were 591 sales with a total of $6,775,047. The comparison with August of 1931 shows a big gain, there being only eighty-four masters' sales last year in that month with a total of $2,747,252. Masters' deeds filed for record during August, 1932, were 234, as compared with 175 in July and 218 in June. Release deeds filed in August, 1932, were 2,624; in July, 1932, 2,707, and in June, 1932, 3,020.

Large A. & P. Lease Closed.

One of the largest A. & P. units in Chicagoland is contemplated as a result of a lease being signed yesterday by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company for a store at 5205-07 Hohman street, Hammond. The Metropolitan Realty company is lessor. The store is opposite Goldblatt's department store and is between stores of Woolworth and W. T. Grant.

While the ten year lease was made on a percentage basis, it's estimated that the rental for the term will exceed $150,000, according to Coen-Berkson & Co., who represented the lessee. The Hemstock Realty company was broker for the lessor. The store is 87½x136 and will be a self-service unit, with both groceries and meat market.

Original Tenants Renew.

Six tenants in the ten story building at the northeast corner of Clark and Harrison streets, which was erected for them ten years ago by J. Pembroke Thom and Dr. H. R. Mayo Thom, yesterday renewed their leases. The firms which at that time leased one and two floors are: The American Typesetting corporation, the William M. Galvin Printing company, the W. P. Dunn company, Johnson & Quin, the Century Electrotype company, and the Columbian Engraving company. They all renewed their leases for a five year period at an aggregate rental of $270,000 for the term, according to Frankenstein & Co., brokers.

In addition Frankenstein & Co. report having leased six out of the seven stores on the first floor at an aggregate rental of $57,000 for a five year term. The building is 100x100.

The better feeling toward carrier bonds spread to other domestic corporation issues, producing encouraging gains in many industrial and utility bonds. Trading volume increased substantially over the level yesterday and on preceding days of this week.

Chief gains in the rail list included such bonds as Baltimore and Ohio 4½s and first 5s, Central Georgia refunding 5½s, issues of Chicago and North Western, Rock Island, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, and a host of other speculative rail bonds.

Liberty first 4¼ per cent bonds attracted keen attention in banking circles by rising to a new high for the year, more than 2 points above par.

This substantial premium, it is pointed out, shows clearly the prevailing view that the treasury will not elect this Sept. 15 to call the issue for conversion on Dec. 15.

Significance of the strength in Liberty first 4¼s lies in the fact that this issue is callable for conversion only at intervals of three months before each interest date. Thus, if the issue is not called for Dec. 15, the next possible conversion date will be June 15, next year.

RISE OF COTTON IS VIVID STORY OF ECONOMICS

Value of Crop Gains 20 Million in Day.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Cotton went up another $2 a bale yesterday and thereby added $20,000,000 to the value of the nation's 1932 crop and another chapter to as interesting a story of economics as has every unrolled itself.

Yesterday's spurt was attributed to heavy rains and high winds that swept across the deep south from southern Georgia to Arkansas, causing much damage to an already short crop.

That was the immediate factor, but more far reaching forces even than wind and rain account for the wider swings in cotton prices.

On June 9, 1932, cotton at interior points was selling for 4½ cents a pound, a price that had not been equalled since 1845. At 4½ cents per pound cotton was worth just one-fourth what it had been selling for when the farm board announced that it would "stabilize" the price.

80 Per Cent Above June Low.

Down in La Salle street when any one wants to know about cotton the advice is "See Meadows."

William R. Meadows, cotton expert for the Chicago Board of Trade, not only knows the workings of the market but he knows cotton and the temperament of the men who raise it, for he was brought up in Lowndesbury, Ala. Furthermore, he is familiar with the methods of bureaucracy, for he was formerly a cotton expert for the United States department of Commerce.

Government interference with the natural functioning of markets and the building up of artificial surpluses he disposes of in one terse phrase, thus:

"There is no substitute for a consumer."

Sees Better Future.

Mr. Meadows freely expresses the opinion that the low point in cotton has been passed and that betterment lies ahead. He believes, however, that the speed of the recovery will depend largely upon the policy of the government toward cotton.

"Things are improving in the south," he says, "but it will take one more short crop besides this year's to clear away the burdensome surplus and get the market back on its feet.

"That is not as discouraging as it may sound, for after the hard times of 1914 it was ten years before the south produced another big crop, and after the heavy production of 1926 there were short crops for five years.

"Distress gets so bad that the ability to grow large crops is impaired. Plantation operators get discouraged, and they try other crops, or if they raise cotton they don't buy fertilizer. Consequently the crops become smaller, the surplus is absorbed, and prices rise again."

Due to U. S. Report.

A large part of the 80 per cent rise in cotton prices since the June low, Mr. Meadows says, has been due to the government report on Aug. 8 estimating this year's cotton production at 11,300,000 bales, fully a million below previous estimates.

During the last few days strength in cotton has been attributed to a general belief that the government report next Thursday will disclose an even smaller cotton production than predicted a month ago.

In the case of grain, Mr. Meadows explains, a short crop in the United States may be compensated for by heavy production elsewhere in the world, so that prices may not react. This is not true of cotton. The small American crop this year means a 25 per cent reduction in the size of the world crop. It is entirely possible that other cotton nations may have similar declines, so that the world's production may be as much as 33 1-3 per cent below last year.

A Natural Rebound.

"The beginning of the cotton recovery, however, was simply the rebound from the abnormally low level to which the combination of governmental interference, fear, and overproduction had driven prices," Mr. Meadows continues.

"Because of these adverse factors consumption had been decreasing for three years. Mills, wholesale houses, department stores, and retail buyers let their stocks wear down and their needs pile up. Nobody wants to buy on a falling market. A vacuum was being created.

"Now that the tide has definitely turned this pent up buying is being released. As the price of cotton goes up the price of finished goods will go up. The merchant who has been selling five towels for a dollar probably will sell four for a dollar.

"With the public rushing in to buy on advancing prices the stores will be building up their stocks and the manufacturer will be starting his machinery and buying new material to fill his needs."

Farm Board and Tariffs.

The natural deflation in cotton prices after the war, Mr. Meadows said, was greatly exaggerated by the action of the farm board in attempting to manipulate the price of cotton and also by the series of tariff boosts which aroused the resentment of foreign buyers of American cotton.

"Cotton has rounded the corner," he said, "but the extent of the recovery will depend upon what action is taken at Washington toward removing the bearish influence of bureaucratic interference. Furthermore, we're going to lose more and more of our foreign cotton markets unless tariff truces are arranged with consuming nations."

The psychological factor in trade, Mr. Meadows believes, is too often overlooked, especially the public resentment that invariably follows an

How Federal Home Loans Will Be Made

BY SCRUTATOR.

Within the next six or eight weeks the home loan bank system, set up by congress under the auspices of the federal government, will begin to function. The number and location of the 12 regional banks and their initial capitalization have been announced. Subscriptions to their capital now are being taken.

What can these banks do for the individual real estate owner and for organizations that finance real estate developments? It is the purpose of this article to explain the essential facts of the system.

Major Federal Activity.

The fact that the home loan bank system has a potential lending power of approximately 1 billion 600 million dollars makes it one of the greatest undertakings proposed by the federal government. However, whatever part of this vast sum is actually used will come largely from investors.

The aggregate capital of the 12 banks has been set at $134,000,000, which it is planned to have furnished by building and loan associations, insurance companies, and savings banks. However, the government Reconstruction Finance corporation stands ready, if necessary, to subscribe up to $125,000,000. The aggregate lending power of the banks is determined by the provision that they may issue securities to a maximum of twelve times their paid in capital.

Means of Raising Capital.

The new home loan banks will raise their capital by having their members buy stock to the extent of 1 per cent of unpaid principal of their home mortgage loans. Therefore, the system is primarily a means to discount the loans of the members just as the federal reserve system discounts for its member banks. However, a temporary provision is that loans may be made to individuals who have no other means of renewing mortgages.

The home loan bank system aims primarily to help the small home owner by preventing foreclosures and by financing new building. Therefore it is provided that loans to members shall be restricted to properties with a maximum appraised value of $20,000. The member organizations may borrow on amortized mortgages running eight years or more up to 60 per cent of unpaid principal, provided the loan does not exceed 40 per cent of the value of the property. They may borrow on nonamortized mortgages up to 50 per cent of unpaid principal provided the loan does not exceed 30 per cent of the value of the property. The maximum limit for mortgages is 15 years.

Place Limit on Loans.

The effect of these provisions is to limit loans to members to about $8,000 on individual mortgages and to limit loans to individuals who borrow from the members to around $15,000, assuming that most building and loan associations will not lend more than 75 per cent of the value of property.

Securities that the home loan banks may hereafter sell to investors is safeguarded by the provision that the unpaid principal of mortgages deposited as collateral for such securities issued must equal 100 per cent. The regional banks are to be jointly and severally liable for all securities issued, but they are not obligations of the United States and are not guaranteed by the government. The securities are to be exempt from taxation except surtaxes, estate, inheritance and gift taxes.

COTTON MORE ACTIVE; PRICE RALLIES $2 PER BALE FOR DAY

Cotton news favored the buying side. Trade was active with numerous fluctuations and a sharp advance in the last hour. The close was around the best prices for the day. Net gains were 40 to 43 points on futures in New York and 41 to 49 points in other markets, equalling more than $2 a bale. There was no pressure of offerings during the last half hour and all was readily absorbed.

It was also said another report indicated still lower figures, although it was not given out. Trade and weather reports on the whole were bullish. Reports from Dallas said the outlook for Texas remains unchanged, with the western half of the belt showing a steady decline. Prices follow:

HIGHER BRITISH TARIFF TO HIT YANKEE GOODS

New Rates Effective on Sept. 6.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Information that further drastic duties on imports would be imposed Sept. 6, by England reached the department of commerce today with a message that Australia had ordered the removal of temporary prohibitions on foreign commodities at once.

Germany also plans to raise import levies, Sept. 6.

CITE U. S. OWN TARIFF

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The chief reason that the French and Americans were unable to reach an accord yesterday on the commercial treaty is the rigidity of the United States tariff system, a communiqué from the ministry of commerce intimated today.

"There was recognized on both sides existing difficulties which especially were due to the difference in the respective legislation of the two countries," the statement said. "The French delegates insisted on the particular difficulties resulting both from the tariff and contractual situation in France with regard to other countries."

In view of the French stand, it is understood the Americans have given up their original goal of a permanent and most favored nation treaty, but expect an agreement more satisfactory than the one at present.

EXPECT GERMAN PACT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—Representatives of American firms marketing office equipment in Germany conferred today with officials of the economic ministry on the effects of the newly decreed tariffs on typewriters, adding machines and cash registers.

Prospects are that without diplomatic intervention a compromise may be reached whereby the tariffs on cheaper machines will be lowered, while those on the more complicated and expensive machines which Germans can't duplicate retained. It is realized that labor might be affected, if several American companies maintaining subsidiary organizations should shut down. Moreover, they have stocks close at hand which could speedily be dumped here, fully supplying the market for some time.

RUSSIAN TRADE DOWN

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Renewed indications of the sharp decline in trade between the United States and soviet Russia were found today in Russia's foreign trade figures for the first five months of 1932. Those showed that purchases in America had dropped to 16,678,000 rubles from 131,504,000 in the corresponding period a year ago. (The nominal value of a ruble is 51½ cents.)

HOW TO GET A BANK LOAN —4 YEARS AGO

In discussing credit conditions yesterday a Chicago banker told a story to illustrate how easy it was for business men to obtain funds during the prosperous period prior to 1929.

The head of a large New York bank, the Chicago banker related, decided late in 1928 that Samuel Insull was destined to continue as a powerful leader in the middle west. Never having had business relations with Insull the New York banker wrote him asking an interview. Insull replied with an invitation that the banker come to Chicago for a conference. This the New Yorker did, but was unable to see Insull and talked to a subordinate.

As the result of the conversation the banker a short time later made a $5,000,000 loan to one of the Insull investment enterprises. It was a case of the banker seeking out the business man and requesting him to accept a loan. The story teller might have added that the loan has not been liquidated.

Explaining the Market.

A lot of reasons were advanced to explain the boisterous bull market yesterday. The dopesters follow the market rather than the market the dopesters. If this were not so there would be fewer interpreters and more market operators. Among the convenient developments to which the market writers attributed the bull demonstration were:

1. Bullish character of the week-end mercantile reviews.
2. Anticipation of an increase in freight car loadings.
3. Reports of reemployment coming from many sections of the country.
4. Continued strength in commodity markets.

Stocks Go Up Just the Same.

Brokers and traders who began their Labor day week-end yesterday morning missed one of the most impressive sessions of the current recovery. When commissions were scarce during the dull period early in the summer, brokers stayed on the job all week. With business picking up they take longer holidays. Well?

Movies Versus Bridge.

An indication of the better sentiment abroad is the larger attendance reported by theaters in the metropolitan areas. Amusement can certainly be classed as one of the necessities of life, but the industry is not depression proof. In lean times the theater industry has many competitors, including the bridge table and the bathing beach.

RECEIVER LIKELY SOON FOR ABITIBI POWER AND PAPER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 2.—The Abitibi Power and Paper company, one of the largest companies in the newsprint industry, which was unable to meet its bond interest this year, and whose fate now lies in the hands of the bondholders, is destined to go into receivership. A petition to that end will be made to the Toronto courts during the next few days, it was learned today, instructions to the Montreal Trust company, trustee, having been received from the bondholders' protective committee.

MONTAGU NORMAN SAILS FROM MONTREAL; KEEPS ALIAS SECRET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 2.—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, sailed for England today from Montreal on board the S. S. Duchess of Bedford. He arrived at the wharf three hours before scheduled sailing time and went on board via the third class gangway to avoid observers.

Newspaper men who discovered him before departure of the boat were unable to get him to talk about his trip. To pointed questions as to the rumored debt settlement between Great Britain and the United States he answered, "I have nothing to say."

Mr. Norman was not registered either under his own name or under the alias "Prof. Clarence Skinner" under which he sailed to America a few weeks ago.

RUMOR OF WAGE CUT IS "IGNORED" BY UNION HEADS

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—(AP)—A. F. Whitney, newly elected chairman of the Railway Labor Executives association, today said "no attention" would be paid to reports that railroads would ask a basic wage reduction of 20 per cent until formal notice of such a plan is received.

"There have been too many rumors for us to pay any attention to them until if and when we are officially notified," Whitney said.

As head of the Labor Executives association, Whitney is spokesman for more than twenty railway workmen's brotherhoods and unions. He also is president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Whitney said he stood on the association's statement of Aug. 24 when it said "wage reductions are not the appropriate means to restore prosperity. We cannot believe that the public welfare is advanced by reducing the purchasing power of labor." The association claimed that an additional 100,000 men lost their jobs in the last six months despite the agreement of railroads to attempt to maintain and increase employment when the workers accepted a 10 per cent reduction last January.

C. & E. I. Will Reduce Rates for Shipping Autos

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway has announced a reduction in combination passenger and automobile rates to all points along the line. Effective during 1932-'33 season an auto and two passengers will be carried for the price of four instead of five tickets. This reduction is made to stimulate southern travel this winter. At the rates in effect this winter, this new plan brings the cost of transporting the automobile and two passengers to less than 10 cents per mile.

Balaban & Katz Omits Common Stock Dividend

Balaban & Katz corporation yesterday omitted the quarterly dividend on the common stock. Three months ago a dividend of 37½ cents was paid as compared with 75 cents formerly. The majority of the common stock is held by the Paramount-Publix corporation. The usual preferred dividend was authorized by directors.

Allan A. Ryan Sells His Seat on Stock Exchange

The stock exchange seat of Allan A. Ryan Jr., grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan, has been sold to Russell J. Sellers for $168,000, it was announced. Ryan's father is famous for his Stutz motor corner. The younger Ryan purchased his seat in 1930.

U.S. HAS PASSED CRISIS, LONDON ECONOMIST'S EDITOR DECLARES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The current issue of the Economist, whose editor is Sir Walter Layton, reiterates its recent assertion that the United States has passed its crisis.

The article is headed "Reprieve or Recovery?" and raises the question, "Has recovery set in, without much conscious effort of statesmen, bankers, or industrialists, like a tide which begins almost imperceptibly to flow again from its low ebb?"

"The results of future attempts at international coöperation, particularly at the forthcoming world economic conference, will determine whether the present revival in some directions of business confidence is a preclude to real recovery or merely a passing upward fluctuation destined to be followed either by reversion, decline, or, at best, an indefinite prolongation of subnormal conditions.

"We do not share the opinion of those who would dismiss the recent Wall street recovery as a piece of purely electoral stage management in the interests of Hoover."

"It is conceivable that in such a large, nearly self-contained unity as the United States a substantial restoration of economic activity might develop as a result of existing natural forces backed by the stimulus of controlled inflation now being applied. Elsewhere we see a possibility of a temporary upward turn this autumn which should be regarded as a breathing space from disaster and an opportunity to carry forward the work of rebuilding. We do not see grounds on which to hope for a major recovery automatically engendered by the normal influences operative at the conclusion of past slumps."

EXPECT BETTER RAIL BUSINESS OVER HOLIDAY

Lines Base Forecast on Ticket Sales.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Present indications point to a considerable volume of passenger business over the Labor day holiday, officials of a number of railroads stated yesterday. Many Chicagoans are leaving town, taking advantage of the low rates, with liberal stopovers, put into effect by the roads. The winning streak of the Cubs and a chance to look over the grounds of the Century of Progress in advance are drawing people to Chicago in large numbers, these officials find.

"We look for a nice business over the holidays," remarked D. M. Bowman of the New York Central Lines. "We have had to keep five or six clerks on hand just to answer questions from prospective travelers. While most of our inquiries have been concerned with short haul rides, we anticipate a rather heavy demand for sleeping cars and coaches.

More Business Trips.

"I have been watching the travel centers—New York, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, and Cleveland—and I am happy to report that there has been a marked increase in commercial travel within the last thirty days. This is a most hopeful sign."

George B. Haynes of the Milwaukee road said there has been a large number of inquiries since the reduced rates for tickets went into effect. "Low fares have stimulated business within a radius of 300 or 400 miles. As a result of the additional business we have had to take on extra help at the Union station in St. Paul, Minn. We have noted some increase in passenger business from commercial buyers."

The office of W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fé, said that travel had been stimulated by the low rates put into effect for Labor day. The first train leaving over the Santa Fé yesterday in which excursion rates were good carried four extra cars. Orders are coming in from all division points for extra coaches, including far away California, and it was stated that from present prospects travel will be better than expected.

Expects Gain in Traffic.

The Pennsylvania road reports that more than 100 extra sleeping cars and coaches with special parties, excursions, and overflow travel on regular and extra trains will move to and from Chicago during the week-end. The line anticipates that thousands of out of town visitors will take advantage of the low rates to visit Chicago.

"Trains arriving at our station this morning brought a lot of people to Chicago," said R. Thomson, passenger traffic manager of the North Western. "Including those coming by special excursion from Milwaukee, we expect to bring about 10,000 persons here for the week-end. There are a combination of attractions now—the Cubs and the exposition grounds. Then there has been a marked increase in demand for reservations for traffic bound to the north woods and other resorts. We have had orders for extra coaches from all divisions."

Holiday Business Starts.

"Passenger traffic business started off with a bang yesterday morning," said A. Cottsworth, passenger traffic manager of the Burlington road. "We are expecting twice as much traffic as we had over the Fourth of July holidays. A good part of our outbound traffic is going to points in Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska. All divisions are putting in orders for coaches to meet the traffic demands.

"We anticipate a good showing, G. G. Truesdale of the Illinois Central stated. "We have low rates in effect in common with the other roads and we expect a fair volume of business to result. The figures are showing up well as compared with last year. We are sending out a special train tonight to Memphis. We find that the Cubs are drawing people to Chicago as a result of their pennant chances."

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois is expecting to bring more than 5,000 here to see the ball games and to look over the exposition grounds. Officials all along the line report that the winnng streak of the Cubs has boosted travel in recent week-ends.

Outlines Plan for Illinois Housing Act

BY AL CHASE.

Details of the housing bill to be submitted at the special session of the general assembly next Wednesday, which, if passed, will enable Illinois to take advantage of the federal Wagner bill millions for slum rehabilitation and housing contruction for families of low income, were made public last night by Coleman Woodbury, executive secretary of the Illinois housing commission, sponsor of the proposed legislation.

COLEMAN WOODBURY.
[E. L. Ray Photo.]

To Supervise Buildings.

The bill will permit the formation of housing corporations to acquire land and construct dwellings, which will be under the direct supervision of a new state housing board of seven members, also to be created by this legislation. This new state board will regulate rents, charges, capital structure, rate of return and areas and methods of operation.

The housing corporations will be limited to 6 per cent dividends. Any earnings above that must go to build up a surplus and beyond a certain cash reserve the excess will be used to reduce rentals.

It was announced yesterday by Alfred K. Stern, chairman of the Illinois housing commission, that the Commercial Club of Chicago, one of the most powerful organizations of its kind in the country, has agreed to use its influence to see that building goes ahead if the bill is passed.

Could Condemn Land.

One power to be given the housing corporations, which, it is stated, will not be used unless absolutely necessay, will be that of condemnation. Acquirement of sites for both the Field and Rosenwald projects were handicapped by lack of this power. It will be used as a court of last resort, however, under the new legislation, Mr. Woodbury stated.

"This enabling act will permit Illinois to get its share of the Wagner bill millions in order to provide better living quarters for families of low income, rather than merely to erect more apartments," said Mr. Woodbury. "It also will provide work for thousands of unemployed and put millions of dollars back into active business circulation.

"It will be a matter of replacement of present congested housing quarters with modern structures. There'll be no net addition to available housing space.

Must Satisfy State Board.

"Any corporation which wants to take advantage of the new law will have to prove to the new state housing board that there's a definite need for the project. The rental level, of course, will be lower than anything of the kind ever attempted here. We figure that with this federal aid from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, four room flats can be built with a maximum monthly rental of $39, or $9.75 per room per month. This will be several dollars below the schedules of the Field or Rosenwald projects."

New York, the home state of Senator Robert F. Wagner, who introduced the bill bearing his name at Washington, is the only commonwealth at present which has the proper enabling act to take advantage of the federal millions for housing. New York already has applied for $45,000,000 for a slum clearance plan. If the special assembly passes the necessary enabling act at Springfield, Illinois can at once take advantage of the R. F. C. housing millions.

HOME LOAN SESSION

French Lick, Ind., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Members of the home loan bank board today sought the coöperation of the United States Building and Loan league in the establishment of the new system of home loan banks.

Franklin W. Fort of New Jersey, chairman, and other board members spoke at the fortieth annual convention of the league. They outlined plans for the opening of subscription books for 134 million dollars in capital stock of the twelve banks.

The chairman asked aggressive support for the stock subscription campaign, saying: "Nothing will do as much to start the banks off right as substantial initial subscriptions to stock."

BRIGHT SPOTS IN THE DAY'S BUSINESS NEWS

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad, said at Sioux City, Ia., he believed the business outlook was much brighter in all sections of the country. He predicted that the country would recover by natural process, neither through legislation nor farm strikes.

The Lackawanna railroad has recalled 51 engineers and firemen to work.

Plants of the Industrial Rayon corporation in Cleveland, O., and at Covington, Va., are operating at capacity.

Chicago ice cream sales during August showed an increase of 11 per cent over those of July, it was reported to the Ice Cream Manufacturers association.

In Boston the chairman of the district banking and industrial committee has asked all merchants to place orders for 60 per cent of their Christmas business now.

The estimated cost of general construction work in Moline, Ill., during August was the highest since October of 1931, and more than double that of the previous month.

Construction work in the 13 larger Iowa cities reached a total of $1,130,653 during July, an increase of $580,317 over June. The increase was largely due to the work on the new veterans' hospital in Des Moines.

Bradstreet's monthly wholesale commodity price index advanced 5.6 per cent during August, making the third consecutive rise and the greatest single increase since July, 1925.

The sharpest advance in old metal during the last four years has been recorded in Youngstown where heavy melting steel scrap yesterday rose $1.50 a ton. This increase brings the total of recent advances to $2 a ton, a 25 per cent gain in 30 days.

This country's monetary gold stock gained $1,245,500 yesterday through release of that amount from foreign earmark. There were no imports or exports.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 2.—There was much excitement in the Wall street district today over the possibility of a business upturn immediately after Labor day. Traders, many of whom couldn't afford the expenses of a holiday outing, proceeded to plunge on the stocks of companies which may resume operations or even dividend payments, if all goes well.

The buying was broad, brisk and sustained. United States Steel was up more than 3 points on the biggest day it has had in weeks and pegged at 50 for the overnight record. Scrap iron prices have been boosted out west. The impression seemed to be that the industry was due for a big drive forward.

Auto and Oil Shares Rise.

The automobile group and oils were helped by belief in business expansion.

It was the biggest day in more than a week, trading volume approximating three and a quarter million shares. Net gains of 1 to 2 points were the rule in all sections. Some specialties advanced 4 or 5 points.

Preferred stocks made the best showing of the day, all things considered. Those of National Lead, Standard Brands, New Haven railroad, Republic Steel, General Gas, Byers company, Pittsburgh Coal, and Ludlum Steel ornamented the record with gains of from 3 to 7 points or more.

Rail Stocks Strong.

Railroad stocks were out in front all day and a majority of issues of the group attained new highs for the recovery. Shares of coal carrying roads and lines affected by the eastern merger project were again the center of demand.

Agricultural shares advanced vigorously on a fresh upturn in commodity prices, Case Threshing Machine spurting more than 5 points. Mail order shares had a good day.

SUSPEND TRADE IN CREX STOCK ON N. Y. EXCHANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 2.—Dealings in the stock of the Crex Carpet company on the New York Stock exchange have been suspended because of "certain unusual transactions" which have taken place in it recently, the exchange announced today.

The exchange also disclosed that information regarding recent transactions in the stock has been requested and turned over to the state securities bureau of the attorney general's office.

In the spring of 1930 the state securities bureau had Crex Carpet stock under investigation and obtained an injunction restraining a brokerage firm from dealing in it on the ground that it had been boosted to undue heights by misrepresentations.

UNION CARBIDE FEATURES TRADE ON BOARD HERE

Union Carbide stock was the feature of the trading on the Chicago board yesterday. The stock was bid up more than a point on 1930 although buyers yesterday will not get the 30 cents quarterly dividend which goes to holders of record Thursday.

The motor accessory shares appeared on the tape frequently at slightly better prices. Grigsby Grunow was up a fraction to 2½, the best price the issue has brought this year. The company announced yesterday that it has deposited funds with the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company to meet the Sept. 1 interest on its bonds. The payment amounts to $75,000.

Commonwealth Edison, Marshall Field and Swift International moved up on moderate trading.

STOCK MARKETS WILL BE OPEN AND SOME OTHERS CLOSE TODAY

Several commodity exchanges will extend their Labor day holiday by remaining closed today, but all security markets will function as usual. The cocoa, rubber, hide, and metals markets will suspend for a special holiday and the coffee and sugar exchange will be closed in accordance with its custom of Saturday closings during the summer.

WHEAT RISES ON STORY OF FARM BOARD'S SELLING

Traders Hear Cash Grain Is Unloaded.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The federal farm board has disposed of the last of its holdings of cash wheat, estimated at about 12 million bu a few weeks ago, according to rumors current in the grain trade late yesterday. The rumors appeared to have originated in New York.

Efforts to confirm them were without success. They were regarded, as having some foundation in fact.

According to official returns the open interest in durum wheat at Duluth increased 2,660,000 bu on Thursday, while the total purchases of futures for the day were only 200,000 bu. The sudden increase led to a belief that the cash wheat had been exchanged for futures.

It was pointed out that the procedure of exchanging cash wheat for futures was followed earlier this year at Kansas City, when around 5 million bushels were disposed of by the farm board in this manner. At that time the first indication the trade received was in an unaccountable increase in the open interest in futures.

Rumors Advance Prices.

Numerous other rumors were in circulation during the day. They, too, were of a character further to excite speculators. With the talk that the farm board was out of its holdings of cash grain, the other rumors helped along an advance in futures. One message from New York said the action of certain stocks emphasized the potentialities of persistent rumors of extremely bullish word expected in the near futures on the wheat situation. Another intimated big developments were likely to mature between Sept. 8 and 15. Another report claimed the Russian situation would be discussed by Washington.

Geo. S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, the farm board subsidiary which is the owner of the cash wheat rumored as having been sold, denied reports that he was to issue a statement, but indicated that one might be issued next week.

Wheat Closes at Top.

Toward the last there was heavy buying of wheat by houses with New York and eastern connections which absorbed the surplus in the pit and started an upward movement which culminated at the close with net gains of ⅞@1¼c. September was 52⅝c; December, 57¼@57⅝c, and May, 62¼@62⅛c at the last. Winnipeg was slow to follow the upturn in Chicago, but closed ⅛@⅜c higher, with December at 57⅛c in Canadian funds.

There was active buying of wheat futures in Winnipeg by seaboard interests and export sales were placed as high as 1,250,000 bu, the largest business in a number of days. Liverpool was unchanged to ⅛c higher, with December 58¼c, or 1⅜c over the same future in Chicago.

French wheat crop has been materially overestimated of late by European trade authorities, as indicated by the official returns. The latter placed the prospective crop this season at 292 million bu, or 89 million bu less than estimated home requirements. The yield compares with 271 million bu harvested in 1931 and with recent private reports suggesting as high as 360 million bu for 1932. Reserves of old wheat at the end of the 1931-'32 season were regarded as having been practically exhausted.

Corn Market Easier.

Corn fluctuated in an erratic manner. Liquidation was on early but the market rallied sharply later with wheat and closed unchanged to ¾c higher, with September at 30⅝@30¾c; December, 33⅜@33⅝c, and May at 38⅛c. Purchases of 50,000 bu were reported made to arrive.

Trade in oats was only fair, with the finish unchanged to ⅛c lower, with September showing the decline. The latter closed at 17⅛@17¼c; December, 19¼c, and May, 22½c. Rye was 1⅛@1⅜c higher, with September, 32⅜c, and December, 35½c at the last.

MEAT STOCKS DECREASE

Stocks of cured meats at leading western packing points are 252,339,962 lbs, compared with 282,654,766 lbs last year. There was a decrease for the month of 16,791,654 lbs, compared with a reduction of 43,479,744 lbs for the same time last year. Lard stocks are 77,535,826 lbs, compared with 70,342,890 lbs last year. The decrease last month was rather less than expected, being 13,523,500 lbs, as compared with 23,316,869 lbs for last year. Stocks of dry salted clear bellies are 44,510,543, against 41,402,830 lbs at the end of July and 56,996,525 lbs last year. There is a good decrease in hams.

Moderate pressure was on in lard futures, with a little liquidation through selling of January and buying of May. The tone of the market was easy, but net losses were only 2½@5c on lard futures, while bellies were neglected and unchanged. Dry salted meats are having a good consumptive demand, which rather exceeds that for sweet pickled product. Liverpool lard was 3@6d higher, the latter on spots. Exports of lard were 688,390 lbs and bacon 27,500 lbs. Hog receipts were in excess of a week ago and about the same as last year. Prices follow:
